Machinist Tells of Finding Blood, Hair and Pay Envelope On Second Floor, Where State Claims Girl Was Murdered

WILSON GETS READY FOR MEXICAN WAR IF WAR MUST COME

Every Shift of Military Resources Made With an Eye to Possibility of Extreme Steps Becoming Necessary

DEFINITE POLICY, HOWEVER, NOT FORMULATED

Mexican Constitutionalists Have Begun Confiscating Lands of All Owners Not in Sympathy With Their Course

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—The administration is taking steps to be prepared for the worst in connection with the Mexican situation. Every shift of the military resources of the government is made with an eye to the possibility of going to extreme length in Mexico.

A significant illustration of this is to be found in a letter received today by Senator Weeks, of Massachusetts, from Acting Secretary of the Navy Roosevelt. Weeks had put in a request that a couple of battleships be detailed for show duty at Boston, during the meeting there of the American Bankers' association.

When his reply came from Mr. Roosevelt, it was quite in line with the general policy of preparedness of the administration. "The department will be delighted to send the battleships," said the letter, "provided they are not needed at that time for use in Mexican waters."

It is true that the administration has not yet formulated a policy in regard to Mexico and will not, until it feels itself more fully informed. But at the same time it does not propose to be caught unprepared in case an emergency requires prompt attention by force of arms.

The possibility that only war will quiet Mexico is not lost sight of, and if that should be forced upon the administration, it proposes to be ready to act with vigor and effectiveness.

Another Cruiser Goes To Mexican Waters

WASHINGTON, July 31.—The cruiser South Dakota has arrived at Californit City on her way to Guaymas to relieve the cruiser Pittsburg. When the Pittsburg returns to San Francisco she will bring any refugees who wish to leave Guaymas.

Rebels Confiscating Landowners' Holdings

DOUGLAS, Ariz., July 31.—Under a law just enacted by the Mexican constitutionalist state congress of Sonora, the holdings of the great land barons of the territory under control of the rebel government are declared forfeited.

According to advices received here today, the government machinery at Hermosillo already has been put into operation to confiscate the estates of all persons not in sympathy with the constitutionalist cause. This number includes all of the great landowners.

The law provides also that all holdings which a property owner is unable or unwilling to cultivate shall be forfeited.

General Felix Diaz Takes a Motor Trip

(By Associated Press.)

LOS ANGELES, July 31.—There being no indications of further demonstrations against him, General Felix Diaz, the Mexican special envoy to Japan, and his suite took a motor trip today, guarded only by Mexican secret service men. He maintained secrecy as to his destination, but it was presumed that he intended to seek an interview with General Geronimo Trevino, veteran soldier and associate of his uncle, Porfirio Diaz.

General Diaz declared "of no consequence" the demonstration of Mexican rebel sympathizers last night when menacing shouts of "Death to Diaz!" drowned the vivas of his friends.

In his motor trip the general avoided the vicinit yof the Mexican colony.

WILLIAM OLDKNOW GOES INTO MEXICO FOR THE JOURNAL

While Taking Motion Pictures, He Interviews Col. Toribio Ortega, Commanding Constitutionalists at Guadaloupe

ORTEGA SAYS UNCLE SAM SHOULD KEEP HANDS OFF

He Raps Ambassador Wilson, Styles Huerta a Murderer, and Claims Constitutionalists Have Practically Won

The first view of the "rebel" side of the Mexican war given to the Atlanta public is presented herewith in a dispatch to The Journal from William Oldknow, the well known Atlanta motion picture magnate, who has just taken motion pictures of the Constitutionalist forces under Colonel Toribio Ortega, at Guadaloupe, Mexico.

Mr. Oldknow was at El Paso, Tex., when he was requested by The Journal to interview Colonel Ortega on his trip to Guadaloupe, concerning Ambassador Henry Lane Wilson, President Wilson's attitude, the feeling of the Mexican public toward the United States, and other matters of interest.

At a later date Mr. Oldknow's personal views on the Mexican situation will be given the readers of The Journal.

THE DISPATCH.

His dispatch follows:

BY WILLIAM OLDKNOW.

EL PASO, Tex., July 31.—After a long and dangerous drive by automobile down the Rio Grande valley to Guadaloupe, Mexico, where the Constitutionalist troops of Colonel Toribio Ortega's command are camping and preparing to attack Juarez within a few days, your correspondent, with the aid of a German doctor with Ortega's army as interpreter, was enabled to interview Colonel Ortega regarding President Wilson's proposed plan of mediation between the United States and Mexico.

Colonel Ortega was pleased to receive our party and after partaking of a real Mexican dinner he cheerfully posed for moving pictures and talked freely re*garding the present trouble. He stated* that no plan of the United States would be recognized by him so long as Huerta, whom he styled as a traitor and an usurper, holds the presidency through "treachery and murder brought about by the meddling and interference of Ambassador Wilson."

WHAT ORTEGA SAYS.

Colonel Ortega said: "What I most desire is for the United States to keep hands off and allow both sides equal privileges in securing arms and ammunition. We can then quickly settle our own troubles, take over the government, restore order and give protection to everybody and their property. With all our disadvantages, we have practically whipped the Huerta forces because we are fighting for a constitutional government and civil liberty. If Huerta wants peace and order in Mexico, let him and all his officers resign and let the legal constitutional successors to Madero and Suarez assume the presidency, form a combine and hold the government until a regular election is held.

"Myself or General Villa will never consent to any proposition from the United States which will allow Huerta, who has murdered our friends by the hundreds, to retain the presidency. It is impossible."

Shoots 85-Year-Old Wife And Attempts Suicide

MONTVILLE, Conn., July 31.—Albert Rogers, eighty-two years old, shot and killed his eighty-five-year-old wife at their home here this morning, and then attempted ineffectually to end his own life.

The shooting aws the sequel to a quarrel.

CORONER ORDERS ARREST MOTORDROME OFFICIALS

List of Dead in Cincinnati Accident Reaches Seven, Many Injured

(By Associated Press.)

CINCINNATI, July 31.—With seven dead and three others dying as the result of the accident to the motorcycle of Odin Johnson at the Lagoon motordrome last night, Coroner Wise, of Hamilton county, Kentucky, today swore out warrants charging three of the officials of the amusement park with voluntary manslaughter.

The list of injured is steadily increasing as the names of those who were taken away by friends become known.

Marietta Woman Is Injured When Auto Runs Into Carriage

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

EATONTON, Ga., July 31.—Mrs. George Griffin, of Marietta, suffered a broken collar bone when the carriage in which she was driving Tuesday night with Mr. Griffin, Miss Griffin and a relative, Mrs. Addington, was struck by an automobile driven by Willie Rogers Dennis. There were two other occupants of the automobile, Dr. Frederick Griffith and Miss Julia Belle Dennis, but neither was hurt.

The collision occurred, it is said, because of a blinding light in the chauffeur's eyes when he approached the buggy. The automobile is said to have been going rapidly.

On the same evening a mule hitched to Dr. Dodge Hearn's buggy ran away with Dr. Hearn, his wife and daughter. None was injured.

Witnesses of Frank Trial Have Tedious Job of Merely Waiting

At First It Was Picnic for Them, but Now It's Only a Long, Long Wait, in a Crowded Room Under a Burning Roof

The witnesses in the trial of Leo M. Frank undoubtedly have had the hardest time of it to date. If they testify they must run the gamut of Luther Rosser's sledge-hammer cross-examination or Solicitor Dorsey's boring-in tactics; if they don't testify they must wait, and the waiting is the hardest part of all.

One of them in the upstairs hall above the court room declared Wednesday, "I can't stay up here, it's too hot. If I go downstairs a policeman runs me away. But I've got to stick around."

It is hot, fearfully hot, in the room where the witnesses have congregated. Downstairs are electric fans and cooleres and the excitement of the trial, upstairs there is nothing but heat and waiting.

On the first day the witnesses felt very cool and quiet. It was a novel experience, they could discuss every phase of the trial, they might even be the next ones to testify.

But three days of it has cooled, or rather melted their ardor. Men in wilted collars and women and girls pale and wan from long hours spent under the burning roof, lounge around on chairs and benches. They have nothing to do. They can talk about the case, but they have talked about it so much that the subject is worn threadbare. They can look out the window and wonder if the workmen on the new court house are named Smith or Jones. They can look out the windows on the other side and speculate on the menu which the Greek restaurant is offering for dinner. But such idle fancying is not intensely interesting.

All the front room to the right are the negroes, grown several shades paler, one would think, since they first were subpoenaed.

In the main room are other witnesses, friends of Frank come to defend his character; girls from the factory, the mother of Mary Phagan and her friends. Some of them are asleep on the benches, others twiddle their thumbs and gaze at the walls, where great oil paintings of Georgia's famous lawmakers hang.

"Let's get something to drink," some one will say, and across to a drug store they go, returning a few moments later to sit down and await the summons.

The only break in the monotony comes when a bailiff takes a witness away to the court room or brings one back.

Then the rest gather around to hear how their fellow-sufferer fared at the hands of the attorneys. It may be their turn next, perhaps they will do better. And so they wait.

Uncle Sam Forbids Medicine Dance Of the Indians

(By Associated Press.)

NETT LAKE, Minn., July 31.—The grand lodge medicine dance of the Chippewa Indians at the Bois fort reservation and Nett Lake agency has been put under the ban by a federal inspection.

It is the custom of the Indians during the dance to give away practically everything they own, hey are thus kept impoverished, while the medicine men flourish.

The Indian doctors exert an influence so strong over the members of the band that they will not go to the agency physicians even when seriously ill.

Detectives Flood Naragansett In Search of Cunning Thieves Who Got Jewels Worth $225,000

Members of Cottage Colony Have Lost Their Gaiety, Every Stranger Is Suspected, and the Sleuths Are Shadowing One Another

(By Associated Press.)

NARRAGANSETT PIER, R. I., July 31.—These are unhappy days for the chance visitor to Narragansett who does not bear refutation of the suspicion that he is one of the thieves who robbed the homes of C. C. Rumsey and John H. Hanan of jewelry worth $225,000.

All but those who were well known are viewed with suspicion, and some of the amateur sleuths go so far as say that a few residents will bear watching.

The usual number of midweek guests has been nearly doubled by the presence of detectives, and as these men represent at least three or four competing agencies, the greater number are not known to one another. In one instance two operatives represents rival agencies spent a whole day shaa wing each other.

Gaiety at the Casino and other places where the members of the cottage colony met today was subdued by the knowledge that detectives were about. Patrons spoke in whispers over their teacups and every stranger, whether man or woman, was immediately placed under suspicion of being either a detective or a jewel thief.

The usual crop of inside "tips" are afloat to the effect that arrests are imminent, but those in authority say that the detectives are no wiser as to the identity of the theives who got away with $225,000 worth of gems than when they commenced work on the case.

Both Mr. Rumsey and Mrs. Hanan today declared ridiculous the theory that a house guest sought to climb higher in society by the aid of the missing ropes of pearls. "My guests were all old friends," said Mrs. Hanan, "and none of them were in the house when the ro bery occurred."

Mrs. Hanan was told by one of the detectives at Shore Acres, her home, that they had a clue.

BLOOD SPOTS AND HAIR FOUND ON DAY FOLLOWING DISCOVERY CRIME HAD BEEN COMMITTED

Pay Envelope Was Found Near Machine Used by Mary Phagan Some Days Later—Find of Strands of Hair on Lathe Was Reported to Quinn, Who Notified Darley—Mell Stanford and Magnolia Kennedy Also Saw It

BARRETT'S EVIDENCE MOST IMPORTANT YET TOWARD PROVING CRIME WAS COMMITTED IN METAL ROOM

Mell Stanford and Harry Scott Also Tell of Finding Blood Spots, but Scott's Testimony Is Not Entirely Satisfactory to Either State or Defense—Monteen Stover on the Stand. Will Conley Testify in Rebuttal Only?

New and sensational testimony for the state was given by R. P. Barrett, a machinist at the National Pencil factory where Mary Phagan was murdered on April 26, when Barrett Thursday afternoon declared from the witness stand that he had discovered early Monday morning following the tragedy a large blood spot, surrounded by a number of smaller spots, at the water cooler near the dressing room on the second floor of the factory. Barrett testified further that he had found a broom nearby which from its appearance evidently had been used to smear the large blood spot over with a white substance.

Barrett testified further that on the same morning he had found strands of hair on the lathe of the machine used by him and that he had called this discovery to the attention of Magnolia Kennedy, Mell Stanford and Lemmie Quinn, and that Quinn had notified Darley. The solicitor developed through Barrett's testimony that no girls had been at the factory since Friday afternoon before the crime, his purpose evidently being to show that the hair must have been that of Mary Phagan. In addition to this testimony, Barrett swore that a few days after the murder he had found in the area near Mary Phagan's machine a portion of a pay envelope. There was nothing on the envelope to positively identify it as having belonged to Mary Phagan.

The fact that blood spots were found in the metal room on the second floor was also established by the state through the testimony of Harry Scott, the Pinkerton detective, and Mell Stanford, an employe of the factory.

Barrett's testimony was decidedly the most important that the state has thus far managed to get before the jury, and no doubt will be stressed by the solicitor in support of the state's theory that Mary Phagan met her death in the metal room on the second floor of the factory.

By both Pinkerton Detectives Harry Scott and Barrett the state showed that careful searches had been made of the first floor shortly after the tragedy and that neither a pay envelope, a purse, a bludgeon or stick, had been found there. The prediction has been frequently made that the defense would introduce evidence to show that both Mary Phagan's pay envelope and a bloody bludgeon were found on the first floor by Pinkerton detectives.

NOT THE SAME ENVELOPE.

Whether the defense will introduce the piece of envelope found by the Pinkertons on the first floor of the factory is not known. In the event they do so two pay envelopes will be in evidence. These two pieces are not from the same envelope. This fact was demonstrated by Attorney Frank A. Hooper, who is assisting in the prosecution. After the state can contend that the envelopes are separate and distinct. Mary Phagan's machine, Mr. Hooper took it and endeavored to fit it with the piece of envelope held by the defense. It did not fit, thus the state can contend that the envelopes are sparate and distinct.

It is quite evident that the state will insis that the envelope and bludgeon found by Pinkeron detectives and turned over to the defense are nothing more than "plants."

Monteen Stover, a twelve-wear-old girl employed at the factory, stated that she had gone to the factory on the Saturday or the murder, arriving at 12:05 and leaving at 12:10. She swore that she had gone into the offices and that she did not see nor hear anyone in the building. She had gone for her pay.

Scott swore that Frank had told him that he was in his office and did not leave it from 12 to 12:30.

Solicitor Dorsey has begun to weave the chain of circumstantial evidence with which the state expects to convict Frank with the murder. The remainder of the week will most likely be taken up by the state in the introduction of witnesses.

WILL CONLEY BE CALLED?

James Conley, the negro sweeper, who swore that he helped Frank carry the girl's body into the basement and wrote the notes found beside it at Frank's suggestion, may or may not be introduced as a principal witness. The state may hold him back as a rebuttal witness, and there is a slight possibility that he may not be put upon the stand at all.

Throughout the Thursday session of the trial Frank remained as impassive as he has been heretofore. He took a keen interest in the proceedings, but did not display the slightest trace of emotion.

The testimony of Detective Scott was not satisfactory to either the state o rthe defense. He engaged in frequent clashes with Mr. Rosser while the latter was cross-examining him, but unlike Detective John Black, he never once lost his head.

MANY WOMEN PRESENT.

A number of women were among the early arrivals in the crowd of spectators who surrounded the court house before court convened Thursday morning for the resumption of the Frank trial. The women stood in line for an hour to be among those close to the doors when those portals were opened.

The crowd was admitted at 8:40 o'clock. Leo M. Frank, the accused, had arrived early, as usual, under custody of the sheriff. At 8:55, Mrs. Frank, wife of the accused, joined her husband in an ante-room of the court. Court convened with Judge Roan on the bench, at 9 o'clock.

J. M. Gantt was recalled to the stand.

"When were you arrested?"

"Monday, April 28, at 11:30 o'clock in Marietta. I was released on Thursday of the following week."

The witness was excused.

SCOTT TAKES STAND.

Harry Scott, assistant superintendent of the Atlanta branch of the Pinkerton detective agency, was called to the stand.

"When did you first see Leo M. Frank?"

"At 4:30 o'clock Monday, April 28, at the National Pencil factory."

"With whom have you worked on this case?"

"John Black, city detective of Atlanta."

"By whom were you engaged?"

"By Mr. Frank, representing the National Pencil company."

"Tell all about your engagement."

"I went up to the National Pencil company's factory on request, and saw Mr. Frank standing about where the time clocks are. Accompanied by Mr. Darley and another man, we went back into Mr. Frank's private office for a conference.

FRANK ASKED PROBE.

"He stated that the directors of the company and himself thought that the public demanded an investigation of the horrible crime committed in the factory. He, Frank, had just come from police headquarters, and John Black seemed to suspect him. Then he detailed to me his movements on Saturday. He arrived at the factory about 8 o'clock. Between 9:30 and 10 o'clock he went to Montag's, and returned to the factory about 11, he said.

"About 12 o'clock Mrs. White came in and went up to the fourth floor where her husband and Harry Denham were working. About 12:10 Mary Phagan came in and he paid her two half dollars and two dimes. She received the money in his private office and when she reached the outer office asked if the metal had come.

"He replied that he didn't know. When she had reached the stairway, he heard voices, but couldn't tell wether it was a man or two women talking. About 12:50 he went up to the fourth floor and found that White and Denham wanted to work about two hours longer.

Mrs. White preceded him down the steps and mentioned that when she came in she had seen a negro sitting behind some boxes on the first floor.

"At 1:10 Frank went to lunch. He returned at 2, and at 4 oclock Newt Lee reported and was told that he could go out and have a good time for two hours. Lee returned at 6 o'clock and about 6:04 Frank left the factory. On the outside he met J. M. Gantt, a former bookkeeper, who had been discharg-

MURDER CASES PENDING MAKE SAVANNAH RECORD

Trials of Five Slayers Are Scheduled for August Term of Chatham Courts

SAVANNAH, Ga., July 31.—Five murder cases are now on the superior court docket, assigned for trial before the closing of the present term of criminal court. At no other time in the recent history of Savannah have so many murder cases been pending in the courts.

The most important is that against Lathrop George, who recently shot Henry McClellan, when he found the latter asleep in a bed room in Mrs. George's home. This case has been assigned for August 6.

On the following day Hugh Harrison will be tried for the murder of Ruth Hester. This alleged murder occurred only a few days before the McClellan tragedy. Jealousy is attributed as the motive for the killing.

Two murder cases are assigned for trial today: Lola Royal, colored charged with the murder of her husband Louis Royal, and George Hamilton, colored, charged with the murder of Mose Frazier. The case against Amos Hussey, colored, is also assigned for trial at this term.

GERMAN OFFICERS TRIED FOR ACCEPTING BRIBES

Corruptions in Army Demonstrated at Courtmartial of Four Lieutenants

(By Associated Press.)

BERLIN, July 31.—Sensational disclosures of corruptions in the German army mad eby Dr. Karl Liecht, Socialist deputy, came up today when a courtmartial convened to try the military officers charged with accepting bribes for information of pending government contracts for arms and ammunition.

Four officers were brought before the judges. They were Lieutenants Tillan, Hinst, Hoge and Schleuder, to whom was entrusted supervision of many of the ammunition and arms contracts.

They admitted under cross-examination that the information betrayed by them to the Krupps representatives would have been of the highest importance if it had reached foreign powers. Early testimony indicated that the accused had acted rather out of good fellowship to Krupps representatives than on account of the comparatively small sums received by them.

It had been charged by Dr. Leicht that "corruption and bribery on the part of munition companies" was prevalent and that there was an organized scheme for raising war scares and thus causing the government to spend more money on armaments.

The civilian offenders, who include the alleged briber on behalf of the ordnance companies and also the directors of those concerns, will come before an ordinary criminal court at a later day.

INEBRIATES AND DOPERS WILL BE FORCED TO WORK

WASHINGTON, July 31.—Inebriates and users of drugs, upon being convicted here after, will be sent to a federal hospital and forced to work. The money earned will go in part to the support of the institution and half of the amount remaining will be turned over to those dependent upon the prisoners. This in effect is the recommendation of the commissioners of the District of Columbia, sent to congress today as an amendment to the bill on the subject already introduced by Senator Smith, of Maryland. The limit of sentence under the proposed law would be two years.

Death's Hand Falls On "Silver Bill," Idol of Gamblesr

CHICAGO, July 31.—"Colonel" William Riley, whose bookmaking establishment on "Gamblers' Row" in the seventies was known from coast to coast, died here yesterday. He was about 63 years old. Although he is reputed to have at one time been a millionaire he practically was without funds at his death.

Riley, whose white hair and mustache won him the sobriquet of "Silver Bill," had a reputation among gamblers for his honesty. He never allowed minors in his place; no man was permitted to smoke cigarettes there, card playing was not permitted, but any kind of a wager upon a horse race, athletic event or election was covered promptly.

When Cleveland and Blaine ran for the presidency more than $250,000 in bets reposed in "Silver Bill's" safe. The result of the election was in doubt for a time and Riley was taken ill. It was reported that he had disappeared with the money, which had been entrusted to him and newspapers printed a story to that effect. The story was disbelieved by gamblers and not a single man waited at the door of the pool room the following morning to get his money. Every bet was paid.

Riley was born in Brooklyn and was a camp follower in the Union army. Late in the sixties he landed in San Francisco with only $150. Meeting a ragged miner, whose face was so covered with a heavy growth of red beard that he resembled a freak, Riley rented a store room and charged 50 cents admission to see "the wild man of Ceylon" who was the miner. He made $1,500 in ten days.

Riley's widow is believed to be residing in New York. It is said that he settled $100,000 upon her several years ago when they separated.

GOMPERS TELLS DOINGS OF EXECUTIVE COUNCIL

Committees and Representatives Appointed and Subordinate Disputes Adjusted

(By Associated Press.)

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., July 31.—In a statement issued yesterday, Samuel Gompers, president of the American Federation of Labor, shows that many matters other than those bearing directly upon workers and industrial conditions were considered at the conference of the executive council which ended here Tuesday.

The appointment of a committee on conservation to co-operate with the national conservation congress; the appointment of a representative to attend the convention of the National Society for the Promotion of Industrial Education; and the selection of G. W. Perkins, president of the Cigarmakers' International union, as representative of the Federation at the International Labor congress at Zurich, Switzerland, in September, were among the important actions taken.

Decisions also were rendered in many of the disputes among subordinate organizations, according to the statement. The trouble between the steam shovelers and dredgemen was settled by the issuance of a charter to include members of both organizations. In the case of the boilermakers and iron shipbuilders as opposed to the bridge and structural iron workers, it was decided that the agreement entered into between those organizations in November, 1910, is still in effect, and that any disputes that may arise between them are to be submitted to arbitration, provided the president of the two organizations are unable to reach an amicable adjustment.

REAL BLIND TIGER IN PUTNAM COUNTY

Old Negro Who Cannot See a Wink Admits Selling Whisky

EATONTON, Ga., July 31.—Although the term "blind tiger" has long been in use, probably Putnam county officers brought to the bar of the county court for sentence from Judge W. B. Wingfield, one of the very few cases of a real blind tiger.

A negro man about fifty years old, totally blind, frankly confessed that he sold a little liquor occasionally to buy "terbaccer" and "other little things."

He was sentenced to six months confinement in jail, on the ground that he could do no work on the county road gang, and would be a decided handicap instead. Imposing a sentence was a problem for the judge, who finally pronounced the jail sentence, where confinement, with the gallows on which two white murderers were hung in May is still standing, has since made a jail sentence far more of a terror to evil doers among the negro race than a long term on the county roads or city rock pile.

Militia to Camp

MONTGOMERY, Ala., July 31.—The First battalion, field artillery, Alabama national guard, will hold its annual encampment at Mobile next month, according to the announcement of L. S. Dorrance, major, yesterday. The exact dates for the maneuvers will be agreed upon when Joseph B. Scully, adjutant general, returns from Birmingham, where he is in camp with the Second infantry.

Pay Record Price

LONDON, July 31.—The record price of $250,000 was paid today for the horse Prince Palatine, winner of the Ascot gold cup, by J. P. Joel, South African millionaire. A proviso made by his former owner, T. Pilkington, will keep the horse in Great Britain.

The previous record price for a thoroughbred was $196,875 for Flying Fox.

PANAMA EXPOSITION SPURNED BY ENGLAND

Trouble Over Canal Tolls Causes Decision Against Participation in Celebration

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, July 31.—Great Britain has decided against participation in the Panama-Pacific exposition at San Francisco in 1915.

A notice to this effect was conveyed officially to Washington early this week. No reasons were given.

Both the British foreign office and Walter H. Page, the United States ambassador here, decline to discuss the matter or to reveal the cause of this reversal of the announcement that Great Britain had decided in principle to participate in the exposition.

It has been mooted for some time, however, that the dispute in regard to the Panama canal tolls might possibly lead to this result and the present notification of non-participation is attributed to that cause.

SHELLMAN MAN SENDS FIRST BALE TO MACON

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

MACON, Ga., July 31.—The first new bale of cotton was shipped into Macon by J. M. Wootan, of Shellman, Ga., who received 15 cents per pound for the staple. B. T. Adams' cotton warehouse received the cotton. This is the third year that Mr. Wootan has been the first man to market the first bale of the season. He is said to have a large crop of the early variety of cotton and will ship several bales here next week.

His first two bales were classed as middling, but the bale this year was graded as good middling.

SUBWAY AND ELEVATED FOR PHILADELPHIA, PA.

Director of Transit Recommends $57,578,000 Improvement

(By Associated Press.)

PHILADELPHIA, July 31. The construction by the city of a subway line on Broad street and elevated lines to outlying sections is recommended by City Transit Director Taylor in a voluminous report made public here today. Director Taylor has been engaged for more than a year in a study of the rapid transit problems of Philadelphia.

He estimates that the total cost of the improvements recommended by him will be $57,576,000. Of this amount the city would pay $34,682,000 and the companies leasing the lines $22,896,000.

Mint Vinegar Sauce

If you like mint, gather the fresh leaves before the blossoms appear and put them in large mouthed bottles. Cover them with vinegar and cork them.

In about three weks strain through cheesecloth.

This vinegar can be kept indefinitely, if it is bottled carefully. It is a good substitute for mint sauce and it gives a delightful flavor to salads.

THREE ASPIRANTS TAKE EXAM FOR ALA. OFFICE

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

TIFTON, Ga., July 31.—Three aspirants entered for the examination held in Tifton this week to fill the postmastership of the Alapaha postoffice.

The three who entered for the examination were: L. J. Austin, J. P. Griffin and J. H. Pait. One of these dropped out before the examination was completed. The other two stuck it out, however, and their papers have been forwarded to the department.

It will be several weeks before the successful aspirant is announced.

COLLEGE PARK CONTEST CLOSES THURSDAY NIGHT

Committee Will Award $25 in Gold for Best Name for "Trade Board"

The contest for a slogan and a better name than that of the "board of trade" for the College Park commercial organization closes Thursday night. Answers mailed before midnight Thursday will be accepted, and must be in the hands of the publicity committee of the organization by Friday afternoon at 6 o'clock. The entire membership of the organization will, by vote at the meeting Friday night, select the name and slogan and the prize of $25 in gold will be awarded the lucky contestant.

The selection of the slogan and name is going to be some task, too. To date there have been more than 200 suggestions offered. Some lady in California went so far as to suggest changing the name of College Park. It is evident that she is not acquainted with College Park, for no citizen would stand for any change in the name of that thriving suburb.

Charles J. Haden, of Atlanta, and Walter G. Cooper, secretary of the Atlanta chamber of commerce, will address the meeting Friday night. Each will offer suggestions as to how best for the citizens to proceed to make of college Park a greater home and educational center.

The various committees of the organization will make their reports. The membership committee is ready to announce that the membership enrollment now numbers close to 100. The publicity committee will recommend a "post card" day, at which time every citizen will be asked to send a post card, carrying a beautiful view of the town. This same committee also will ask that the entertainment committee arrange a banquet and program for an evening with the newspaper men of Georgia and especially the Atlanta press.

The entertainment committee will at this meeting outline plans for a "home coming day." This is contemplated for the early fall, and at that time all people who have formerly lived in College Park will be asked to come back "home" for a day. This invitation will be extended to all former pupils of both Cox college and Georgia Military academy.

Plans of financing an active publicity campaign will be perfected at the meeting Friday night.

The meeting Friday night promises to be one of considerable interest and all members of the organization and citizens who have not yet joined are urged to be present.

M'ADOO SAYS 2 PER CENT BONDHOLDERS ARE LUCKY

New Retirement Provision Said to Increase Privileges of the Owners

WASHINGTON, July 31.—Secretary McAdoo emphatically declared today not call for more bonds of the United States 2 per cent issue. In national bank circulation of the decreased market value of those securities.

Treasury officials today stated that the provisions of the currency bill for the retirement of the bond secured currency was originally drawn in accordance with exact recommendations of a committee of the American Bankers' association and later was amended at the suggestion of Secretary McAdoo so that all of the outstanding 2 per cents would be retired in cash with interest at the end of twenty years.

The treasury holds that the bond retirement provision as now constructed materially increases the privileges of the holders of the 2 per cents.

PATRICK QUINLAN GETS ANOTHER YEAR'S SENTENCE

(By Associated Press.)

PATERSON, N. J., July 31.—Patrick Quinlan, an Industrial Workers of the World leader, active in the recent silk workers' strike, was sentenced today to serve a year in the county jail for saying last Saturday night at a Socialist meeting:

"Elect a Socialist mayor and then you won't have cops like Bummy Ryan batting you over the head with a club."

Quinlan admitted having used the language but denied that it was disorderly or inflammatory. He is now out on bail pending appeal from conviction and a two to seven year sentence in prison for inciting to riot during the strike. He will appeal today's decision also.

The Atlanta Passenger club will entertain at a dinner in the Georgia Pine room at the new Hotel Ansley Saturday night at 8 o'clock.

The occasion is in honor of Messrs. W. H. Leahy and C. F. Stewart. The former is severing his connections as general passenger agent of the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic road to go with the Atlanta chamber of commerce and the latter will accept the position of genral passenger agent of the Western Maryland road, with offices in Baltimore. Mr. Stewart is at present superintendent of the tariff bureau of the Southeastern Passenger association, but will leave for Baltimore about August 15.

The members of the club have planned to make this dinner one of the best they have yet given.

VACATION BIBLE SCHOOLS WILL CLOSE THURSDAY

Exhibition of Basketry Work at Second Baptist and Big Bethel Churches

The closing exercises of the Daily Vacation Bible schools of Atlanta will be held Thursday night after a very successful five weeks' session, the exercises forwhite people being held at the Second Baptist church and for colord at the Big Bethel church.

The organization is a national one, having a membership of 50,000 young people between the ages of five to eighteen years in thirty cities. Its object is to teach music, Bible study, and manual training in the most attractive manner possible.

There are nine such schools in Atlanta, with a membership of 2,700 and 65 teachers. Five of the schools are for white people and four for negroes. G. R. Buford, assistant pastor of the Central Presbyterian church, has supervision of the work.

At the closing exercises Thursday night there will be an exhibition of basketry, the best of which is to be sent to New York to be placed on exhibition.

TRAVELING SALESMAN DIES AT SISTER'S HOME

Mr. James Ross England died Wednesday afternoon about 1:30 o'clock at the home of his sister, Mrs. Morris Brien, at Langham and Gordon streets.

Mr. England was fifty-two years of age and had been connected with the Cote Piano Manufacturing company, of Fall River, Mass., as their southern sales manager for a number of years. He had been on the road for more than thirty years. He made his home in Dallas, Tex. Besides his sister he is survived by two sons.

The body was removed to Barclay & Brandon's chapel and the funeral arrangements will be announced upon the arrival of relatives from Texas.

ADULT PROBATION BILL PASSED WITHOUT DISSENT

By a unanimous vote of 27 to 0, the senate has passed the bill legalizing the suspension of sentences and providing for adult probation in Georgia.

This bill has already been recommended favorably by the judiciary committee of the house. This measure allows the court in its discretion to suspend sentence on first offenders and others where there are extenuating circumstances, but so arranges it that the court will continue to keep authority and direct the use of their liberty into channels that will make them better men.

THEATRES

(Criticisms of initial performances at the local theaters are written by members of The Journal staff. All other matter appearing in this column is furnished by the theater managements.)

FORSYTHE—Vaudeville.
GRAND—Motion Pictures.
BIJOU—Tabloid Musical Comedy.

Bob Daily and company continue to be the laughing success of the week at the Forsyth.

For next week, The Eight Berlin Madcaps, who were special features with Eddie Foy's "Over the River" company; Van Hooven, the Mad Magician, and Annie Kent, the Little Jester, will be among the features.

The Alaskan Siberia motion picture exhibition at the Grand this week is growing more popular with each day's record of attendance.

In addition to these pictures, there is a change daily of first-run high grade motion pictures, making an entertainment that is interesting from start to finish. The matinee prices are 10 cents, performances starting at 2:30, with night prices 10, 15 and 25 cents, starting at 8:30.

Next week, in addition to first-run pictures, "Zigomar," in three reels, will be exhibited the first half of the week, and "Balaco, the Demon Baboon," will be the exhibition for the last half of the week.

There are two vaudeville acts that are sharing honors in this week's performance at the Bijou. One is Miss Nina Straw, whose inimitable and energetic toe dancing ranks with the best that has been seen in Atlanta in some at the popular Marietta street theater. Manning Sisters, four remarkably pretty young ladies. These two acts would make a hit on any bill and they are especially pleasing, diversifying the musical comedy "The Girl from Dublin" this week at the Bijou. It is safe to say that the present attraction is pleasing quite as well as any musical comedy that has been offered this season at the popular Mrietta street theater, and a big attendance may be expected all the week.

ENGLISH COMMERCIAL GOES IN OLD CREW ST. SCHOOL

School Board Refuses to Pay Rent Asked by Episcopal Diocese

School desks and property will be moved into the old Crew Street school today in order that it may be used as temporary quarters for the English Commercial High school, following the decision of the school board on Wednesday not to renew the lease on the property of the Episcopal diocese on Washington street.

The board believes the return to the old school will mean a saving of $10,000 before the new $75,000 English Commercial building is erected, as it is estimated that at least five years will elapse before the structure can be occupied. The rental of the Episcopal property would amount to $140 a month, while the Crew street building can be made serviceable for $1,500.

It was first determined to build a $900 annex to the Episcopal property, but notice of a raise in rent caused the board to refuse to renew the lease. The Crew street building contains eight rooms, while the Episcopal property has but five.

August Furniture Sale

Beginning Tomorrow Rich's Offer Their Entire Stock of High-Grade Furniture at Price-Reductions of 10 to 50 Per Cent

Special Purchases Made by Our Buyer on His Recent Trip Are Also Offered at Savings of an Average Third

THERE in a nutshell is Rich's August Furniture Sale—all the furniture that we own, or have recently acquired by special purchase, is offered at savings of 10% to 50%.

Please remember that these savings come but twice a year—once in February and again in August.

1st—Because our own furniture is marked at such a close margin of profit that we cannot afford to take a mark-down more than once in six months.

2nd—Because we can advantageously acquire special purchases from the manufacturers only for February and August.

Two things more we especially stress in this August Sale:

1st. All the Furniture in this Sale is Sound

Sound furniture means no puttied-up knotholes, no defects glossed over with varnish, no "green" woods, no slovenly cabinet work, no imitations of any kind masquerading as genuine. When the day comes that we cannot offer genuinely sound furniture at genuine economies in a Furniture Sale or any other, we shall not hold such a sale.

2nd. All the Furniture is in Good Taste

Furniture, to be in good taste, must be both useful and beautiful. To be useful it must be well constructed and comfortable. To be beautiful it must be of proper proportion and harmonious throughout. It may be simple or highly ornamental, but it must have harmony of proportion and of design, and it must always be useful and comfortable.

Knowing these truths about good furniture, you may be sure we allow no other kind on our floors. The August Sale prices would mean nothing if the furniture were not in most instances remarkably fine and beautiful, and in every instance thoroughly good.

All Reductions Are Plainly Marked---Savings Evident at a Glance

Every piece of furniture retains its former price ticket and the new August Sale price ticket. Former and present prices are easily compared—the savings are evident at a glance.

N. B.—Customers wishing to profit by these special August prices, and desiring more than the usual 30 days' credit, can arrange terms to suit through our office.

ROSSER RIDDLES ONE OF THE STATE'S CHIEF WITNESSES

Detective John Black "Goes to Pieces" Under Rapid-Fire Cross-Questioning of Frank's Attorney at Afternoon Session

Action characterized the Wednesday afternoon session of the Frank trial, and it was the first time the tedious proceedings had taken on life enough to attract more than passing interest.

This action came in the fierce and merciless cross-examination of Detective John Black by Attorney Rosser, leading counsel for the defense. Black has taken a prominent part in the investigation of the Phagan murder, and it was expected that he would prove one of the state's principal witnesses, but before Mr. Rosser had finished with him he went all to pieces and admitted that he was hopelessly confused.

There were only two witnesses at the afternoon session—Detective Black and J. M. Gantt, the former shipping clerk at the pencil factory. Gantt was on the stand but about twenty minutes and the only two important points in his testimony were assertions that Frank knew Mary Phagan and that Frank seemed to be frightened and very nervous when the witness saw him at the pencil factory door on the evening of the murder.

DORSEY'S CHARGE.

There was a considerable colloquy between Solicitor Dorsey and Attorney Rosser as to the propriety of the questions framed by the solicitor. During this colloquy Mr. Dorsey, addressing the judge, declared: "I propose to show, your honor, that this bloody shirt was a plant, and that it was through suggestions made by the defendant that the detectives were induced to search Newt Lee's house."

The question was finally put and the witness rather hesitatingly replied that it was on Tuesday that the shirt had been found and that it was on Monday morning that Frank had suggested that the officers search his own house, and that it was also on Monday that the defendant had announced that there were skips in the time clock slips.

Court re-convened at 2 o'clock.

SECOND VISIT TO FRANK'S

Detective Black also told of going to Frank's home again Monday morning at 7 o'clock with Detective Haslett to ask him to come down to the police station to talk the murder over. Black said that he and Haslett had to wait on the porch while Frank ate breakfast, and when Frank finished his meal they accompanied him to headquarters. They arrived about 8 o'clock or 8:30.

Shortly after they got there he noticed Attorney Rosser and Herbert Haas. At 11:30 o'clock Monday morning Haas insisted to Chief Lanford that a search be made of Frank's house by officers, Frank accompanying them.

Solicitor Dorsey asked the witness just what Haas said to Lanford. Black replied that Haas stated he was Frank's lawyer and that in that capacity he would insist that nothing should be left undone to clear up the matter so far as Frank was concerned.

Solicitor Dorsey then asked the witness if on that morning Frank had consulted with Rosser and Arnold. He said he didn't know about Mr. Arnold, but that Frank had consulted with Rosser and Haas at police headquarters.

The witness was asked what conversation he had had with Newt Lee. He and Pinkerton Detective Scott suggested to Frank, replied the witness, that he take Newt Lee into a room and see if he could get anything out of him that would throw light on the murder.

The witness said that Frank had spoken very highly of the negro night watchman. The two were left in a room alone together for five or ten minutes, said the witness. Black was not able to overhear very well what was said in the room. Detective Scott and Black went into the room and Frank told them Newt Lee stuck to his first story of not knowing anything about the murder.

Black said that Frank told them he insisted to Lee that he, the negro, must know something about the murder as no one else was in the factory on that Saturday night. Black said that he talked with Frank about getting suggestions from him, and that Frank seemed to suspect Gantt and to believe that Lee might know something about it, inasmuch as Lee was the nightwatchman and as such it was his duty to go through the factory every thirty minutes.

"He told me," said the witness, "that Gantt came to the factory about 6 o'clock Saturday afternoon and that he left him there; that he had had some previous trouble with Gantt and at first had refused to let him go in and look for his shoes, but that he later told Lee to let him in and watch him while he was in the factory; that he had given this direction because Gantt knew the surroundings of the office."

Subsequent to this conversation, Gantt was arrested, said Black. Frank did not talk with Gantt. Frank did not refuse to talk with Lee.

The first mention was made of Jim Conley's name.

Solicitor Dorsey asked the witness if there had not been other suspects. Black said yes.

"Who were they?"

"Jim Conley was one," replied Black. "Did Gantt talk to Conley?"

"No."

"Did you talk to Frank on several occasions after he was arrested?"

"Yes. He seemed to be nervous, as any man under arrest would be, and was willing to answer questions."

Solicitor Dorsey asked that the statement be stricken, saying it was not an answer to his question. Judge Roan refused to rule it out.

Solicitor Dorsey asked this question: "Was Newt Lee nervous after he was arrested?"

Attorney Rosser objected.

"Well," said Solicitor Dorsey, "if you let him give this gratuitous opinion about Frank, isn't it fair to let me compare it with the demeanor of another man accused of the same crime?"

Attorney Rosser still objected. Judge Roan agreed to sustain Rosser, but told the solicitor that he would rule out Black's opinion if the solicitor would withdraw his question. This was done.

The solicitor then put his question in another form.

The solicitor then put his question in another form.

"After Frank was arrested, did you observe his deportment, conduct and appearance?"

"Yes, he was excited and sullen and didn't have much to say. Previously he had talked willingly."

Solicitor Dorsey announced he was through with the witness, and Attorney Rosser took up the cross-examination.

"You said Frank was 'released' Monday evening," began Attorney Rosser. "You mean then that he had been detained there against his will?"

Detective Black said that he had used the word 'released' inadvertently, and that Frank had not been under arrest that day.

Attorney Rosser attacked the statement that Frank had retained counsel Monday (?) about 8 or 8:30 o'clock.

"As a matter of fact, don't you know that it was 10 o'clock in the morning when I came to police station?"

Black answered, "No, I don't know it."

"What? You don't know it was 10 o'clock when I came?"

Black answered, "No, sir. I still think you were there at 8:30 o'clock."

"Were you in the room when I got there?"

"I was in the hall."

"Didn't you hear me go up and introduce myself to Mr. Frank? Didn't you know that I never had seen him before? Didn't you hear me ask him what they wanted with him? Didn't you hear him say that they wanted a statement from him? And didn't you hear me tell him to give it voluntarily?"

ROSSER RAPS LANFORD.

Detective Black answered in the negative. "I wasn't in the room," said he.

"Didn't you hear Chief Lanford call Frank into his private office with a snarl, like he was talking to a negro, and say, 'Come in here.'"

"No. Chief Lanford doesn't talk that way."

"You and Chief Lanford didn't want me in there, did you, Mr. Black? You didn't want me to hear what you had to say to him?"

"No, sir."

In answer to other questions, Black testified that Frank during his detention at the station house and in his examination by the coroner's jury, answered all questions readily.

Attorney Rosser reverted to the previous conversation which Black testified he had with Frank regarding another matter, before the murder of Mary Phagan occurred.

"Can you remember who was with you on that occasion?" he asked the witness.

"No—Bullard."

"What refreshed your memory so suddenly? As a matter of fact, aren't you figuring that your partner should have been there?"

"No, it just occurred to me."

Where were you when this conversation took place?"

"In the pencil factory."

"What part of the pencil factory?"

"Around the office."

"As a matter of fact, you can't swear truthfully that you spoke to him at all, can you?"

"Not positively."

THE PHONE CONVERSATION.

Regarding the telephone conversation when Detective Starnes called Frank on the morning after the murder, Attorney Rosser asked Black if he could remember what Starnes said.

"No, sir," replied Black.

"Did you have Newt Lee in your custody at that time?"

"I don't remember."

"What time did you get to the undertaking establishment?"

"About 6:30 o'clock, to the best of my recollection."

"As a matter of fact, wasn't the sun high and hot when you got back?"

"Why—I don't tell Frank, until after you got in the automobile, that a girl had been killed at the factory?"

"I wanted to see the effect of the news on Frank."

"When you really want to remember anything, you write it down, don't you, Mr. Black?"

"Well—Yes."

"Didn't Frank go upstairs and put his collar and tie on?"

"No, sir."

"You don't see things like other men do you, Mr. Black?"

"I suppose I do."

"How long did it take Frank to put on his collar and tie?"

"I don't remember."

"Did he tie his tie, or was it a hang-me-on?"

"It was a cravat."

ROSSER GRILLS BLACK.

"How long did you stay out there?"

"Maybe not ten minutes."

"And Frank talked freely to you in the automobile, didn't he?"

"Yes."

"You took him to the undertaking establishment?"

"Yes."

"How did you say you went into the undertaking place—in what order; the undertaker first, Rogers, Frank and then yourself?"

"Yes."

"Frank was between you and the body?"

"Yes."

"You saw the girl's face?"

"Yes."

"Well, then, Frank had an opportunity to see her face. He was closer to her than you?"

"Yes."

"Now about that curtain. It opened into a sleeping apartment, didn't it?"

"I don't know."

"As a matter of fact, you and Frank stood just inside the door, didn't you?"

"Yes."

"You on the left and Frank on the right?"

"I think so."

"On that occasion?" he asked the witness.

"No—Bullard."

"What refreshed your memory so suddenly? As a matter of fact, aren't you figuring that your partner should have been there?"

"No, it just occurred to me."

Where were you when this conversation took place?"

"In the pencil factory."

"What part of the pencil factory?"

"Around the office."

"As a matter of fact, you can't swear truthfully that you spoke to him at all, can you?"

"Not positively."

THE PHONE CONVERSATION.

Regarding the telephone conversation when Detective Starnes called Frank on the morning after the murder, Attorney Rosser asked Black if he could remember what Starnes said.

"No, sir," replied Black.

"Did you have Newt Lee in your custody at that time?"

"I don't remember."

"What time did you get to the undertaking establishment?"

"About 6:30 o'clock, to the best of my recollection."

"As a matter of fact, wasn't the sun high and hot when you got back?"

"Why—I don't tell Frank, until after you got in the automobile, that a girl had been killed at the factory?"

"I wanted to see the effect of the news on Frank."

"When you really want to remember anything, you write it down, don't you, Mr. Black?"

"Well—Yes."

"Didn't Frank go upstairs and put his collar and tie on?"

"No, sir."

"You don't see things like other men do you, Mr. Black?"

"I suppose I do."

"How long did it take Frank to put on his collar and tie?"

"I don't remember."

"Did he tie his tie, or was it a hang-me-on?"

"It was a cravat."

ROSSER GRILLS BLACK.

"How long did you stay out there?"

"Maybe not ten minutes."

"And Frank talked freely to you in the automobile, didn't he?"

"Yes."

"You took him to the undertaking establishment?"

"Yes."

"How did you say you went into the undertaking place—in what order; the undertaker first, Rogers, Frank and then yourself?"

"Yes."

"Frank was between you and the body?"

"Yes."

"You saw the girl's face?"

"Yes."

"Well, then, Frank had an opportunity to see her face. He was closer to her than you?"

"Yes."

"Now about that curtain. It opened into a sleeping apartment, didn't it?"

"I don't know."

"As a matter of fact, you and Frank stood just inside the door, didn't you?"

"Yes."

"You on the left and Frank on the right?"

"I think so."

"CERTAIN AT UNDERTAKER'S.

"Mr. Black, that curtain was about 10 feet from the little opening, wasn't it?"

"I don't know, sir."

"To have gone behind that curtain, Frank would have had to walk several feet out of his way from the opening where he stood?"

"I don't know, sir."

"You won't swear, Mr. Black, will you, that Frank went behind that curtain?"

"I think he did."

"You were standing in the same relation to the curtain as Frank, were you not?"

"No."

"This sleeping room was about six feet off, was it not?"

"No."

"Frank didn't go behind the curtain, did he?"

Black didn't reply.

"You know that ain't so, don't you?"

"I don't know."

"You went upstairs into the factory with Frank?"

"Yes."

"He unlocked the safe without trouble at the first effort?"

Black nodded.

"And he took the book out at the first reach?"

"Yes."

"And he carried it and put it on the table?"

"Yes."

"And he opened it at the right place?"

"Yes."

"He ran his finger down the column of figures until he reached Mary Phagan's name?"

"Yes."

"And immediately he informed you that he had paid Mary Phagan $1.20.?"

"Yes."

"You went through the factory with Frank?"

"Yes."

"Who else went?"

"I don't know—several people."

"A whole horde of 'em, wasn't it?"

"I don't know. There were several."

"And none of you saw the splotch said to be blood?"

"No, sir."

"None of you saw the spots in the hallway, close to the dreser?"

"No."

"How many of you went over the building?"

"I don't know exactly."

"Perhaps thirty people?"

"I don't know."

"This large horde, made up of officers and curiosity seekers, went over the factory and nobody saw these alleged blood spots?"

"No, sir."

"How long was the factory open on Sunday morning—till about 12 o'clock was it not?"

"I don't know."

"How many times did you go the factory that morning?"

"Twice."

"You were there quite a while the first time, were you not?"

"Yes."

"Detective Starnes went over the factory with you, did he not?"

"Yes."

"Campbell and Beavers, too?"

"I don't know about Beavers, but Chief Lanford did."

"And no blood spots were discovered that day?"

"Not so far as I know."

"You saw Frank at the clock?"

"Yes."

"He opened the clock and took out a slip?"

"Yes."

"Darley was there?"

"I don't know. I don't remember being there."

"Who held down the lever?"

"I don't know. He didn't have to hold the lever down."

"Boots Rogers held it down, didn't he?"

"I don't recollect."

Black then stated that he believed Rogers held the lever while Frank put a new slip in. He didn't think anyone held it down when Frank took the old slip out.

"A moment ago, you didn't have any recollection, did you?" You've got it now, though, haven't you?"

Black smiled feebly.

"How long did you keep Frank at the station house that morning? From about 8:30 until 11:30, didn't you?"

"He stayed there," answered the witness.

"Well, that's what you meant. You meant you kept him there, didn't you?"

"I could say we kep you there, but we didn't," responded the witness.

FRANK'S SURPRISING SLIP.

"When did Frank turn oper this slip that he took out of the clock "

"I don't know."

"Sunday morning?"

"I don't remember."

"Didn't you tell Mr. Dorsey a few minutes ago that he turned over the slip on Monday morning?"

"I don't remember."

"Look here, Black. Is your memory so bad you can't remember what you told Dorsey twenty or thirty minutes ago? And yet you attempt here to state the words of conversations that occurred more than three months ago?"

Witness did not answer.

"You heard Frank say it was mistaken about the way the time slips were punched—that at first he examined them only in a casual way?"

"I don't recollect."

Mr. Rosser referred to conversations which Black had had with J. M. Gantt, and brought forth the statement that Frank had charged a shortage against Gantt before Gantt was discharged, and that he had given orders that Gantt not be admitted to the factory.

"I wiesh to examine this witness no further now, your honor, but I want to call your honor's attention to the rule that if we want to use him to impeach another witness who follows him, we may call him back to the stand."

The statement of Attorney Rosser was taken to indicate that there is a possibility that the defense may use no witnesses.

NEWT LEE'S SHIRT.

Mr. Rosser asked Black if he had searched Newt Lee's house. Black answered that he had, and that he found a bloody shirt. The shirt, which had been in the possession of the solicitor general, was exhibited to the witness by Mr. Rosser and was identified by him. He found the shirt at the bottom of a barrel at Lee's residence, said the detective. He brought the shirt to police headquarters and showed it to Lee. Solicitor Dorsey objected, and Judge Roan held that New Lee's admission that the shirt belonged to him could not be introduced in evidence.

Solicitor Dorsey took up the redirect examination.

The solicitor made the statement that he would try to show that the shirt found at Newt Lee's house was a plant of the defense. This statement came during an argument between the lawyers, and was precipitated by this question of the solicitor: "What did Frank say about Lee telling or not telling all that he knew about the crime?"

Attorney Rosser objected to Black answering that question.

The solicitor explaining his motive in asking it, said, " I want to show that Frank was trying to point suspicion at Newt Lee. I want to show that he wanted his own house searched so that when the officers had gone through it and nothing had been found there, he could tell them to go and search Newt Lee's house. Our contention is that this shirt was a plant and Frank's request was a ruse to get the police to search his house and then Newt Lee's house and thus throw suspicion on the negro. The shirt was a part of the scheme."

THE QUESTION ALLOWED.

Judge Roan allowed the question. Detective Black, answering it, said that Frank declared Lee hadn't told all he knew.

Solicitor Dorsey asked: "Did Frank at any time tell you that Lee had time to go home and get back to the factory during the night?"

Black replied that after Frank was supposed to have looked at the tape the second time, he (Frank) had made that remark to him (the witness.)

"Did you search Newt Lee's home?"

"Yes."

"Was it before or after Frank called your attention to these discrepancies in the time slip?"

"Afterward."

Solicitor Dorsey took the shirt and handed it to the detective.

"Which side of the shirt is the blood on?"

"On both sides."

"Does it look like it had been put on one side and then had soaked through?"

"I can't tell," answered the detective.

"Now, Mr. Black, I want to get this one point clear. You told me that you had one conversation with Mr. Frank on the Monday morning after the murder, and I understood you to tell Mr. Rosser that you didn't have any. What about that?"

"To the best of my recollection I had one conversation with Frank on that day."

ROSSER GROWS ANGRY.

Jumping to his feet and advancing toward the witness in a threatening manner, Attorney Rosser shook his finger at him and demanded:

"Didn't you say that personally you had no conversation with Frank about these slips?"

"No, sir."

"Well, what time Monday did you have this conversation with Frank?"

After hesitating for a moment or two, the witness replied that he could not remember.

Glowering at the witness, Mr. Rosser demanded:

"Black, didn't you say time and time again that you couldn't say whether it was before or after you talked about the slips that you went to Lee's house?"

"I said it was ater I talked about the slips."

"Look here, Black, isn't it in the record—right here in the record—that several times over you admitted that you couldn't tell whether you went to Newt Lee's house after the conversation about the slips or before?"

"I won't say."

"Isn't it true that you never did discuss these slips with Frank "

"I remember on one occasion Frank said the slips were misplunched, and that was what caused me to go to Lee's house."

Before the witness had finished his answer, Mr. Rosser was shaking his finger at him and putting this question:

"What I want is for you to tell me if you haven't sworn already that you couldn't say whether tthis talk about the slips occurred on Monday."

"I said I didn't remember, but I had gone out after Frank suggested there were mispunches."

Mr. Rosser started to fire another question at the witness, when the latter interrupted him to say:

BLACK ADMITS HE'S CONFUSED.

"Look here, Mr. Rosser, I don't like to admit that I'm balled up, but you've got me crosed up and I don't know where I'm at. I want to tell the truth——"

"Come down, Black," said Mr. Rosser. But before the witness could leave the stand, Solicitor Dorsey propound this question:

"When was it, Mr. Black, that you first heard Mr. Frank d iscuss these punch slips?"

"Sunday morning."

"When was it Frank told you that what he had said on Sunday about the slips was wrong and that there had been skips?"

Attorney Rosser objected, insisting that this ground had been gone over with the witness. Judge Roan sustained the objection.

Solicitor Dorsey asked:

"What day was it you knew that Frank changed his statement?"

Attorney Rosser objected to this, declaring it was immaterial.

"Well, what day did Frank tell you these slips were not correct" amended the solicitor.

"To the best of my knowledge, it was on Monday."

"Come diwn, Mr. Black."

"Yes, come down, Mr. Black, echoed Mr. Rosser, with a sneer.

As the witness was leaving the stand, it was announced that Mrs. J. W. Coleman, the mother of Mary Phagan, would be recalled. Some of the bailiffs misunderstood and thought that Mr. Rosser desired that Black resume the witness chair. To this mistake Mr. Rosser shouted: "Not on your life."

MRS. COLEMAN RECALLED.

Mrs. Coleman was recalled by Attorney Rosser.

"Did Mary, on the day she left home the last time, carry a little mesh bag?"

"Yes."

"Thatt's all," said Mr. Rosser.

"Describe that bag," asked Solicitor Dorsey.

"It was just a plain silver mesh bag," said Mrs. Coleman.

Mr. Dorsey produced the bloody handkerchief and the parasol. The latter was identified posttively by Mrs. Coleman as having belonged to Mary. She said she was almost certain that the handkerchief belonged to Mary.

Mrs. Coleman left the witness stand and was given a seat in the court room beside her husband, J. W. Coleman, who has watched every step of the trial.

J. M. Gantt was called to the stand.

"Were you ever employed at the National Pencil factory?" asked Solicitor Dorsey.

"Yes, from January 1 to about April 7, when I was discharged by Mr. Frank."

"Why were you discharged?"

"For an alleged shortage."

"Did you know Mary Phagan?"

"Yes, I knew her when she was a little girl. She was born on a farm near where I lived. But I hadn't seen her for years until I met her in the pencil factory."

"Did Leo M. Frank know Mary Phagan?"

"Yes."

"How do you know that he did?"

"One day she had been in the office talking to me about a mistake in her time. When she left, Mr. Frank turned to me and said, 'You seem to know Mary pretty well.'"

"When was that occurrence?"

"How intimate were you and Mary?"

"I knew her very well when she was a child. And I saw her frequently at the factory."

On questions from Solicitor Dorsey, Gantt said that he worked in the office on the second floor and in the shipping department there. Mary Phagan worked in the rear of the second floor. Frank worked in the office near him, said Gantt.

RETURNED TO FACTORY.

"From April 7, when you were discharged, to April 26, had you been back to the factory?"

"Yes, twice."

"Did you see Frank?"

"Yes, both times."

"Did he offer any objection to your presence?"

"No."

"What do you know about one girl getting the pay for another girl with Frank's knowledge and consent?"

Attorney Rosser objected to this question as irrelevant, but Solicitor Dorsey declared he later would show its relvancy, and was allowed to proceed.

"Mr. Frank had no objection to one girl getting the pay envelope for another if I knew the parties."

"Were you in the habit of helping Mary?"

"No."

"Explain everything in connection with the alleged shortage."

"One Saturday after we had gotten the money for the payroll and it had been checked off and found to be correct, after it had been put in the envelopes and distributed, one of the men came back and said he was more than $2 short. I didn't know anything about it, and told him to see Frank. After he had talked with Frank, Frank came out and asked me if I knew anything about it. I said I didn't. Then Frank said he was not going to make it good. I said that neither was I. A little bit later he called me in and discharged me."

TIME CLOCK AGAIN.

"Do you know anything about the time clock?"

"Yes."

"How long would it take a man to make punches for twelve hours?"

"About five minutes."

Solicitor Dorsey asked Gantt if he had known of Newt Lee failing to make a round on account of the time clock. Attorney Rosser objected, and Judge Roan sustained the objection.

The witness asked Gantt who took his place in the pencil factory. Gantt replied that he didn't know. Solicitor Dorsey asked if previous to his discharge Frank had said anything about Gantt's work.

"He said he had the best office force that he ever had."

"Was it possible for Frank to sit at his desk and see the register clock?"

It was possible, said Gantt, if the safe door was closed.

Solicitor Dorsey asked if Frank frequently fixed the tape in the clock.

"Not as I know of there," said Gantt.

He was questioned about the evening of April 26, when he met Frank came down the steps. He first saw Frank just after he left the stairway and was walking toward the front door, Frank, he said, looked up and saw him. Frank then recoiled and hesitated, as if in doubt; and then came on out. As he came up the little dip to the sidewalk, and toward the street level, he jumped back a step. Frank was nervous and pale, said Gantt. Having his head, he hesitated and stuttered, said the witness.

ON CROSS EXAMINATION.

On cross-examination, Attorney Rosser questioned Gantt upon his testimony before the coroner's jury, reading a portion of it in which was included this question: "Did supposed to have been asked of him by the coroner: "Did Frank know Mary Phagan?" And the reply to it on the transcript was, "I suppose so. She was right there in the factory all the time."

Mr. Rosser asked him about that.

Gantt admitted that the record was correct as far as it went.

Both sides told Gantt to step down.

Attorney Rosser arose. "Your honor," said he, "we have an insurance policy here for one of the jurors to sign. The lawyers for both sides examined it and turned it over to Deputy Sheriff Miner for the juror, Monroe S.S. Woodward, to sign. It was a life insurance policy."

Court adjourned at 4:40 o'clock.

Frank was taken out ahead of the jury and whisked back to the county jail in an automobile. The jury followed.

Not so long ago Charles W. Murphy announced that he wouldn't take $20,000 for Pitcher Fred Toney. Toney was recently released to Toledo, all major league clubs having waived on him. This is a fair example of Murphy's judgment.

Girl at Frank Trial Thought Ozonaters Were "Dictagraphs"

She had never seen a murder trial before, and when the young lawyer took her into the court room where Leo M. Frank is on trial for his life, she was, of course, very excited.

He showed her the defendant, the two women beside him; the judge presiding over all; the solicitor; the attorneys for the defense; the witness stammering on the stand beneath a gruelling cross-fire of questions.

Then her gaze wandered. She took in the audience and the fittings of the room. She didn't know much about the real status of the case and wasn't very much interested in the testimony.

Not until her eyes fell on the ozonaters humming on each side of the court room did her face brighten. She grasped her escort's arm.

"There," she whispered excitedly, "I know what those buzzy things are, anyway. They're the dictographs."

SOLICITOR DORSEY EXAMINING WITNESS AT FRANK TRIAL

PENCIL FACTORY MACHINIST GIVES STARTLING TESTIMONY

ed for thieving. Frank reached home at 6:30 o'clock and at 6:30 tried to get the night watchman to ask him if Gantt had left. He didn't get him then, but did get him at 7 o'clock. He went to bed about 9:30 o'clock.

SEARCH IN FACTORY.

"After Frank had detailed his movements, said the witness, he and Scott and Darley went through the factory. Darley was the spokesman, pointing out the supposed blood spots, and the point where the hair was said to have been found. From the second floor they went to the basement through the scuttle hole, where Scott saw the place where the body and several objects were found.

Solicitor Dorsey asked Scott if he observed Frank's manner when Frank engaged him.

SCOTT SURPRISES DORSEY.

"Yes, it was perfectly natural and he exhibited no sign of nervousness."

"How did Frank breathe?"

"Between words he seemed to take a deep breath."

Attorney Rosser objected to the question and answer. In reply, the solicitor said he was surprised by the evidence of Detective Scott, and that he had been misinformed as to what his testimony would be. He then asked permission of the court to ask the witness some questions to refresh his memory. This was granted.

"How did his eyes look?"

"They were large and piercing."

The witness said further that Frank sighed several times during the conversation in Frank's private office. Attorney Rosser entered another objection, and said that the answers of Detective Scott were conclusions merely inasmuch as he had never seen Frank before that time.

Scott testified, after looking at Frank in court, that his eyes looked then as they did during the conversation.

"Didn't you say to me—"

Attorney Rosser objected, interrupting. Judge Roan sustained the objection.

"How about his complexion, Mr. Scott?" asked Dorsey.

"He was a little pale at that time."

"What pauses did he make in this conversation?"

Attorney Rosser objected, and was sustained.

"How did he give this narrative?"

ANSWER STRICKEN.

"Very specifically as to time."

Attorney Rosser asked that the question and answer mbe stricken. The details themselves were the best evidence, said he. The answer was a conclusion. Judge Roan sustained the objection.

"What did he state with reference to his movements about the time Mary Phagan entered the factory?"

"He was not very definite. He said she came about 12:10."

"What did he say about having heard anybody talking before she came?"

"I don't remember that he said anything about that."

Solicitor Dorsey asked Judge Roan if he could see the written reports that Scott had made to him to refresh the witness' mind. Attorney Rosser objected, and before there was a ruling on the issue the solicitor asked:

GAVE REPORTS TO DEFENSE.

"Did you not furnish your reports to the defendant?"

"Yes."

Attorney Rosser demanded, "Whom do you mean?"

"To Sig Montag, Herbert Haas and Luther Z. Rosser." Scott added that the reports were sent either oy special messenger or by mail.

"Did the Pinkertons furnish reports to counsel?" asked Solicitor Dorsey.

"Yes."

"Reports that they could read?"

"Yes."

The solicitor picked up some papers and asked:

"Is this one of the reports that you furnished to the state?"

"I don't know until I look at my original notes."

The solicitor requested the witness to refer to his original notes. The court permitted this. The witness did so. He started to read his notes. The defense objected. The court sustained the objection, explaining to the witness that while he could refresh his memory from the notes, he could not read the notes aloud to the court, but must give his evidence from his mind as it had been refreshed.

BEFORE GIRL ENTERED FACTORY.

"I now say," continued Detective Scott, "that Frank stated to me that he heard the voices before 12 o'clock."

"Was this before or after Mary Phagan came to the factory?" inquired the solicitor.

"Before."

"What did Frank tell you about the location of the voices"

"He told me that he thought the voices were near the stairway, although he could not say for certain, as he had remained inside the office himself."

"What did Frank say to you about what happened when he went home that Saturday?"

"He said he went home for luncheon."

DIDN'T SAY HOW LONG.

"Did he say how long he remained there?"

"He did not."

"Did he say whether he ate lunch?"

"No, sir."

"What did Frank say to you on that occasion with reference to Gantt?"

"During the conversation in Frank's office, Frank said to me that Gantt knew Mary Phagan and was familiar and intimate with her."

"Did he tell you how he knew?"

"He did not."

"What, if anything, was said to you by Frank about Gantt's attention to Mary Phagan?"

Attorney Rosser interrupted, declaring: "Questions like these grate on my ears like the false notes from a piano."

Judge Roan ruled that it was a leading question and could not be put.

Solicitor Dorsey modified the question. "Was anything said by Frank about Gantt's attention to Mary Phagan?" he asked.

"Not that I recall," replied Scott.

SAYS HE WAS MISLED.

The solicitor sought to question the witness as to what he, Scott, had told him, the solicitor, on this point. Attorney Rosser objected, declaring that what the witness had told the solicitor was not material.

"Your honor," said the solicitor, "I've been misled on this proposition by the witness. If there ever was a case for a leading question, this is one; and it is entirely within the court's discretion to permit such a question. This witness is a detective. He is in the employ of the defendant. I certainly should be allowed to refresh his memory as to what he told me about his conversation with Frank."

Mr. Rosser made the point that before the solicitor could proceed along this line he must charge that he had been entrapped by the witness. The solicitor did not insist that he had been entrapped, but did maintain that he had been misled on this particular point.

Detective Scott, addressing the solicitor, demanded to know if the solicitor was intimating that he was holding back any evidence.

Solicitor Dorsey addressed his reply to the court.

"I do say, your honor, that I did expect this witness to testify differently on this proposition."

Attorney Rosser renewed his objection, and insisted that before the solicitor could proceed further on his line of questioning he must charge that the witness had entrapped him. The colloquy was suspended until the attorneys on both sides could consult the code.

Mr. Dorsey explained that he was not trying to impeach the witness, but sought to refresh his memory. He claimed the right to ask leading questions.

"He has just had a lapse of memory," said the solicitor. "And I want to read to him notes which I made in his presence about a conversation between us."

Attorney Rosser objected, and Judge Roan sustained him.

"Didn't I make a memoranda in your presence?" asked the solicitor.

DIDN'T READ DORSEY'S NOTES.

"Yes, but I didn't read your memoranda."

"Did Frank discuss the friendliness between Gantt and Mary Phagan?"

"Yes he said that they were familiar and intimate, and that Gantt paid a good deal of attention to her."

"Do you know when Gantt was arrested?"

"He was at police headquarters when I went down there after the conference with Frank."

"Was any suggestion made to you subsequent to your employment by an attorney of Leo M. Frank relative to your suppression of evidence?"

Mr. Rosser objected immediately. Before Judge Roan ruled the solicitor withdrew the question. Attorney Rosser demurred. "I'll withdraw the objection," said he.

"About the first week in May," said Scott, "Mr. Pierce and I went to the office of Herbert J. Haas, attorney for Frank to hold a conference relative to the Pinkerton's position in the investigation. Itold him that there was strong suspicion against Frank."

The last sentence was ruled out.

"After a conversation, Mr. Haas said that he would rather we would submit our reports to him before we did to the police. We told him we would get out of the case before we would do that."

"Who did the most talking about your inspection trip through the factory?" asked the solicitor.

"Darley, but Frank talked some,"

BLOOD SPOTS CLIPPED UP?

Scott continued that he saw the place on the floor of the metal room where the supposed blood spots had been clipped up. Some white substance had been smeared there.

"Are you sure it was a smear or was it a spill?" asked the solicitor.

"It was a smear."

"Did Frank show unusual signs of nervousness at that first interview you had with him?"

After objection and argument, the question was allowed.

"He was a little pale and sighed four or five times."

"Was he composed."

"No."

"What happened at the police station Tuesday night in the presence of this defendant?"

"Frank and I were together in a private room when Detective Black came up and said Newt Lee wasn't telling all he knew. At that time I also expressed this same opinion. We asked Frank if he would go into the private room and talk to Lee as an employer to an employe and see if he couldn't get something out of him. They were together alone for about ten minutes. At the end of that time, Detective Black and I went in. Lee evidently hadn't finished some reply he was making to a question by Mr. Frank. As we entered the room and took seats beside them he said to Frank: 'It's awful hard for me to be handcued to this chair.' Frank hung his head and said 'They've got me, too.'"

"What was the appearance and deportment of Frank at the police station?"

"He was very nervous. He was squirming in his chair, hung his head, didn't appear to know what to do with his hands, was pale, and sighed heavily."

"How were his eyes then?"

"Just the same as they are now. You can't tell anything by his eyes."

"Did you hear any conversation between Frank and Lee about the punch clock?"

"I have a slight recollection of one Monday afternoon at the police station."

"What did Frank say about that?"

"He said that the first punch Lee made was at 6:23 p. m., and the last one at 3 o'clock. No discrepancy was remarked by Frank then."

"Describe Frank's appearance and deportment on April 29 at 11 a. m., when he was taken into custody."

"We went to the factory and told Frank that he had better go to police headquarters with us. He was trembling and was very pale. He had nothing to say in the automobile on the way to the station house."

"Did you see Mr. Rosser with Frank on Monday previous to Frank's arrest on Tuesday?"

"I did not."

"Illustrate to the jury Frank's manner when Frank stated to Lee 'Well, they've got me, too.'"

FRANK'S MANNER.

"When Black and I entered the room Lee was just finishing an answer to one of Frank's questions. He was saying 'It's awful hard, Mr. Frank, on me. You see, they've got me chained to this chair.' Lee repeated this about three times. Frank hung his head, squirmed in his chair, and holding his hands in the air said, 'Well, they've got me, too.'"

"Did you see Frank at the jail on Saturday, May 3, 1913 "

"I did."

"Did you have any conversation with him then?"

"I did."

"Tell the jury what you said to Frank and what Frank said to you."

"I went to Frank's cell in company with Black. I asked Frank: 'From the time you went back to the factory from Montag Brothers until you went upstairs where Denham and White were working, did you remain in your office?' 'Yes,' Frank answered. 'From the time you got back to the factory until Mary Phagan arrived at 12:10, did you remain in your office?' Frank answered 'yes.' 'From 12 noon up to 12:30 of that Saturday, were you in your private office?' Frank answered 'yes.'"

"Up to this conversation you had with Frank in the jail, had he made any similar statement?"

"No."

"He did tell you that he was in the office all the time from 12 to 12:30 o'clock?"

"Yes."

"Did you have any conversation with Frank as t ossuspects previous to the offering of rewards?"

"No."

SEARCHING THE FACTORY.

"Did you make any search of the factory immediately after your employment?"

"I did."

"Did you make any search of the area around the elevator and the radiator on the street floor?"

"I did. I made a surface search. I didn't dig into the dirt."

"What did you find?"

"Nothing."

"Did you find a pay envelope, a purse, a ribbon, a bludgeon, a stick, or anything like these?"

"No, sir."

"When did you make this search?"

"Right after I was engaged. I ran the elevator up and down, and examined the scuttle hole or trap hole and ladder."

Attorney Rosser took up the cross-examination.

"You made a report as to what happened between you and Haas, didn't you?" asked Mr. Rosser.

"Yes."

ROSSER'S CROSS-EXAMINATION.

"The report reads something like this, doesn't it? 'This p. m., H. B. P. and I discussed agency's position. Haas said he wanted murderer caught regardless of who it was.'"

"Yes."

Solicitor Dorsey objected on the ground that a self-serving declaration of an attorney for the defendant was not admissible. Mr. Rosser contended that he had the right to go into the whole conversation. Judge Roan sustained Mr. Rosser.

In the discussion of the matter Mr. Rosser said he wanted to make it clear that at no time had attorneys for the defendant asked that evidence be suppressed. He wanted the witness to answer a question relative to a conversation with him. Rosser. Solicitor Dorsey objected. After some discussion and after he had made the remark "Mr. Dorsey is a little fractious this morning," Mr. Rosser withdrew the question about his conversation, and asked Scott:

"Did Mr. Haas request you to suppress any evidence?"

"No. He said he wanted it submitted to him before it went to the police, and we told him that we could not do that."

SCOTT AND ROSSER TILT.

Scott proved a difficult witness for Mr. Rosser. The detective made frequent and sharp retorts from the witness chair, and comments on Mr. Rosser's tactics in trying to tangle him. Scott's answers were direct and pointed.

Mr. Rosser produced a transcript of the evidence by Scott at the coroner's jury. Mr. Rosser asked Scott if when he was before the coroner's jury he told what Frank had said in relation to Gantt. Scott replied that he did not remember.

"Did you mention this remark by Mr. Frank in your report to the defense?"

"No, because the day I made this report Gantt was released from police headquarters and was regarded no longer as a suspect. It is customary in Pinkerton reports also to mention no names of suspects."

"You didn't testify before the coroner's jury about hearing Frank say 'They've got me, too,' when he and Lee had their interview, did you?"

"I don't remember whether I did or not."

"You didn't tell the coroner's jury about Frank hanging his head, did you?"

Scott replied that he didn't remember.

Mr. Rosser read from the transcript. "See if this is what you testified before the coroner's jury," he asked. He read a lengthy excerpt from Scott's testimony. It contained neither of these assertions. Scott said he assumed that was what he said before the coroner's jury.

A DIFFERENT WITNESS.

"You should remember, Mr. Rosser," added Scott, "that I was answering only questions that were asked me by the coroner, and that he didn't draw out and cross question me like you and Mr. Dorsey have done."

Mr. Rosser read another excerpt from Scott's testimony before the coroner.

"'I am working for the interests of the pencil factory.'" Mr. Rosser read. "You didn t represent Frank personally, then, did you?"

"I was engaged by Frank."

In reply to a retort by Mr. Rosser, Scott said: "It's impossible for any man to repeat verbatim what he said years ago."

Attorney Rosser took out of a leather case some papers, perhaps notes. "There is some reference to Gantt there, isn't there?" he asked. "About Gantt knowing Mary Phagan intimately. Did you have these notes when you were writing your reports to me?"

"We never put in the names of suspects," replied Scott.

"When you were before the coroner's jury you didn't say Frank was nervous at the pencil factory, did you?"

Scott said he didn't know—that his testimony there was the same as in court.

"When you were before the coroner, these facts were fresh in your mind, were they not?"

"Yes."

"And you didn't relate them?"

"I wasn't asked. There is something different in telling what you know, and going into detailed sheets."

"Well, let's see about these detailed sheets," said Mr. Rosser, picking up the transcript of testimony by Scott before the coroner's inquest here. Mr. Scott, ten pages in which you detailed your testimony. In all these ten pages, you only told of two matters, your conversation with Frank, and that evening with Frank and Newt Lee."

"Yes."

"And you didn't state in any of it about this matter? When you were telling about that conversation with Frank, you said nothing about him being nervous?"

"I said he hung his head."

"Let me see," said Mr. Rosser, examining the transcript. "I don't find that you used anything about Frank crossing his legs, putting his hands up, and things of that kind."

"No."

"It was not until three or four weeks ago that you told these things to Dorsey?"

"I told him when Mr. Dorsey asked me the question."

"Then it took ten pages to carry your brief details?"

"I guess Dorsey has a line of attack that the coroner did not have."

"What do you mean by 'line of attack,' Mr. Scott?"

"Line of questions."

ROSSER'S FAST QUESTIONS.

"And you didn't says a word about Frank putting his hands up to his face?"

"No."

"You are a trained detective?"

"Yes."

"And you make a habit of noticing the appearance and actions of people?"

"Yes."

"And you never told the coroner about this?"

"I've got more sense than to tell all I know at a coroner's inquest."

"Th-huh!" grunted Mr. Rosser. "Weren't you recalled, Mr. Scott, and asked if you had told all that you knew?"

Solicitor Dorsey interrupted with an objection against Mr. Rosser's method of questioning the witness.

"Your honor, the witness provoked me," said Mr. Rosser. Addressing the witness again, Mr. Rosser asked: "You undertook to tell all you knew at the coroner's inquest?"

"Only in a general way."

"General way, eh?"

"I was not such a fool as to go in with a fine-tooth comb at a preliminary hearing," added Scott.

Mr. Rosser called the court's attention to the manner in which the witness was replying to his questions. Before he had finished, Solicitor Dorsey was on his feet, making the point that the witness repeatedly had explained to Mr. Rosser why he had not testified everything at the inquest. He had stated that he was not accustomed to give out everything at preliminary hearings, and that he was not asked as to certain facts.

ROSSER CHANGES TACTICS.

Mr. Rosser changed abruptly his line of questioning. He asked the witness if Darley and others were not present when he walked with Frank in Frank's office. They were, answered the witness. They saw and heard all that was said.

"Black was present at the station house when you talked with Frank, was he not?"

"Yes."

"Your agency works with the police, does it not?"

"Yes, on criminal investigations."

"You always hook up with the police and go up down the road with them, don't you?"

"We work in harmony with the police."

"You quit work if you don't agree with the police?"

"We never clash over views."

"Were you in the pencil factory on Sunday morning, April 27?"

"No, it was Monday afternoon about 4:30 o'clock that I first went to the pencil factory."

"Did you testify before the coroner about any blood stains?"

"Yes."

"Let me read you what you said before the coroner's jury: 'Also to a point about ten feet from the lathe, supposed blood stains had been chipped up from the floor by the police.' Did you testify to anything about the white smear over these blood stains?"

"No."

"Thees original notes of yours—when did you make them?"

"All in Frank's private office on Monday afternoon, April 28."

"On your trip through the factory that afternoon, didn't Darley do some talking?"

"Yes. Both Darley and Frank talked."

"Wasn't it Darley who told you about Gantt being familiar with Mary Phagan?"

"No—it was Frank."

SCOTT ADMITS UNCERTAINTY.

"I simply want to refresh your memory, Mr. Scott. Are you absolutely clear whether you got that statement from Frank or Darley?"

"No, not exactly clear; but Frank did the talking in the office and all the notes were taken in the office."

"Did you take down any notes as you went through the factory?"

"No, I made memoranda later at my office."

Holding up Scott's original notes, Attorney Rosser asked: "Some of these were written at your office?"

"No, all were written at the factory. I'll swear positively to the last word that those notes were taken in Frank's office."

"But you won't be positive whether it was Darley or Frank who made the statement about Gantt being familiar with Mary Phagan?"

"I think it was Frank, but I am not entirely clear. As far as I can recollect, Frank was the spokesman. I only took down what Frank said. Darley may have made some statements."

Mr. Rosser quoted the evidence by Scott at the coroner's inquest and a report made by Scott to him in which he had stated that Frank told Mary Phagan that the metal had not come.

"How is it that you now say Frank answered 'I don't know?'"

BLAMES STENOGRAPHER.

"It must be a stenographic error," said Scott. "I now swear positively that Frank told me he answered 'I don't know.'"

"It's peculiar that the same error occurred twice," remarked Mr. Rosser.

"Yes, it is," smiled the witness.

"Why didn't you put the Gantt episode in your report to me?"

"Because he had been eliminated from my mind as a suspect when I dictated that report."

"You say now that Frank left the office at 4:10. Why did you say in your report to me that he left at 1?"

"Either I made a mistake or the stenographed did," answered Scott.

Attorney Rosser reverted to Scott's relations with the city police, bringing out the statement from Scott that the police received reports on his work before his clientes did.

Solicitor Dorsey took up the re-direct examination.

"Did your agency report the finding of any ribbons, pay envelopes ,or sticks, to the police?"

"I don't know. I was out of town part of the time."

Solicitor Dorsey referred to the Pinkertons' relations to the city police, asking what the Pinkertons did when the facts did not harmonize with the theories of the police.

"We fight it out then and there," Scott answered.

"Did you carry a lantern with you when you went around through the factory?"

"Yes, I held one in my hand."

The solicitor asked Scott to describe his route through the factory on the diagram. Before Scott left the stand, Attorney Rosser asked this question:

"Did you notice any stairway from the basement to the first floor?"

"Yes. The witness pointed to a spot on the diagram, which was not marked, near the boiler in the basement. Solicitor Dorsey asked him to describe that. The witness did, saying it was balled up when he saw it and was covered with dust and cobwebs.

MONTEEN STOVER ON STAND.

Scott was excused from the stand.

Miss Monteen Stover was called as the next witness.

Miss Stover testified that she is not working anywhere now, but until the Monday preceding the murder of Mary Phagan she worked at the National Pencil factory. On the day of the murder she was in the factory building from 12:05 o'clock until 12:10 o'clock, and that she did not see Frank or anyone else.

"What purpose did you have in going to the factory?"

"To get my pay."

"When do they usually pay?"

"At 12 o'clock on Saturday."

"What part of the factory were you in?" pursued the solicitor.

"Mr. Frank's office."

"Was he there?"

"He was not."

"Did you see anybody at all anywhere in the building?"

"No, sir."

"Did you hear anybody anywhere in the building?"

"No, sir."

Solicitor Dorsey, taking Mary Phagan's parasol as a pointer, went to the diagram hanging on the wall, and pointing to the location of the women's dressing room, asked Miss Stover if the door of it was open or shut.

"I don't know."

"How were you dressed that day?"

"I had on a yellow hat."

"What kind of shoes did you wear?"

"Tennis slippers."

"How far toward the rear of the building did you go?"

"I went as far as the time clock."

"Did you look at the clock?"

"Yes."

LOOKED AT THE CLOCK.

"What time did it register then?"

"The hands stood at 12:05 o'clock."

"What did it register when you went out of the factory?"

"Ten minutes after 12 o'clock."

"Did you see any man's apparel in Frank's office?"

"No, sir."

"Had you ever previously noticed this door of the women's dressing room? Was it usually open or closed?"

"Sometimes open, sometimes closed."

The solicitor picked up a paper from his desk and said to the court: "May I show her this affidavit to refresh her memory, your honor?" Attorney Rosser objected. Solicitor Dorsey explained: "I want to show her what she said to me about this door when it was fresher in her memory than it is now." An argument followed, and Judge Roan called for citation of authorities. The solicitor sent Special Deputy Newt Ganer to his office for an authority, turning the witness over to the defense for th einterim.

ROSSER TAKES WITNESS.

Attorney Rosser's manner toward the witness was gentle. Her voice was low. "And Mr. Frank have one or two offices?"

"There are two offices there."

"How far did you go into the office?"

"Into the outer office far enough to get a full view of the inner office."

"Did you notice several articles of furniture and fixtures in there? Did you notice the safe in the inner office?"

"No. I was looking for a person and didn't notice any of these objects." Miss Stover added that entering the building she went directly to the office, entered the outer office and looked into Frank's private office, sat on a bench outside the outer office for a minute and a half or two minutes, lingered around a little while, and then left.

Attorney Rosser questioned her as to who saw her leave home and who saw her return. Miss Stover gave the names of several people who saw her leave and return.

"You didn't see Miss White or Miss Corinthia Hall that day, did you?"

"No, sir," she replied.

"How many times have you talked to the solicitor about this case?"

"Once, and I saw him at the grand jury."

"It's the truth, is it, that sometimes you saw the door of the women's dressing room closed and sometimes open?"

"Yes."

"That's the truth, no matter what kind of an affidavit you made, isn't it?"

"Yes."

Attorney Rosser was through with the cross-examination. Solicitor Dorsey cited his authority for asking permission to show her the affidavit in order to refresh her memory. Judge Roan granted the point to Solicitor Dorsey. The affidavit was shown to her. After she had read it, the solicitor asked:

"Having refreshed your memory, Miss Stover, tell us about that back door?"

"Sometimes it was open, and some times it was closed."

"In what position was it when the factory was not running?"

"Then it was shut."

Mr. Rosser interposed: "You went to the solicitor's office before you went to the grand jury, didn't you?"

"Yes, sir."

IMPORTANT WITNESS.

R. P. Barrett, a machinist at the National Pencil factory, was the next witness. He stated that he had been employed at the pencil factory for about eight weeks before the murder and that he still is employed there. He appeared before the coroner's jury and the grand jury, he said.

Solicitor Dorsey asked the witness what if anything he had seen at the water cooler near the dressing room used by Mary Phagan, on Monday morning, April 28.

"An unusual spot," replied the witness.

"Had you ever seen this spot before?"

"No."

"Did you work at the factory Friday?"

"Yes."

"Was the spot there on Friday?"

"No."

"Describe this spot."

"There was a large spot about four or five inches in diameter. There were several little spots just behind it."

"How many of these little spots?"

"About six or eight."

"When did you discover these spots?"

"Between 6:30 and 7 o'clock Monday morning after the murder."

"Of what was this spot?"

BLOOD SPOTS FOUND.

"It was blood."

"Did you notice anything else about it?"

"Yes, there was some white substance over it."

"Do you know what this substance was?"

"I do not."

"Had you ever noticed any white substance like this on the floor before?"

"No."

"Are there any white substances kept on this floor?"

"Yes, potash and hascoline."

"Do you know which it was that was smeared over the spot?"

"No."

"What was the appearance of the spots and the potash and hascoline?"

"The large spot was about four or five inches in diameter. There was a white substance smeared over it. There was nothing on the little spots."

"How had this white substance been applied?"

"By a broom."

"What kind of a broom?"

"A coarse cane broom."

"Did you find the broom anywhere near these spots?"

"Yes."

"Where?"

"About four or five feet away, leaning up against the wall."

"Was this broom in its regular place?"

"I don't know."

"Do you know whether this broom was there on Friday?"

"I do not."

"What makes you think this white substance was applied with the broom?"

"Because there were large streaks through both the blood and the white stuff."

"Did you examine the broom?"

"Yes. It was very dirty."

"Did it show any evidence of having been used?"

"No, I couldn't tell."

"For what was this broom used?"

"To clean up the grease on the floor in the metal department."

"What sort of broom is used for sweeping the floor regularly?"

"A broom with finer straw."

"What else, if anything, did you find in the metal room?"

FOUND STRANDS OF HAIR.

"I found some strands of hair on the handle of the bench lathe where I worked."

"What is the shape of this handle?"

"L-shaped."

"Describe it."

The witness asked for a pencil and a piece of paper. He drew an illustration of the lathe handle.

"Where was the hair?"

"It was hanging over the handle." Witness indicated where the hair hung on his pencil sketch.

"Of what material was the handle?"

"Iron."

"Did anyone else see the hair?"

OTHERS SAW THE HAIR.

"Yes—Mell Stanford."

"Was Magnolia Kennedy there?"

"Yes."

"Did she identify this hair?"

Attorney Rosser objected. Solicitor Dorsey insisted, contending that Mr. Rosser had gone into great detail concerning hair; that he had asked many questions of Miss Grace Hix about hair, inquiring the shade of Mary Phagan's hair, that of Magnolia Kennedy, and even went so far as to have the witness point out Mr. Arnold's hair as a sample. Judge Roan ruled that what Magnolia Kennedy said about the hair after its discovery would be hearsay evidence. Solicitor Dorsey remarked: "I just wanted to show, your honor, by this witness, whether Magnolia Kennedy identified the hair." Mr. Rosser interrupted, declaring that only the God of the universe would know whether she identified it—that it was purely a matter of opinion.

Solicitor Dorsey asked the witness, "How far away from the bench lathe where the hair was found, is the gas jet where the girls curled their hair?"

"About ten feet," answered the witness.

The solicitor had the witness locate the machine and the gas jet on the diagram.

"You say the hair was not there Friday?"

"No," said the witness.

"When did you discover it?"

"Monday morning."

"Whose attention did you call to it?"

TOLD QUINN ABOUT IT.

"I called Quinn and Quinn called Darley."

"How do you know that the hair was not there on Friday?"

"Because I used the machine myself up to quitting time."

"When is quitting time?"

"Five thirty p. m."

"Was the factory closed Saturday?"

"Yes."

"Were there any girls working there Saturday?"

"No."

"How far is the nearest lot of hascoline and potash from where the broom and blood were found?"

FOUND PAY ENVELOPE.

"There was a can of hascoline about eight feet away. The potash is in the plating department about twenty or twenty-five feet away."

"What was the color of the smearing?"

"White."

"You found no black stuff around?"

"Nothing but streaks of grease on the floor."

"Did you examine the area around Mary Phagan's machine? If so, when?"

"Yes—the latter part of the week."

"What did you find?"

"I found a piece of a pay envelope under her machine."

The witness said that was between the 28th and 30th of April. On that part of the pay envelope was a mark that looked like it was a part of the letter P or G or F. He gave that to one of the solicitor's attaches. He identified a piece of pay envelope handed to him as the piece which he had found. He found nothing else except flings under that machine.

The envelope could not be seen where he found it, unless a person looking toward it was standing ten or fifteen feet away from the machine. Solicitor Dorsey indicated on the diagram where a bloody stick is supposed to have been found, and asked the witness if he made a search at that spot.

The witness said that he did, during the latter part of the week following the tragedy, and that he found no stick, blood, nor part of any pay envelope. Solicitor Dorsey asked the attorneys for the defense if they had in court the bloody stick said to have been found by the Pinkertons.

The attorneys answered in the negative, saying they could produce it Thursday afternoon. The solicitor announced that he would bring the witness back later.

CAN'T IDENTIFY IT.

Attorney Rosser took up the cross-examination and developed that there was no distinguishing mark on the piece of envelope found by Barrett except the little loop. There was no number, no amount, nor anything like that to distinguish it from hundreds of others used in the factory.

Barrett testified under cross-examination that he found the hair when he turned the handle of the lathe on Monday morning and the hair caught on his fingers. Barret was positive that the spots which he found were blood spots, although he admitted he had made no chemical analysis.

Mr. Rosser concluded his cross-examination, and Mell Stanford, another employe of the pencil factory, was called to the witness stand.

Stanford declared that on Friday, April 25, he swept the second floor of the pencil factory, including the metal room, and was certain that he swept around the water cooler and by the dressing room. On Monday he was again in the metal room and saw the hascoline smeared on the floor, where it had not been when he swept the metal room between 9 and 10 o'clock Friday morning. He was certain that a heavy broom had been used for smearing the hascoline. The spots leading from the hascoline smear went back toward the dressing room.

Attorney Arnold took up the cross-examination of the witness, but at 12:25 o'clock, before he could ask a question, Judge Roan ordered a recess of the court until 2 o'clock.

AFTERNOON SESSION.

A number of people remained in the court room throughout the noon recess, preferring to run no risk of losing their seats. A small boy who somehow got past the guards brought a basket of lunch and sold it out in short order.

Leo M. Frank, the accused, and his wife lunched together in one of the rooms adjoining the court.

Some fifty or seventy-five women were in the crowd which entered the court room just before 2 o'clock. hey were more numerous than at the morning session. The number of women attending the trial grows with each session of the court.

At 2 o'clock court reconvened with Mell Stanford in the witness hair, and with Attorney R. R. Arnold conducting the cross-examination.

BILL SEEKS TO GIVE W. & A. ATLANTIC PORT OUTLET

Spur Track From A. W. & N. to Aid in Connecting State-Owned Road With Sea

A bill was introduced in the house Thursday by Representatives Cooper and Crawley, of Ware, under which an outlet to the sea at the port of St. Marys is to be given to the state owned Waycross and Atlantic railway, concerning which road there has been much agitation as to whether the state shall sell, lease or operate under state supervision.

Under the bill the outlet is to be given by authorizing the Atlantic, Waycross and Northern to use the Southern railway tracks on a junction point near Atlanta, and thence building a spur track to connect with the Western and Atlantic. The junction point named near Atlanta is the point where the former Atlanta and Florida adjoined the former East Tennessee and Georgia.

The A. W. and N. under this bill would use the Southern tracks from Fort Valley to the junction point near Atlanta, thus giving the A. W. and N. connection from St. Marys to the junction, and by joining the A. W. and N. with a spur track at the junction point the seaboard outlet is gained by the W. and A.

UNCLE SAM ENCOURAGES YOUNGER HOMESEEKERS

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 31.—Efforts will be made by the senate to liberalize the homestead and other entries on public land before the expiration of the present session through the passage of a bill introduced by Senator Sterling. This measure, which has been reported favorably by the senate committee on public lands, reduces the age limit for those entering on public domain from twenty-one years, as provided under the present law, to eighteen years. The legislation is designed to encourage the settlment of undeveloped lands of the nation by young homesteaders, who may be counted upon to develop their property.

BARRY WRIGHT OFFERS TAX BILL SUBSTITUTE

Representative From Floyd Offers Bill Intended to Solve Tax Reform

With the Lipscomb tax equalization bill literally shot to pieces by amendments introduced and carried by the minority leaders of the ways and means committee of the house, and the probability of the effective legislation for tax reform being secured at this session through the virtual killing of the provision for a state board, Representative Barry Wright, of Floyd, Thursday morning stepped into the breech with a substitute for the bill under consideration, which appears to have met with the approval of the majority of the members, through virtue of the fact that it is, in effect, a compromise that will bring harmony in the ranks of the assembly.

The entirely unexpected action of Mr. Wright came within thirty minutes of adjournment and through his prompt action is gaining recognition from the speaker, the possibility of the Sheppard substitute being introduced with only county board provisions, was precluded for the time being.

The bill of Mr. Wright, while it does not provide for a state board, does give that authority in the office of the comptroller general and would create the office of a deputy tax commissioner under General William A. Wright, whose duty it shall be to equalize the taxes between counties. It is the intention of the measure not to molest the man who is returning his property at the correct figure, but to secure a means whereby the commissioner will be enabled to dig up hidden taxes, forcing the dodger to pay and at the same time reducing the burden of taxation over the state.

The fight against the state board of tax equalizers as embodied in the bill of Representative Frank A. Lipscomb, of Clarke, which began last Tuesday, culminated Thursday morning when the last salient feature of the measure was knocked out by substitute. The bill as it now stands is merely a skeleton of its former self with little left for the members to vote on. Section by section it was fought until all hope of its ultimate passage has been given up by the majority members of the ways and means committee from whence it came.

AUGUSTA CHARTER FIGHT IS GIVEN A HEARING

Thomas W. Loyless and Others Oppose Commission Government

The senate committee on corporations granted a hearing Thursday morning to those interested in the bill of Senator O. L. Kelly, providing a commission form of government for the city of Augusta. After going into executive session the committee decided to postpone action on the bill until Friday morning.

The hearing lasted for an hour or more, during which time both sides were given an opportunity to present their views.

Appearing against the commission bill were Thomas W. Loyless, Wallace B. Fearce, C. Henry Cohen, and W. S. Morris. Mr. Loyless made a strong speech in which he said that the bill was simply a political move on the part of those who were formerly opposed to the commission form of government.

Those who spoke for the bill were Samuel L. Olive, representative from Richmond; Joseph Ganahl and E. G. Kalbfleisch.

Bills Introduced in Senate

By Mr. Smith of the Ninth—To protect the oyster beds of the state.

By Mr. Watts—A resolution creating a commission to provide for disposal of the governor's mansion.

By Mr. Miller—To provide for the registration of voters.

By Messrs. Turner and Elkins—A resolution giving governor authority to appoint commission to dispose of governor's mansion.

WHEATLEY REPLIES TO CHARGES IN "BULLETIN"

Men and Religion Defeating Its Own Movement, Declares Representative

In a statement to The Journal Thursday morning, Representative Crawford Wheatley, of Sumter, chairman of the house committee on appropriations, defends himself and his committee against the assertion in Bulletin No. 67 of the Men and Religion Forward Movement, that money was appropriated by the thousands for hog cholera and cattle tick, while money to build a home for wayward girls under sixteen years of age was denied them.

In speaking of the attack Mr. Wheatley said:

"I am afraid that the executive committee of the Men and Religion Forward Movement has defeated its own proposition. The bill for an industrial home for girls came to us asking an appropriation of $105,000, which amount in itself was prohibitory. For this reason it was referred to a subcommittee to plan for the creation of a home and to make such changes in the measure for an appropriation that could be granted.

"With the present strained financial condition of the state it was either a matter of killing the bill outright or laying it on the table until funds to meet its demands were available. This was done with a view to again taking the matter up if the legislature provided means for an increased revenue. But such articles, however, criticising the charter of the committee can do no good whatever for the help of wayward girls.

"As for the appropriations for hog cholera and the cattle tick, both are required by law."

Eatonton Weather So Broiling Hot It Cooks an Egg

EATONTON, Ga., July 31.—With Macon boasting, along with her wonderful boosting, of holding the highest thermometer record during the hot wave of recent date that swept over the country, an Eatonton hen comes to the front and again puts Eatonton on the map with an egg record that might well put this little Georgia city ahead of Tucson, Ariz., as well as Macon, when it comes to real hot weather averages.

At the Champion home on Madison street, the family keep a few chickens for the combined pleasure of enjoying yellow-legged fries of a blue ribbon strain and also the convenience of securing fresh eggs daily for the two-year-old daughter of the house.

During the hot weather of recent date a hen was heard to cackle in the barnyard, but no one went immediately to the nest, which, by way of information, is not exposed directly to the sun. A little later when the egg was needed for the baby of the house, and it was thought to and broken open, the albuminous mass went into the saucer just as firm and nicely done as if soft boiled or poached, as one would care to have an egg served. Perfectly fresh and inviting looking, all that was needed to make it palatable was a little butter, pepper and salt.

There is not now, nor has there been anything abnormal about the hen that laid the wonderful egg. That the owner could command a fine price for her to fill rush orders in a hotel dining room is freely predicted.

MARRIAGE CONTRACT BILL RECONSIDERED BY SENATE

Blue Sky Bill and Indeterminate Sentence Bills Are Passed

That the state senate is pretty evenly divided for and against the science of eugenics was proven Thursday morning when by a vote of 21 to 9 it moved to recosider its action on killing Senator Dixon's marriage contract bill. The bill will now go to the foot of the calendar, not to come up again until next year.

The senate also reconsidered its action in killing Senator McGregor's bill, which leaves the creation of new counties to the people in the affected districts. This measure also takes its place near the foot of the calendar.

The senate passed two general measures of importance at Thursday's session. One is what is known as the "blue sky insurance law," introduced by Senator Bush. It provides that no insurance organization in the state shall misrepresent their standings in circulars or in other ways.

The other bill was Senator Foster's indeterminate sentence law. It provides that where sentences are imposed on chaingang prisoners they shall not be for any fixed time, but shall be within a maximum of twenty years and a minimum of not less than half the maximum.

The senate went into executive session long enough to confirm three appointments by Governor John M. Slaton.

A resolution was passed on the old Ducktown case authorizing the governor to settle certain differences between citizens of north Georgia and the Tennessee Copper company.

Two resolutions were introduced in regard to the disposal of the governor's mansion. According to one of the authors of one, neither knew that the other was to introduce a resolution. In effect, they are the same, both providing that commissions be appointed to consider the question of disposing of the mansion.

Senator Miller introduced a bill which provides for permanent registration of voters. Such a bill already has been defeated in the senate, but Senator Miller says that his measure is not so stringent as the one which failed to pass.

At the request of Game Warden Jesse Mercer, Senator Smith introduced a bill by which the oyster beds of the state will be protected, and will be open for lease.

Deaths and Funerals

The funeral of Mrs. Emma C. Smith, who died Wednesday evening, will be held at Harry G. Poole's chapel at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon and the interment will be at the Atlanta Park cemetery. The deceased is survived by her husband, Samuel C. Smith, and by four children.

Hoy D. Terrell, the four-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. N. J. Terrell, died at the residence at Moore's station at 6 o'clock Thursday morning. The funeral will be held at the residence at 9 o'clock Friday morning, and the interment will be at the Adamsville cemetery.

Mr. Thomas A. Smith, aged twenty-four years, died at the residence, 328 South Humphries street, at 11 o'clock Thursday morning. He is survived by one sister, Mrs. N. L. Boles. The funeral arrangements will be announced later.

Berry School Lectures

ROME, Ga., July 31.—A farmers' institute is in session this week at the Berry school. Prof. Jere M. Pound, president of the State Normal school at Athens, spoke Wednesday night on "Our Duty to the Common School." Among the speakers on the program are John W. Hart, E. M. Nighbert and other representatives of the State Agricultural college, and State Entomologist E. L. Worsham.

Perfects New Method To Kill Mosquitoes; It's by Electricty

ATLANTIC CITY, July 31.—The Atlantic county mosquito commission, which has been granted a $26,000 appropriation by the county board of freeholders to rid the county of mosquitoes, may try to lure the pests to death with musical vibrations generated by electricity.

According to information received by the committee, Dr. L. O. Howard, of the federal department of agriculture, has discovered that the hum of the mosquito commonly attributed to the vibration of its wings, is really caused by air expelled during the process of respiration. Dr. Howard learned that this hum could be imitated by electrical vibrations, toward which mosquitoes precipitated themselves as if drawn by a powerful magnet. By attaching large strips of sticky fly papers back of the vibrating wires he perfected a deadly exterminator.

Dr. Howard is noted in the department of agriculture as an entomologist and is the author of several studies of mosquito problems. The local commission has addressed an inquiry to him with the idea of adopting his plan if it proves practicable.

THREE WOMEN DROWNED WHILE FISHING ON LAKE

Squall Overturned Rowboat Containing Party of Six, Others Cling for 2 Hours

(By Associated Press.)

ST. JOHNS, N. B., July 31.—Three young women were drowned last night when a squall capsized a rowboat containing six persons on Lochlimond, a few miles from here. Three others were saved, after clinging to the overturned boat for two hours.

The dead girls were Miss Tilly Davis, Miss Brown and Miss Eliza Darling, all of this city.

The party was fishing on the lake when the storm overtook the craft.

INDETERMINATE SENTENCE BILL PASSED BY SENATE

The senate on Thursday morning passed by a vote of 27 to 3 the bill introduced by Senator Foster, which provides indeterminate sentences in place of the rigid sentences now imposed under the Georgia law.

The bill gives a judge the right, for instance, to sentence a convicted burglar for not less than five years, and not more than ten, and gives the prisoner an incentive to work out his own salvation and hasten his liberty by good behavior and conscientious work.

The measure, on the day before it passed the senate, received the formal indorsement of the state prisnn commission.

HATFIELD FOUND GUILTY OF WILL PARRISH MURDER

Dalton Jury Ignores Plea of Self-Defense—Death Sentence Will Follow

DALTON, Ga., July 31.—The jury in the case of the state vs. aDn Hatfield, charged with the murder of Will Parrish, at 9:30 this morning, following an all-night deliberation, returned a verdict of guilty. As no recommendation for mercy was made Hatfield will be given the death sentence.

The trial occupied the entire ray in the superior court Wednesday, the judge finishing his charge and giving the case to the jury at 6 o'clock Wednesday evening.

The jury was secured by 9 o'clock, and the testimony of witnesses was taken up. The defense made its fight on the self-defense basis, having two eye-witnesses to the tragedy in John and Tom Nicodemus. These two were, however, jointly indicted with Hatfield as being accessories to the crime.

The state made out a strong circumstantial case. The row which the defense alleged occurred prior to the shooting of Parrish was not heard by people living in the immediate vicinity. Dr. W. E. Wood swore that Parrish could not have been advancing on Hatfield with an axe, as the defense's witnesses had sworn, as the bullet passed through the upper lip and first struck the teeth of the lower jaw. The body was found near an overturned chair, according to evidence introduced.

Clem Poole, charged with the murder of Policeman Harry Cooke, will be arraigned today.

"SILENCE POLICY" HALTS HAWTHORNE PAROLE NEWS

McReynolds Refuses to Discuss Rumor That Author's Son Is Denied Freedom

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, July 31.—The "silence policy" of the department of justice, which was adopted by former Attorney General Wickersham, remains in force under Attorney General McReynolds. No subordinate in the department is permitted to discuss any matter, pending or concluded, without the consent of the attorney general. As a result it was impossible today to confirm or disprove the report that Mr. McReynolds has refused to parole Julian Hawthorne.

Auto Bandit Gets Life

CHICAGO, July 31.—Robert Webb, automobile bandit, convicted of the murder of a detective, was sentenced to life imprisonment today.

800-Year-Old Turtle Moved from Pacific To Central Park Zoo

NEW YORK, July 31.—"The old man of the Pacific," a turtle whose age is said to be 800 years or a trifle over, has exchanged its residence from the California coast to the Central park menagerie. The turtle weighs 464 pounds and is six feet, eight inches long. His age is computed from the sixteen squares marked on the top of his shell, each square representing fifty years.

The park policemen and two menagerie keepers enjoyed a ride on the turtle's back when it arrived yesterday. A policeman poked the turtle with his club and he bit the club in two.

Ice Plant Explosion

ATHENS, Ga., July 31.—The explosion of an ammonia tank at the plant of the Atlantic Ice and Coal company at 1 o'clock killed two negroes, seriously wounded other persons, and did some damage to the plant. The plant is about two miles out.

VALUATION OF ROADS TO COST U. S. $15,000,000

Work Will Take Special Corps of Engineers From 5 to 7 Years

WASHINGTON, July 31.—Physical valuation of the railroads of the United States by the interstate commerce commission will take from five to seven years by a specially organized corps and will cost the government from $10,000,000 to $15,000,000 or more, according to plans of the commission presented to the house appropriations committee. The commission has asked for an immediate appropriation of $1,500,000 for organization of the corps of engineers necessary to undertake the work.

Commissioners Clements and Prouty and Secretary George B. McGinty, of the commission, have told the house appropriations subcommittee that a carefully worked-out estimate places the cost of the field work at $1,921,500 a year throughout that period.

One Hundred Women May Own a New and Beautiful Lingerie Dress at a Tremendous Saving===

By Virtue of a Rather Remarkable Purchase and the Clearing Out of Our Own Stocks

Sixty fresh and dainty lingerie dresses have just come in as "surprise boxes" from New York, with these we have put forty from our own stock. Result---one of the rarest and finest opportunities that the Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Company Ready-to-Wear Section has boasted this season---one that could not have been possible earlier---it's an odd day when a maker lets go such dresses at these prices.

But they are here!

Call the occasion a supreme moment, a wind-fall, a climax, whatever you will---one hundred women are going to find one hundred dresses of surpassing beauty and style at prices they will know do not measure the cost of materials.

See them! See what these prices stand for!

For $21.75 to $29.75 Dresses

There are but twenty-five of these in all—no more than one or two of any one style. Crepes, voiles and marquisettes are the materials. One model will have a wide band of white macrame lace down the skirt, and a wide, flat collar to match; another a dainty frilling of shadow lace points around the bottom of the skirt. Another will be adorned with rich linen laces; another with exquisite French Valenciennes laces; many will show crushed girdles of satin—in colors and white. No question of what women will think of them at this price.

For $12.50 to $21.75 Dresses

There are seventy-four of these to choose from. A dozen different models.

The average worth of these is near $16.75.

Crepes, plain white, white with invisible self-stripes, white with black stripes, voiles and marquisettes—and one model that is all lace and net.

The charm of color is added to one model by the touch of green, green buttons, green collar and tie; another is a coat effect dress, the skirt is white crepe, the little coat, of black and white crepe. But many of the daintiest are voiles and marquisettes touched with fine laces and embroideries!

With these we have put some sixty linen dresses from our own stocks that were $5.75 to $6.98 for $3.75. There are blues, tans, lavenders and white. French and ramie linens, trimmed too variously to attempt descriptions---with crystal buttons, laces, bands and pipings. One point you will not be long in noting is their neat lines---they fit superbly.

HOUSE PROBABLY WILL ACCEPT SHEPPARD BILL

Passage of Substitute Tax Equalization Measure Indicated—To Compromise

Discussion of the Sheppard substitute for the tax equalization bill was taken up by the house this morning, and all indications point to the passage of the Sheppard bill after a practical compromise between the minority and majority is effected by amendments.

The Stovall amendment striking section 16, providing for a state board of tax equalizers to have charge of the county boards, from the Lipscomb bill was passed by a vote of 105 to 66 Wednesday afternoon, and the Sheppard substitute was offered immediately. The Sheppard bill provides for county boards of equalizers headed by the comptroller general of the state, who shall have supervisory powers over the boards.

Two amendments are likely to be offered, will strengthen the Sheppard bill were offered. One, introduced by Representative Green, of Houston, provides for an additional $1,500 clerk for the comptroller general in the equalization work. The other, introduced by Representative McMichael, of Marion, provides for the appointment of each county board of tax discoverers, who shall inquire into the returns to ascertain whether they have been made too low and also to seek property which has not been returned. The discoverers are to be paid a fee of 50 cents for every $100 worth of property so discovered, the fee to be assessed upon the owner of the property.

REBELS IN COMMAND OF VENEZUELAN GARRISON

Former President Castro Reported to Be Progressing Rapidly in Campaign

(By Associated Press.)

WILLEMSTAD, State of Curacao, Venezuela, July 31.—Confirmation of a reported mutiny of the garrison of Coro, the capital of the state of Falcon, Venezuela, was received here today.

The rebels are in command of the place and are exercising the functions of government. Dispatches telegraphed there from this city remain unanswered.

All indications point to the move having been made by adherents of former President Cipriano Castro, who is said to control a steamer now in those waters but which has not yet been reported or seen.

A number of letters addressed to Castro lie at the general delivery office here.

Nationalists Pleased With Castro's Return

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, July 31.—General Rafael DeNogales-Mendez, a leader of the nationalist party, which is a party of the Venezuelan border states, said today that his party welcomed General Castro's reported entry into Venezuela, because it would bring the political affairs of that country to a crisis. He had no information today that the former president had landed on South American soil.

"The nationalists," he continued, "have been waiting for President Gomez to make an open attempt to repeal the law against re-election and make himself dictator of Venezuela. The national election is set for next March and we do not expect Gomez to declare himself until about that time. The coming of Castro, however, will precipitate a crisis. The strife between the followers of Castro and Gomez will give the nationalists an opportunity to step in and make war fight for constitutional government."

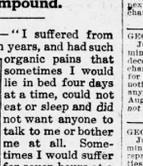
WOMAN SUFFERED TEN YEARS

From Nervousness Caused by Female Ills—Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Auburn, N. Y.—"I suffered from nervousness for ten years, and had such organic pains I sometimes I would lie in bed four days at a time, could not eat or sleep and did not want anyone to talk to me or bother me. At other times I would suffer for seven hours at a time. Different doctors did the best they could for me until four months ago I began giving Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a trial, and now I am in good health."—Mrs. WILLIAM H. GILL, 15 Pleasant Street, Auburn, New York.



"Doctor's Daughter Took It."

St. Cloud, Minn.—"I was so run down by overwork and worry that I could not stand it to have my children talk aloud or walk heavy on the floor. One of my friends said, 'Try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, for I know a doctor's daughter here in town who takes it and she would not take it if it were not good.'

"I sent for the Compound at once and kept on taking it until I was all right."—Mrs BERTHA M. QUICKSTADT, 727 5th Avenue, S., St. Cloud, Minn.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound may be relied upon as the most efficient remedy for female ills. Why don't you try it?

BIG PROPERTY DAMAGE BY WASHINGTON STORM

Hurricane in National Capital Plays Many Curious Pranks, Litter Covers City

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 31.—The national capital awakened today to begin a civic house cleaning and citizens and city employes alike joined hands in an effort to clean up the litter and debris in the streets, left in the wake of the cyclonic storm of yesterday.

No accurate estimate of the monetary damage done by the tempest is yet obtainable, the greatest havoc having been occasioned through the breaking and the leveling of many of the finest trees which cannot be replaced. Late reports of outlying districts disclosed damage to property greater than was at first suspected.

The storm played many curious pranks. A heavy moving van, waiting in the rear of a fashionable apartment house, was caught by the wind and turned on end, the three horses attached to it being suspended in the air by their collars and being nearly strangled before they could be lowered to the ground. A number of persons endeavoring to leave a street car had a narrow escape from being run down by a heavy automobile which came tearing down the street impelled by the wind and without a chauffeur or other occupant.

Lightning, like the wind, also played many tricks. It struck a house in Anacostia, a suburb, passed through three bed rooms and in each room the only damage done was the breaking of the looking glasses in the bureaus.

A number of similar queer exhibitions was given by the bolts.

Search is being made on both the Maryland and Virginia shores of the Potomac river for countless launches and small craft which were scattered from their moorings like chaff. It is feared a number of them have been sunk although so far as known at present no loss of life was entailed.

Three dead, scores injured and hundreds of thousands of dollars' worth of property destroyed was the toll recorded in the hurried canvass made when the city aroused itself from half an hour of helplessness in the grasp of the elements.

OUT OF BLAZING SKY.

Out of a blazing sky, under which the city was sweltering with the temperature at 100 degrees, came the storm, roaring from the north, driving a mass of clouds that cast a mantle of darkness over the city.

The gale, reaching a velocity of almost seventy miles an hour, swept the streets clear, uprooted houses, tore detached small structures from their foundations, wrecked one office building, overturned wagons and carriage in the streets and swept Washington's hundred parks, tearing huge branches from trees and even uprooting sturdy old elms, landmarks of a century.

For half an hour the city, covered, paralyzed, under the beating of the storm, every activity suspended. Trolley cars, street traffic and telephone service were halted, government departments suspended operations. The wind wrecked a three-story brick office building occupied by the B. S. Saul company, real estate dealers, and fifteen persons were carried down with the crash.

THREE LOSE LIVES.

W. E. Hilton, vice president of the real estate company; Thomas R. Fanley, sixty-five years old, a clerk, and an unidentified man who entered the building in time to escape those caught in the wreck, were taken from the ruins dead. Half a dozen were taken to hospitals seriously injured and half a dozen more were treated for slight injuries.

The neatly-kept lawns of the White House were devastated. Three huge trees, uprooted by the wind, were thrown bodily across the lawn and up to the very portico of the building, blocking the drives. President Wilson was seated in the executive offices when the wind crashed through several windows in the White House proper. Secretary Tumulty hurried the president and Representative Korbly, of Indiana, with whom he was conferring, to a sheltered interior room, away from the searching lightning flashes ,the wind, rain, hail and lightning. The senate was in session when the hail swept down with a deafening roar, beating on the glass roof of the chamber. The tumult made further business impossible, and hurrying to the vice president's desk, Senator Kern megaphoned with his hands a motion to recess. The motion was put and, although the senators could hear nothing, the senate quit work for fifteen minutes in confusion.

When the storm broke thirty-five painters were at work on the dome of the capitol, swarming over the curving surface or swinging high on shaky scaffolding. William Reese, the foreman, hurried to the dome and got most of his men to shelter inside the big inverted bowl. But Jim Boyle, John Ford, Noble Bailey and Bruce Jones were too late. Bailey and Jones succeeded in scaling the dome shin the wind and rain and gained a sheltered ledge where they weathered the storm after trying in vain to get inside.

Boyle and Ford were caught on a swinging scaffold just under the eaves of the dome, and there they swung, buffeted by the wind, beaten by the hail and soaked by the rain, while the flashes of blue lightning trickled around the dome, down from the platinum lightning points in the head of the Goddess of Freedom that surmounts the structure. When the storm was over they certp, shaken and bruised, to safety inside the dome.

PANIC IN CITY.

Here and there throughout the city panic appeared. Horses, driven frantic by the wind and hail, dashed through the streets in terror until they were stopped by collision with some other windstrewn object. In some of the office buildings and the government departments disastrous panics narrowly were averted.

At the bureau of printing and engraving, where hundreds of women are employed, the wind, sweping through a huge window, sent a storm of broken glass hurling through the big press room.

GREENBACKS SCATTERED.

While the excitement was at its height the wind caught a bundle of 1,000 one-dollar bills, half finished, and swept it through the broken window. The bundle was ripped to pieces and the bills scattered far and wide.

Director Ralph hurried out a force of scouts and after combing Potomac park and the grounds of the Washington monument for miles and fishing in the tidal basin, nearly all but $75 worth of the bills were recovered.

Another panic threatened at the pension office, where the lightning ripped off the roof and crashed in scores of windows. Another lightning bolt tore a hole in the roof of the postoffice building and ripped open one face of the big clock in the tower.

HISTORIC ELM UPROOTED.

One of the twenty trees on the White House lawn blown down by yesterday's storm was the giant elm planted by President Hayes. Torn up by its roots, it was shattered across the presidential drive near the portico.

The McKinley oak, the Harrison sweet gum and the Cleveland elm weathered the storm.

Wood obtainable from the trees will be offered by the White House gardner to the poor. It was believed the wood would yield 1,000 cords.

MURDERED MAN'S WIFE IS PLACED ON TRIAL

Mrs. Sylvia Hawkins, of Gainesville, Charged With Being an Accessory

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

GAINESVILLE, Ga., July 31.—Mrs. Sylvia Hawkins, charged with being an accessory before the fact to the murder of her husband, Arthur Hawkins, was placed on trial in the Hall county superior court this morning, the jury being secured at 11:45 o'clock.

The coroner of Hall county, D. C. Stow, testified to the taking of a slug of lead from the dead man's body.

The sheriff, E. A. Spier, testified as to a confession which he claimed Mrs. Hawkins made shortly after her arrest. He said she admitted her infatuation for Jim Cantrell, ans that after thinking the matter over and deciding that she must give up either Cantrell or Hawkins, she came to the conclusion that Hawkins, being a religious man, was ready to die.

Court adjourned at 2:30.

BIG STRIKE THREATENED ON SOUTHERN PACIFIC RY.

Conductors, Trainmen, Engineers, Firemen and Telegraphers May Go Out

(By Associated Press.)

SAN FRANCISCO, July 31.—For two months the general committee of the Order of Railway Telegraphers has been in session here negotiating with the Southern Pacific Railway company a new wage schedule on which thus far no agreement has been reached.

When this fact became known here today, E. J. Manion, fifth vice president of the order, who has been active in the negotiations, said the situation was "delicate," while at the office of the company it was said to be "not acute."

There will be in session here at the end of this week general committees representing five unions, whose membership includes a majority of the employes in charge of the movement of trains. They are: The Order of Railway Conductors, the Brotherhood of Railroad Trainmen, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Enginemen and the Order of Railway Telegraphers.

The conductors and trainmen announced last night that 96 per cent of their membership had voted to strike.

Benefited Many Who Had Lung Trouble

Those who suffer from Lung Trouble are generally troubled with night sweats, fever, loss of strength and little or no appetite. Eckman's Alterative is a medicine which has been most successful in stopping night sweats, reducing fever and promoting appetite, and many who have used it declare it saved their lives. Investigate what it did in this case:

"Dear Sir: For four years I was troubled with cough, which gradually became worse. I had night sweats and pains in my chest. I was losing my appetite and had become so thin and weak I could not attend to my household duties. A physician pronounced my disease Consumption. Not being satisfied, I was examined by the physicians of the Polyclinic hospital. They also confirmed my trouble, and I was ordered away for treatment. My nephew would not allow me to go until I had tried Eckman's Alterative. Before I had taken the medicine three weeks I had marked relief, night sweats ceased, pain in the breast relieved, cough became loose and easy, fever left me, and I commenced getting well. My health became normal. I am in excellent health now and have been for twelve years. I strongly recommend it."

Utilizing the Prisoners' Human Nature.

As a famous horse-trading philosopher was wont to remark, there's as much human nature in one of us as another—and sometimes a little more." If the State will apply this shrewd truth in dealing with prisoners, its laws will be more fruitful of good and its problems of crime will grow simpler.

For instance: the man serving a sentence in a convict camp is, after all, a man whether he happens to have landed there through a slip of impulse, the misfortune of circumstance or as a result of what the old theologians were pleased to term "total depravity." He thinks and feels; he is uplifted by hope or crushed and made sullen by despair; he resents apparent injustice and for the most part he is keen to appreciate a chance for freedom. He has as much human nature as any of us, and, perhaps, a little more.

If, then, this convict's release should be made partly dependent upon his good conduct, his obedience to rules, his faithfulness in work, if he should be given a measure of opportunity to earn his liberty instead of being bound by an iron sentence hard and fast, would he not make a better prisoner? Would he not do steadier and more efficient work? Would he not come forth at the end of his term a better man?

Herein lies the virtue of what is called "the indeterminate sentence," that is to say, a sentence fixed by the court at a maximum and a minimum period, to be served in its entirety or in part according to the individual prisoner's conduct. Thus in certain cases, a judge might sentence an offender to a maximum term of five years and a minimum term of three years and it would depend upon the prisoner's record whether he served the longer or the shorter term; the punishment would be shaped not merely to the offense but to the man himself. The differences among men in a convict camp are as marked as those among children in a school room; and until we take due account of these human differences, we shall obtain only negative results from our penal system.

The indeterminate sentence has been adopted in a number of States where it has proved to be thoroughly practicable and efficacious. It is not a plan of setiment but of reason and experience. It is good not only for the individual but also for the community. It is designed to be applied not loosely but within limits well considered and well-defined. It is a distinctly practical plan.

A bill providing for the indeterminate sentence in Georgia, with due restrictions of course, is now before the Legislature. It has been favorably reported by the committee to which it was referred both in the House and the Senate. Chairman Davison, of the State Prison Commission, forcefully presented the merits of this measure when, in urging its recommendation by the Senate committee, he said:

"The Prison Commission is cordially in favor of the indeterminate sentence. We have had practical experience concerning the operation of such a law in the Boys' Reformatory; it has worked well. We have found that it makes better boys. It gives them the incentive to work for their release, and yet we are enabled to keep an eye on them and keep them under our supervision after they have been paroled. They know that their only chance to get out before serving their full term is to make good in deportment.

"If the convicts are given indeterminate sentences I believe the same condition will prevail. Instead of increasing their evil tendencies and making them as sneaking and idle as they dare to be they will have an incentive to behave themselves and do good, steady work. They will be given the power to redeem themselves. We have discussed the measure thoroughly, and we are satisfied that with safeguards thrown around it as they are, it is a good and practical one."

By passing this bill, the Legislature will make Georgia's penal system more efficient and, in the truest sense, more economical.

"Went to sleep in box car in Atlanta; awoke in Chattanooga." Some mistake in that headline. He didn't go to sleep in Atlanta.

If an old soldier's story doesn't line up with history he blames it on the historian, who probably wasn't there.

Castro.

Cipriano Castro, with more lives than a conjurer's cat and more stings than a gadfly, has burst from oblivion to vex again the peace of Central America. So at least run the tidings from Venezuela which relate that the banished tyrant has secretly landed and is being joined by many of his old partisans, preparatory to a revolution against the established government. If it be true that Castro is home again, we may look for another merry war, the like of which Mexico with all its peppery insurgents could never produce.

Castro was born beyond his time. Had he but lived in the late Middle Ages his name would doubtless have gone down in tradition as one of the great emperors or paladins, for, in that turbulent, misty era, there were no hard distinctions between robber and knight, provided the robber wore glistening armor, rode with a flourish, spoke eloquently, fought lustily and was shrewd enough to hold his retainers together. All these picturesque virtues, or picturesque vices if you will, Castro possesses. But he had the misfortune to happen upon a particularly practical century when the majority of folk have little patience with brigandage, if it be elemental enough for them to recognize it as such, and little sympathy with the chap who cuts a throat one moment and the next falls to discoursing upon the rights of man.

Born and bred in rebellion, Castro kept Venezuela and a considerable part of neighboring Central American in a ferment so long as he remained in that country. He captured the presidency in 1899, swiftly turned it into a dictatorship to which he had himself "elected" three years later and then proceeded to make trouble for the nations in general and the United States in particular. He annulled important concessions that had been granted to foreign residents, cooly refused even to consider international claims, hotly defied the whole world to bring him to terms, confiscated the property of any of his own countrymen who refused him allegiance in the slightest detail, persecuted citizens from other countries and created a tumult that addled the brains of almost every cabinet on earth.

International action at length led to the deposition of Castro. He was in effect exiled and sent packing to Europe where he has remained more or less in mystery for the past five years. But he has evidently kept a wary eye on Venezuelan politics. Within recent months, it became known that he had sailed from the Canary Islands and shortly after he turned up at the port of New York, seeking admission to the United States. That was during the last weeks of the Taft administration. There was much ado, it will be remembered, over the question of whether he should be permitted to enter, or remain in this country, the Washington officials having ruled that he should be excluded. While his case was pending in the courts, Castro slipped away and it was vaguely reported that he had gone to Cuba.

What the next step in this remarkable adventurer's course will be is a guess rather than a prediction. But if it be true that he is in Venezuela, he will certainly make all the trouble he can not only for the existing government of that country, but for the United States and for all other nations with which he may deal. It may be that another international blockade of Venezuela's ports may be necessary.

Why not change the old metaphors, or similes (which is it?) and speak of the automobile of state, with chains on the wheels and a careful chauffeur at the wheel?

On With the Tariff Bill.

As regularly as Republican amendments to the tariff bill now before the Senate are offered, they are promptly voted down. The Democrats are standing, indeed, like a stone wall against every attack. Naturally, the enemy's camp is losing spirit. The passage of the bill has come to be accepted as predestinate and whatever objection the Republicans offer are merely perfunctory.

This condition of affairs indicates that the bill will be enacted earlier than was at first expected. The business world is prepared for its operation; the sooner it comes, the better for all interests concerned.

The cynical business man may scorn the back to the farm movement, but he is mightily interested in the harvest just the same.

China, however, will probably calmn down in time to supply the Christmas fireworks trade.

A Just Demand.

The thinking people of Georgia are alert today to questions of social right and social wrong. They recognize the vital need of a State institution where delinquent girls may be given an opportunity equal to that afforded wayward boys. They are watching with keen interest the progress of a bill to this end which is now before the House committee on appropriations.

The bill is indorsed by experienced judges. It is urged by the State prison commission and by the penitentiary committee of the House. A subcommittee of the appropriations committee has recommended that thirty thousand dollars be allowed as the minimum amount necessary to carry the provisions of this measure into effect. That recommendation should be accepted.

THE KEOKUK DAM

II.—THE ENGINEERING FEAT.

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

The big central fact about the greatest water power plant in the world is the dam itself, the colossal barrier of concrete that halts the Mississippi on its course to the gulf and diverts its waters through a power house where their energy may be used to make electric power.

* * *

No such dam ever was built before, no such river ever was halted before, there were no precedents and no guides to follow. It was an engineering problem as difficult in its way as that at Panama, and one the solution of which can stand only second to that of the great canal.

* * *

Here at Keokuk is the foot of the Des Moines rapids, a place where nature had already done much to help the work. A glacier once dammed the wider course of the river to the west and then the channel was cut through in a valley much narrower so that the bluffs on both sides of the river are quite close together. In the twelve miles above Keokuk the water falls twenty-three feet, and it is these rapids that have always obstructed navigation in the upper Mississippi. To dam these rapids, practically a mile wide from shore to shore, and to dam them in a climate varying from 109 degrees above to 27 degrees below zero, to dam them under conditions where a winter bombardment of ice was to be expected and to be feared but little more than a spring deluge, admittedly was a difficult undertaking.

* * *

The power house was to be on the Iowa side. The dam was started from the Illinois side, keyed into the limestone bluff and built out into the river under the protection of an advance coffer dam. Another coffer dam unwatered the bed of the river on the power house site. Including the abutments the dam is a mile long, but the dam itself, the 119 concrete spans, measure 4,278 feet, or over four-fifths of a mile. Each pier is six feet thick, the distance between the pier—the inside measurement of the spans—is thirty feet. The viaduct that tops the dam structure is twenty-nine feet wide and *the dam at the bottom of the river is forty-*two feet wide.

When these piers were finished the dam had the appearance of a many-spanned bridge, for there was nothing between the piers and they offered comparatively little obstruction to the river flow. The spillways between the piers were built in later. On the upper side they have a vertical face, but on the down stream side they are so curved down and out that their surface is just the shape of the under side of the water as it falls over the top of the spillway. These spillways were built gradually so as to offer the minimum resistance to the flow of the river. The work was done by building slowly from one side of the river to the other, and also by building slowly from the bottom up. Five feet of concrete was laid at first between two piers, the only obstruction then being one thirty-foot coffer dam in the whole stream. Span at a time was filled in in this way, until the bottom layer was finished. Then another five-foot layer was built all across, span at a time, and so on until the last layer brought the top of the spillway sections to thirty-two feet above the river bed.

* * *

On the up-river side of each span slots were let into the sides, and into the top of the spillway, in which slots slide 113 steel gates. These can be let down so as to form a complete obstruction to the river. These gates are seven by thirty-two feet in dimension and will be raised and lowered by electric power, each being operated singly from an electric traveling crane on top of the viaduct. These gates will keep the water above the dam at a constant level, never varying. In high water they will all be open and the surplus will flow through. In low water a sufficent number of them will be closed to maintain the desired level.

* * *

Concrete is a mixture of sand, crushed rock, cement and water. This is the biggest concrete structure in the world and, therefore, the feature of this part of the work was of great importance. A bed of ideal sand was found on the Illinois side only two miles below the dam, and no less than 300,000 cubic yards of it were used. Loaded on wagons all at one time this would mean a procession of sand carts that would reach from Keokuk through Denver to the western boundary of Colorado. Stone for the crushers was taken from the bluffs at both ends of the dam, largely stone that had to be excavated anyhow. The cement came up the river from Hannibal, sixty miles below.

* * *

On account of the great range of temperature at this point nice calculations had to be made of the probable effect on the cement structure. Expansion joints were set in the top of the dam, sheets of tar paper being suspended vertically across the structure inside the steel molds when the concrete was poured in. When this paper rots out there will be a narrow fissure which will pull apart in hot weather and close up in cold. Careful experiments showed that these expansion joints were necessary only for the surface work, as the concrete under water would be but little affected by the change in temperature.

* * *

The actual work of construction was most difficult. The coffer dam built ahead of the dam sections was of cribs of logs, filled in with rock and faced with a seal of puddled clay. The log work was done by timber-jacks from Canada, men who were trained in the handling of heavy logs in swift water. A raft the size of the crib would be made and floated out to the place where the crib was to be sunk. Then careful measurements were made of the bottom of the river at that place and the bottom set of logs cut to fit. Then the logs were built up, log cabin fashion, like a log house, and filled in. These dams leaked but little and made the use of the concrete comparatively easy.

* * *

The first span was built from the Illinois shore and then each succeeding span worked out from that end. As the last few were always too soft to work on, a huge traveling crane of the cantilever type was employed, a monster with an arm 150 feet long, from which it poured the concrete in the forms. When built it was the largest traveling crane in the world, and of itself was one of the chief items in the more than $1,000,000 worth of tools used in the work on the power plant.

* * *

The dam was built, of coures, to create power, but as the Mississippi is a navigable river it must be kept so. Therefore, the power company agreed in consideration of permission to build the dam to keep open navigation and to substitute for the old government canal that skirted the rapids on the Iowa side a new canal, lock and dry dock. This part of the work alone cost over $2,000,000. But as it assures a deep water stage for more than sixty miles above the dam, its benefits will represent the earnings on a capitalization of perhaps $10,000,000—going directly to the navigators of the river.

* * *

The lock here is larger even than those at Panama, being of equal width—110 feet—and of greater height. The lock chamber is much shorter, being only 400 feet inside measurement, since the steamboats on the river do require such a length of water space. The gates at Keokuk, built exactly as are those at Panama, are higher, the lift here being forty feet, as against thirty-two feet and twenty-eight feet in the Panama locks. The total lift is greater at Panama, but there the locks are built in stairs of three flights. The lower gate of this lock is just like those at Panama, except that it is higher. The upper gate at Keokuk is of an entirely new type of lock gate, being raised and lowered in a vertical runway by hydraulic power. Over the top of this gate when lowered runs the railroad track that will convey supplies to the power house in the river.

BON VOYAGE—AND VICE VERSA.

Propertius: Elegy 8; Part I.

"Tune igitur demens, nec te mea cura moratur?
O Cynthia, hast thou lost thy mind?
Have I no claim on thine affection?
Dost love the chill Illyrian wind
With something passing predilection?
And is thy friend—whoe'er he be—
The kind to take the place of ME?

Ah, canst thou bear the surging deep?
Canst thou endure the hard ship's-mattress?
For scant will be thy hours of sleep
From Staten Island to Cape Hatt'ras;*
And won't thy fairy feet be froze
With treading on the foreign snows?

I hope that doubly blows the gale,
With billows twice as high as ever,
So that the captain, fain to sail,
May not achieve his mad endeavor!
The winds, when that they cease to roar,
Shall find me wailing on the shore.

Yet merit thou my love or wrath,
O False, I pray that Galatea
May smile upon thy watery path!
A pleasant trip—that's the idea.
Light of my life, there never shall
For me be any other gal.

And sailors, as they hasten past,
Will always have to hear my query:
"Where have you seen my Cynthia last?
Has anybody seen my dearie?"
I'll shout: "In Malden or Marquette,
Wherever she be, I'll have her yet!"

"Can you name anything so drear, so desolate and so pathetic," asks F. G. M., "as the first day back on the job after a vacation?" Yes; our notion of a Sorrow's Crown of Sorrow is the first day of a vacation in a place you find you're not going to like.

Still, as Plautus has it, half a loaf is better than no vacation.

But the Nights Are Always Cool.

As I listen with you to the fearful tat-too of the riveting over the way,
By Mike or by Pat and their demon rat-tat, I'm agreeing with all that you say.
Let's away to our tents and the silence dense, where rest may add zest to our ditty
And heads will not reel with the pounding of steel. Oh, in summer tohel with the city.

The "fearful tat-too of the riveting" is old stuff, and bothered elder and better colyum conductors, too. Thus Charles Lamb, in "A Chapter on Ears": "A carpenter's hammer, in a warm summer noon, will fret me into more than midsummer madness."

Modesty was dead, manners were rotten, Decency was on the blink. But everybody was happy at the prance in the prancing pavilion at Fly's Bring.

Especially was Lingo the Lear-eyed happy. Hadn't he a right to be happy? Wasn't he trotting the turkey trot with Selina Slim the Sluefooted? And wasn't she the most prancing trotter in Marblehall County, and the town of Charlotte, for that matter? And wasn't she the most lingeringly dressed prancer on the prancing floor at Fly's Bring?

Indeed her dress was a thing of wonder if not of beauty. (But who cares for beauty? Style is Queen. She had on a long flowing robe made of about two yards of semi-transparent Scrape, that reached way below her knees. She had on a pair of toto-transparent silk stockings that reached clear past the skirt. Her bodice reached upward from the waist as far as possible, and who does not know the possibilities of two yards of semi-transparent silk? Her dress was of the cutaway pattern and was cut away most effectively. Her bodice was of the Seymour pattern and was very effective. Then she was begirt, bebuckled, bebound, beribboned, bejeweled, and caught up, in such artistic and effective style as to render all except most of her almost invisible. It was all very effective. Naturally Selina was the cynesure of every eye.

CORN

BY DR. FRANK CRANE.

(Copyright, 1913, by Frank Crane.)

America has added to the world's supply of good things for the palate the tomato, tobacco, the potato, the turkey and corn. The greatest of these is corn. It is the peculiar prize of the United States.

The richest agricultural region of the earth is the land extending from the Alleghanies to eastern Nebraska, and from lower Minnesota to southern Illinois. No territory so inexhaustibly fruitful as this exists on the globe. From it, all the inhabitants of earth could be fed.

Chicago, the metropolis of this district, is destined to become the chief city of the world.

About this season of the year the traveler through Iowa and adjacent states may witness a spectacle which is one of the world's wonders. It is the vast fields of growing corn.

Out of the car window he may see a boundless ocean of dark, lush green, a vision of life, joy and strength, the like of which was never beheld before the nineteenth century.

It drinks up the liberal rains with a healthy appetite. It thrusts its hungry roots down into a soil that for centuries has been prepared for it.

Its broad leaves rustle like the garments of Ceres touched by the winds; whisper like the blessing of Jove breathed upon the land.

It rejoices in the hot sun and grows lustily under its most ardent embrace. And no vision of ghostly plenty is equal to its huge billows reaching far out every way to the dim horizon, glittering in soft and sombre majesty under the full moon.

Surely the generous Deity "hath not dealt so with any nation." The gift of corn is a gift to all.

Its juicy stalks and leaves are loved by the cattle, the swine, the horses. Its grain eaten when young and succulent and full of milk are a delicacy more choice than any plants of the Old World produce. There probably cannot be found a score of human beings who do not like "corn on the cob."

Its dried fruitage ground into meal is richer than wheat flour or oatmeal.

It is food for the fancy of the poet as well as for the muscle of the ox and of the human laborer. For far above the grape exalted by Anacreon, and the olive, and the palm that have nourished the East, and all fruits and vegetables that have translated the lifeforce of mother earth into blood and brain and brawn for her children, is the glorious, fecund and beautiful dowry of the New World Corn.

A Shameful Law

(Augusta Herald.)

The glaring fact that a mother has no right whatever to her children under Georgia law has been made very clear in Judge Hammond's decision, and this preposterous injustice should be done away with right now by the passage of a joint guardianship law.

When such realizations flash upon us we cannot wonder that this clamoring for a part in government and politics has come from the women. Nor can we avoid admitting that the failure to keep our laws in regard to women in harmony with our state of civilization is due entirely to the fact that woman herself has had no voice in the making and the altering of them. This is what always happens when any class or set of people are denied the right to struggle for their own rights. It is an undemocratic method of governing, and no matter how high-minded and full of true purpose those who speak for others may be, they cannot avoid an unbalanced and an unjust condition of things.

The astonishing thing is that the innate chivalry of man has so far overcome his disposition to act with a single view to his own interests. Women receive more justice and consideration than the laws allow them, but this is no excuse for permitting these old and barbaric laws to disgrace the state.

* * *

(Savannah Press.)

Only a moment's reflection will bring to mind various and widely differing points at which this failure of the law is bound to act with shocking injustice. It may not frequently act with such striking and sensational cruelty as to separate the mother from the children who are as much a part of her heart and soul, but in the fact that it can sometimes act in this way should be enough. Besides, there are questions in the rearing of children throughout their whole lives which concern the mothers too deeply and vitally to be entrusted wholly to the male parent.

In a word, a preposterous condition of injustice exists and may be promptly and easily rectified. Should there be any hesitation?

The Savannah Press urged the passage of a joint guardianship law for parents a year ago. We return to the charge, urgently convinced that delay means only a multiplication of suffering and injustice and we beg that our Chatham representatives will do what they can to get this condition of things changed be*fore the present session ends. It surely cannot take* much time to get a simple measure for simple justice through both houses.

Berries Bought a Farm

(Lewiston Journal.)

Paying for a home by picking wild berries is the feat performed by Mrs. Seth Davis, of Skowhegan, who for the last twenty-three years has been engaged in this industry very successfully. Her major berry is the raspberry and she averages about fifteen bushels of these in a year. She picks about eight bushels of the field strawberries in the year and many bushels of wild blackberries. Besides picking these she peddles them out in Skowhegan. She now owns a fine farm on the Canaan road and she remarked that she had paid for it by picking berries. She not only picks berries, but she assists her husband in many ways about the farm. In the winter time she will take a load of wood with a pair of horses, come to Skowhegan, and find a market for it, unloading it herself. Mrs. Davis is one of the most frequent patrons of the public library. But she believes that life is worth more to her by outdoor air and work than it could be otherwise.

Roughing It de Luxe

Behold! The wealthy camper goes
In khaki suit and ample hose
To camp out and to rough it.
He brings a knocked-down house along
With things that there it belong—
With furniture he'll stuff it!

A range and lamps and gasoline,
A phonograph, an ice machine,
Some folding beds and bedding,
A valet and a butler, too,
A trunk of raiment, bright and new—
You'll think it was a wedding!

A telephone, a ticker tape
(From business how can one escape?)
His private secretary;
Some wines, liqueurs and fat cigars;
A modest fleet of motor cars—
Oh, nature's sanctuary!

He "roughs it" thus two weeks or more,
And feels worse than he did before.
Repose, he cannot win it!
And when folk talk of camping out
The notion, he will scorn and flout
And say, "There's nothing in it!"

GEORGIA AND HER POLITICS

And Still Another Defender Comes to Aid of Dr. Soule.

Since the introduction of a resolution in the house over a week ago, calling for an investigation of certain charges against Dr. A. M. Soule, president of the Georgia Agricultural college, and the introduction of a counter resolution in the senate deploring the action of the house member, Georgia papers in every part of the state have come to the support of the agriculturist.

The Columbus Ledger, commenting on the matter, lays the blame at the door of the "petty politicians," in the following brief but terse editorial:

"And now the petty politicians are barking at Dr. Andrew M. Soule, of the State College of Agriculture. Just anything for a victim, it appears.

"In an able defense of Dr. Soule, President Greathitis, of the Columbus board of education, in a brief interview published in The Ledger, truly said that the loss of Dr. Soule at this time would be a public calamity to the state of Georgia. Other educators are standing by the brilliant head of the state college in the present fight against him and a number of the leading newspapers of the state are defending Dr. Soule, who has accomplished much for the great commonwealth."

Two New House Members Break Their Silence with Speeches

While the old members of the house were battling for and against a state board of tax equalizers as embodied in the Lipscomb bill before the house at the special session Wednesday afternoon and fur was flying thick and fast as the floor leaders "flambasted" each other, the new members of the house, those without former legislative experience, sat back in their chairs and gazed with undisguised admiration and envy on the old war horses.

It was a battle royal, the greatest battle of oratory that this session has seen or probably will see, but it was for the greater part between the older heads. The young members had kept silent and listened with rapt attention to the oratorical masterpieces of J. E. Sheppard, of Sumter; A. S. J. Stovall, of Elbert; H. H. Swift, of Muscogee, and Shelby Myrick, of Chatham.

Then a lull came and something happened. "Mr. Speaker" cried a new voice from near the back of the chamber. The gentleman from Jones, Mr. Henderson, is recognized," answered the chair, and our eenough Representative J. A. Henderson, who had been classed with the silent members since the convening of the assembly was on his feet. He admitted that he had been silent purposely because he was a new man and wanted to let the older fellows do the talking. He had done nothing but vote aye or nay for five weeks, but on this occasion he declared he was vitally interested in the adoption of the state board clause and opined it was about time he said so. And he did. He spoke clearly, distinctly and with the ease of a born orator. Soon the entire house was listening to him with undivided attention. He talked straight from the shoulder and before he had finished he had told a few things about taxation in Georgia that made the members sit up and take notice.

The bravery of the gentleman from Jones gave courage to Representative T. G. Borough, of Franklin, another of the long silent members. He had a little to say and he said it fearlessly, citing facts and figures to bear out his assertions. Both speeches were on a par with any that had been delivered and incidentally the house has discovered quite accidentally two new members whose support will be sought from now on when a scrap on the floor is brewing.

South Georgia Wins First Skirmish for Experiment Station.

Now that the senate committee on general agriculture has recommended the removal of the Georgia experiment station to south Georgia, subject to the competitive bid of the several counties in that part of the state, more interest than usual is manifested in the ultimate disposition of other measures also seeking to remove the station from Griffin.

The south Georgia proposition was launched simultaneously in both houses, Senator Sweat and Representative Elis of Tift, standing sponsor for the companion bills. At the same time Representatives Green and Booker, of Wilkes, introduced a bill with a view to making the station an integral part of the Georgia College of Agriculture at Athens, while Representative Connor, of Spalding, is asking the appropriations committee to give him $5,000 for repairs to the plant in its present location.

South Georgia has won the first skirmish in great style, and now attention is directed at the other two bills, one to take the station to Athens and the other secure $5,000 for the farm at Griffin.

More Praise for Address of Senator Smith to Legislature.

The Georgia papers still are talking about the recent address of Senator Hoke Smith before the house and senate in joint session. Here is a commentary from the Commerce Observer that voices the sentiment of scores of other papers published throughout Georgia:

"The address of Senator Hoke Smith, delivered to both houses last Friday, was enough to make the so-called "feelers" sit up and take notice. Georgia could have no better man to represent her interests in the senate than Hoke Smith. Yet this man will have opposition every time the opportunity presents itself. But mark our prediction, the man who tackles him in 1914 for the senate will have no easy sailing to the senate chamber."

Murray County Seat Bill Wins in State Senate.

The old squabble about the removal of the county seat of Murray county from Spring Place to Chatsworth was settled in the state senate Wednesday without the slightest struggle.

The removal of the county seat was voted on at an election in Murray county some time ago at which Chatsworth beat out Spring Place by several hundred votes, and Eton, a dark horse, ran a close second.

The bill recently passed by the house by a big majority and was expected to be given a hot tussle in the senate. To the surprise of every one, however, the measure was passed without any argument and with no dissenting voice.

Probation Bill Was Good, But a Big Brain-teaser.

The bill of Senator M. C. Tarver's which the state senate passed Wednesday is a tough proposition to understand. Generally known as the probate bill, it is regarded as a good measure, but it is certainly some lengthy looking act.

As one senator murmured in the cloak room when the bill came up: "I'm in favor of it, all right, but I don't know what it means."

According to the caption, the bill provides that all courts having jurisdiction in felony and misdemeanor cases in the state shall have authority in certain case, so to mold their sentences as to allow defendants, upon rendition of a verdict or judgment guilty, to serve same outside the confines of the chaingang, jail, or other place of detention, under the supervision of the court. The bill provides further that such persons shall be in charge of probationers.

An identical bill has been reported favorably to the house by the penitentiary committee. Both are the result of a concentrated movement to secure prison reform during this session of the legislature.

SHORTS IN JULY COTTON WERE FORCED TO COVER

July Advanced 41 Pts.–August 5–Other Months Closed 2 to 4 Points Lower

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, July 31.—A number of conflicting condition reports caused an irregular opening in cotton today, with prices 5 points higher to 5 points lower. Subsequent positions were steadier on firm cables but support soon was withdrawn on hopes of showers in the western belt. The trade was inclined to accept one of the private conditions figures which indicated a slight improvement for the month. Selling later developed and prices worked off 6 points on new crop, but against rally edge liquidation following.

Later in the forenoon July sold up to 12c on belated covering but quickly eased off again, while new crops were no better than steady owing to profit taking and a belief that Texas may yet receive showers.

Early afternoon trade was quiet, but reports of high temperatures in Oklahoma and Texas and general dryness in the west caused prices around yesterday's close. July sold up to 12.25 just before noon—46 points higher on covering by belated shorts. It went out at 12 cents.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

By Associated Press.)

NEW ORLEANS, July 31.—Cotton futures opened quiet two points down to one point up, compared with the last prices of yesterday. Cables were better than due, and the weather map was hazy, so far as the more western parts of the cotton region was concerned, but neither of these features stimulated buying to any great extent. After the call, moderate selling was inclined by private reports of rain at several points in Texas and prices stood at a net loss of 1 to 2 points. The market had no selling power and even a few scattered buying orders were given the ring by shorts who wanted their profits. Local interests were inclined to stand off the first half hour of business prices stood 3 points over yesterday's close.

The forecast of fair weather for Texas and Oklahoma increased buying to some extent and with only scanty dealings the tone became very steady. The market was dull throughout the morning session, because of indifference of Brown's room report on condition, and bulls were not aggressive. The opening estimate seemed to be for a slight falling off in condition, compared with the last month's figures of 81 per cent of the normal, but the ginning of 1,000,000 cotton in Texas was bearish but excited little comment. At noon prices were 4 points over yesterday's last quotations.

JOURNAL OF COMMERCE REPORT 81, AGAINST 80.9

NEW YORK, July 31.—Journal of Commerce says: The percentage condition of cotton, as compiled from 1,972 replies of special correspondents, bearing an average date of July 25, was 81.1 as compared with 81.4 one month ago, 77.7 a year ago and 86.9 in 1911. The change for the month was only 2 of a point for the better. The ten-year average is 79.4.

Gains were general in nearly all states, Louisiana, Texas and Oklahoma being the only ones to show losses. Louisiana was favored with boll weevils while the drouth in Texas and Oklahoma caused considerable apprehension which was reflected in lower estimates of percentage.

Until drouth became virulent in portions of Texas and Oklahoma, the prospects for a large crop were generally favorable. The tone became very steady. The market was dull throughout the morning session, because of indifference of Brown's room report on condition, and bulls were not aggressive. The opening estimate seemed to be for a slight falling off in condition, compared with the last month's figures of 81 per cent of the normal, but the ginning of 1,000,000 cotton in Texas was bearish but excited little comment. At noon prices were 4 points over yesterday's last quotations.

INTERESTING NEWS AND GOSSIP OF THE MARKETS

Weather Reports, Crop Advices, Expert Opinions and Newspaper Comment

COTTON GOSSIP

Times-Democrat says: The American contract market is being liquidated gradually and the interest in being nearly all on the smaller. Consumers are buying ahead in volume of moment, consequently being trading is one the minimum scale. The clarke stamp tax proposal has become a settable night mare to the interior writer, and he can't afford to look on, no matter what the crop prospects may seem to be. In other words, there is not a greater incentive to let the market alone than there is to shoulder responsibility. Meanwhile, continued dry weather over the heavy producing sections of Texas undoubtedly is doing some damage to the cotton crop there. But plenty of moisture east of the Mississippi has caused both talent and trade to lament that rapid progress toward a very large yield is being made. Rains have been general in the Carolinas, Georgia and Alabama have reflected forecasting in spite of the presence of the boll weevil in Alabama.

Dallas, Tex., wires: Texas and Oklahoma generally fair, with a little more greater incentive to let the market alone than there is to shoulder responsibility. Meanwhile, continued dry weather over the heavy producing sections of Texas undoubtedly is doing some damage to the cotton crop there. But plenty of moisture east of the Mississippi has caused both talent and trade to lament that rapid progress toward a very large yield is being made. Rains have been general in the Carolinas, Georgia and Alabama have reflected forecasting in spite of the presence of the boll weevil in Alabama.

Dallas, Tex., wires: Texas and Oklahoma generally fair, with a little more in the western Nacogdoches, Tex.

Map shows no change in condition, fair Texas and Oklahoma, no rain except little sprinkle at Houston, near gulf coast, cloudy central and eastern sections, with local rains and Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia. Light showers in Arkansas.

11 a. m. bids in New York were as follows: January, 11.28; August, 11.73; October, 11.22.

Liverpool cables: Steady market, some covering before mid-day and dry weather Texas.

Hill, of Fell & Co., thinks October will go to 11.50 before reaction sets in. Bullish buying.

Map completes indicates unsettled, probably some showers, cooler north Texas; Oklahoma and Arkansas, warmer. Local rains central and eastern states.

Forecast: Louisiana—Tonight and Friday, unsettled, showers in east portion tonight or Friday; light variable winds on the coast.

Arkansas—Unsettled, showers tonight or Friday.

Oklahoma and West Texas—Tonight and Friday, generally fair.

East Texas—Tonight and Friday generally fair; light variable winds on the coast.

Georgia, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, Florida and Alabama—Local thundershowers tonight or Friday.

Kentucky—Thundershowers tonight or Friday, cooler in west portion.

Tennessee—Local thundershowers tonight or Friday.

Mississippi—Local thundershowers tonight or Friday.

GRAIN GOSSIP

Chicago Inter Ocean says: Sentiment in wheat is sentiment in corn and those who were in the pit all day said they saw less hedging than for weeks. Corn will do from now on depends largely upon weather. This is last day of July and if there will not be a rain or a decided rise to see it to go to 1 cent premium or more over September. There is said to be a good speculative interest with one or two large operators short. It was regarded as mainly a question as to when they start to cover on the rise. Should holders stand out, bears will not have an easy time of it next week.

Bartlett, Frazier & Co. say: Sentiment continues generally bearish and outside buying limited. Corn: Local receipts continue nervous and an attempt may be made to break prices, but on the whole the country corn belt has received very little relief.

Oats: We feel friendly to the market on all good recessions.

Provisions: The easier tone to the hog market as well as to corn, caused considerable scattered selling, with shorts good buyers.

Kansas City: Weather and corn bulletin shows no rain in Kansas.

Southwest now hoping corn.

Some scattered selling of corn by commission houses on stop orders. Logan and Ware & Leland good at 71½c.

Sherson good buyer oats on the dip, selling mostly local.

Snow says the reason for the sudden collapse of corn prospects under the influence of only a few comparatively light showers apparently is found in the lack of seasonable moisture and consequent deficiency in subsoil moisture supply. The records of the weather bureau show rainfall this month compares with normal at typical belt stations: Keokuk, down 1.68; Fort Dodge, down 1.68; Springfield, Ill., 1.39; Kansas City, 76; Springfield, Mo., 1.20; Kansas City, 77; Topeka, Kas., 70; COncordia, Kas., 66; 32 Cloud, 1.20; Lincoln, Neb., 55 per cent.

The storm in July corn during the past few days leads us to advise conservative profit taking in the short side of the September delivery, for if the damage to the growing crop proves serious, prices of old corn will doubtless be very slow in getting out with bear support.

Today's map and forecast are distinctly unfavorable so far as rain is concerned. In corn belt only two good rains reported, Springfield, Mo., and Cairo, Ill., both evidently local thunder showers, which left the unimportant corn territory. The situation is so bad, with no old moisture in the ground, that nothing short of several soaking rains will prevent continued deterioration and nothing will restore the corn already lost. Talk of weather forecast proving favorable for the next three days, so there seems no likelihood of rain.—Everett.

Grain belt forecast:

Kansas and Nebraska generally fair tonight and Friday; cooler.

Mississippi, Iowa and Dakotas: Generally fair; cooler.

Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, Missouri, Wisconsin probably thunderstorms this afternoon and tonight and Friday; cooler.

Saving and Investing

Otto H. Kahn.

BY JOHN M. OSKISON

One of the men to whom Edward Lauterbach talked about his influence a mythical claim, as it turned out in the congress committee's investigation) with members of congress was Otto H. Kahn, of the Kuhn, Loeb & Co. firm of private bankers. In pursuit of his plan to get back into the good graces of the ruling financial powers of New York Mr. Lauterbach recalled to Mr. Kahn that he had intimate knowledge of Union Pacific's affairs and suggested that he could render valuable aid in putting through the dissolution plan.

Mr. Kahn stands today as the most prominent representative of a type of private banker which has been developed since the period of consolidation among our railroads and industrial corporations began.

He is forty-six years old. German born, and educated in Germany. In the service of the great Deutsche bank he learned the fundamentals of commercial banking. A five-years' experience in London gave him a knowledge of financing which is incidental to the greatest investment market in the world.

Just twenty years ago, Kahn came to the United States and entered the Speyer firm, which was the representative of a vast amount of German capital in this country. Sixteen years ago he joined the private banking house of Kuhn, Loeb &Co.

Upon Kahn has rested the chief burden of financing the Union Pacific. It was a task which he undertook when that road's credit was very bad, but his judgment of its ultimate value turned out to be sounund; and Kuhn's reputation as a financier has grown perhaps more rapidly than that of any other man of his years.

Like every other private banker who undertakes important financing jobs, Kahn has been, in effect, merely an agent of the owenrs of money. But his success and his prominence have illustrated the vast importance of the private banker agent whose judgment must be trusted alike by the owner of capital and those firms and corporations which want the use of money.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET WAS IRREGULAR AT CLOSE

Canadian Pacific, Mexican Petroleum and Southern Pacific Off–Others Steady

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, July 31.—Nominal changes were the rule at the opening of today's stock market. Illinois Central sold down to 105, a new low record and Canadian Pacific yielded a point. Mexican Petroleum preferred showed a fraction and some strength was shown by the coppers.

Prices stiffened perceptibly before the end of the first hour, steel, in which trading was very extensive, touching its best price since the early part of the year. Demand for Union Pacific, Reading, Amalgamated and Erie first preferred and other dependable favorites also resulted in marked advances for those issues.

The professional character of the market again was demonstrated in today's early session. Initial dealings soon gave way to general strength particularly in the leaders.

Before noon, however, all the rise was lost as a result of profit taking and the renewed bear pressure upon certain issues of which Canadian Pacific, Illinois Central achieved a new low record at 104¾.

General bonds, irregular; government bonds, unchanged.

Sufficient buying power developed after a while to restore the list to a steadier basis and feeble and the market became stagnant. St. Louis and San Francisco issues were active on a declining scale.

Inactivity continued to be the chief feature of the late dealings. Efforts made further to cover from their low level, Southern Pacific and Reading were the strongest exceptions. Slight belief that the threatened strike on the system is likely to be speedily adjusted.

Bullish sentiment in the forenoon was soon effaced when traders agin attacked weak features, while Union Pacific, Reading, Steel and Amalgamated and Union Pacific also showed renewed tendency to sag.

Customs of the Dunkers

(Wilson's "Rambles in Colonial Byways.")

The dress and customs of the Dunkers are as primitive as their creed. The men let their beard grow and wear their flowing hair in the middle and wear slouch hats and the plainest of clothes. The garb of the women is equally plain and severe. There are no milliners among them, for each woman makes her own hat, a simple matter, since no feathers or other ornaments are allowed, while the wearing of jewelry is strictly forbidden.

However, the Dunker women are seldom wanting in taste and elegance. Their dress are nearly always sweet and gentle, while an air of almost saintly dignity is given them by the clear, starched cap, the handkerchief crossed on the breast, the white apron and the plain gray or drab stuff of their dresses. The Dunkers live in peace one with another, and never have recourse to law to redress an injury done to them. Disputes among themselves are settled by the elders, whose decision is final, and only in exceptional cases do they institute lawsuits against the people of the world. They are averse to accepting public office, and rarely if ever exercise the right of franchise. However, the Dunker ideal of personal conduct is a high one. They are temperate to abstemiousness, industrious and economical and Carlyle's gospel work is theirs.

Canning Fruit Lists

(Farm and Ranch.)

For culinary purposes and as a beverage, it is desirable to have at hand a supply of unfermented grape and other fruit juices that have been preserved without chemicals. This is best accomplished by sterilizing and canning or bottling the fresh juice as soon as it is extracted from the fruit.

As soon as the cider or fruit juice comes from the press heat to a temperature of 200 degrees in order to stop fermentation at once. If no thermometer is at hand, the proper temperature may be determined by testing when the liquid begins to simmer just before boiling. It should not be allowed to boil. In order to insure a clear product free from sediment, it is best to set it away in an earthen or enamel vessel for twelve or twenty-four hours, then drain off and filter through a flannel cloth. Again put in an enamel vessel, and heat to the same temperature as before, then pour into glass jars or bottles and seal at once. If bottles are used, cork them and pour a little melted paraffin over the cork. This process will not impair the flavor, as is sometimes the case when bottled.

The juice may be canned or sealed at the first heating, but there will be more or less sediment in the bottom of the bottles. The jars and bottles should be sterilized with hot water before the liquid is poured into them.

Mrs. James Austin was hostess this morning at a lovely luncheon at which time the out-of-town visitors were the honor guests, Mrs. W. B. Fender, of Valdosta; Mrs. Edgeworth Lamkin and Miss Mattie Wilson DuBose, of Athens.

Mrs. Austin was an attractive hostess wearing a becoming gown of white batiste crepe combined with lace, her sister, Mrs. Fender, wearing a gown of champagne colored crepe combined with a touch of blue.

Mrs. Hinton Baker, of Augusta, who is spending some time with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Robinson, was an-

AMERICAN FASHIONS

By Lillian Young.

One could hardly call the summer dresses designed for out-of-doors and street wear "tailor-made," and yet to look smart and proper they must possess a certain indefinable tailored appearance. Almost invariably these dresses of linen, ratine, sponge, etc., have the waist and tunic skirt simulating the Russian blouse and jacket effects of tailored suits. In fact, it is often difficult to distinguish our so-called tailored suit blouses from these same dress blouses.

The sketch shows a street dress of Russian blouse persuasion, to be worn without a coat. It is made of Alice blue voile and ratine. The blouse is of voile with the front edges crossing over a vest of ratine that fastens over on the left side. There is a ratine turn down collar with an inside neck ruffle of plaited white batiste. The straight sleeves are three-quarter length, set into dropped armholes and finished with deep cuffs of ratine.

The voile tunic skirt extends almost to the knees and has an outside twelve-inch facing of ratine. It is attached to the waist with a line of gathers across the back, and a few flat pin folds in front near the side opening. The lower part of the left side has a succession of little draped folds held in place along the side opening. Crystal or enamel buttons may be used to trim the sleeve ends, blouse, and tunic, and a girdle of rose-colored satin is crushed about the waist and tied with long sash ends just back of the right hip.

The straight and narrow lower skirt is of the ratine and can be mounted to a fitted upper portion of white mull or something as thin.

VOILE AND SATINE DRESS IN ALICE BLUE.

other lovely out-of-town guest. Mrs. Clarence Blosser completing the congenial group who, with the exception of Mrs. Blosser, were all graduates of Lucy Cobb.

Covers were laid for seven, the table having a charming decoration in three brown wicker baskets filled with zinnias and marigolds, the old-fashioned blossoms making a lovely glow of color on the prettily appointed table, the place cards being hand-painted flower filled baskets.

Miss Lewis Entertains Visitors

An event of Tuesday afternoon was the "42" party given by Miss Louise Lewis in compliment to her guests, Miss Fay Simmons, of Gainesville, and to Miss Lucy Vale Jones, of Cartersville, who is the guest of Dr. and Mrs. W. E. Quillian.

The prizes for top score and consolation were pieces of white and gold china.

The rooms where the guests were received were attractively decorated with garden flowers, and at the close of the game a luncheon was served.

Miss Lewis' guests included Miss Simmons, Miss Jones, Miss Agnes Long, Miss Maude Couch, Miss Ruby Martin, Miss Edith Couch, Miss Ruth Morris, Miss Gladys McWilliams, Miss Marguerite Dunn, Miss Gladys Thrower, Miss Sallie Blanche Trussell, Miss Lola Buchanan, Miss Kathleen Ash, Miss Dorris Starnes, Miss Lucile Dunn, Miss Theodora Hicks, Miss Virginia Frazier, Miss Hallie Cromwell, Miss Francis Crossland and Mrs. W. E. Quillian.

Evening Bridge Party to Visitors

An event of Wednesday evening was the bridge party at which Mrs. Eric Shueler and Mrs. Frank Shueler entertained at their home in Inman Park in compliment to their guests, the Misses Shueler, of Cincinnati, and to Miss Gertrude Jones, of Selma, Ala., who is the guest of Mrs. C. K. Ayer.

The house was attractively decorated with garden flowers, and the dining room, where a buffet supper was served at the close of the game, was decorated with pink roses.

Top score was made by Miss Willie Keith, and the consolation was cut by Lieutenant Williams.

The guests included Miss Gertrude Jones, Miss Jessie Hubbard, of Elberton; Miss Martha Crane, the Misses Shueler, Mrs. Frederick Cauthorn, Mrs. Wright, Mr. and Mrs. C. K. Ayer, Mr. Vane Stewart, Mr. Brooks, Mr. Dick, Mr. Clisgow, Mr. Green and Lieutenant Williams.

Dancing Party

Mr. and Mrs. George Caldwell Speir entertained at a dancing party Wednesday evening at their home on Columbia avenue, in compliment to their guest, Miss Nancy Reed.

The home was attractively decorated with many lovely garden flowers, palms and potted plants made the rooms cool and inviting, and Japanese lanterns were hung in brightly colored festoons on the verandas.

Mr. and Mrs. Spier's guests included Miss Nancy Reed, Miss Mary Carl Hurst, Miss Louise Bradbury, Miss Mable Taylor, Miss Beasie Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. G. Willis Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Hurst, Mr. T. W. Wilson, Mr. Harvey Orr, Henry Lyon, Mr. Rees Marshall, Mr. Herbert Hoey, Mr. W. J. Price, Mr. Roy Diggs and Mr. T. H. Diggs.

Combining Colors

There is always something new to learn about colors. For instance, a combination that has always been considered weak by authorities is now considered smart—dark blue and violet. It is fashion that now makes this combination possible. Pink and yellow are another difficult combination on which fashion smiles.

There are some combinations, however, which ought always to be shooed. One of these is violet with a red shade of purple. Another is pink and magenta. Magenta and violet may be worn together, but not magenta and pink. Yellow and orange, pink and orange, violet and red, yellow and reddish purple and pale blue and red are combinations which make both the colors combined lose much force and freshness.

BEAUTIFUL HAIR MAKES A BEAUTIFUL WOMAN

LOOK in your mirror, and look without seeing those white hairs. Instead, your hair is soft and full of color and beautiful lustre, and your eyes sparkle and your cheeks dimple with laughing pleasure. What a difference the hair can make! The most beautiful features would be ruined with coarse, straggly, gray hair and great masses of soft, beautiful hair will make any face beautiful.

If you have dandruff, you try to cure it. Then, if your hair is fading and losing its vitality, why not stop and Robinnaire Hair Dye is a pure restorative tonic preparation made in our own laboratory, and we guarantee that it cannot injure either scalp or hair. It is for faded or gray hair, not to bleach or change the original color, but to restore the hair to its natural color and make it soft, lustrous and beautiful once more. Thousands are using it, women and men, with best results, and, as it does not stain the scalp, no one can detect it. Don't pull out the white hairs; instead use Robinnaire's Hair Dye, this splendid and marvelously successful restorative. For light, medium and dark brown and black hair. The Evening Story — GAME

(Copyright, 1913, by W. Wenzer.)

It was the opening morning of the dog show held in the pavilion of the Country club at Boulder Bay. As expeditiously as possible the dogs were being benched and everything put in readiness for the judging in the afternoon.

Seventeen-year-old Billy Weston was on hand early with his handsome little cocker, Rob Roy, for several years winner of the blue at the annual show at the bay. It was a purely friendly show, unrestricted by the rules of any kennel club.

Rob Roy was in the pink of condition. Billy's eyes glowed triumphantly as he passed the entries in the cocker class. "There's nothing here can touch you, Rob," he said softly, his hand going down for a moment and resting on the silky head. He paused as he came to an empty space, No. 27, next the Vernon cocker, and his glance went down the line he had been examining. "All the dogs are here that I know," he thought, and pondered a moment. There was no catalogue of the show, simply the names and numbers of the dogs and the names of their owners being in the hands of the show officials. "Anyway, Rob, I'm not afraid; there's only one cocker could beat you, your own son, and it's a cinch he's not going to be placed under 27. Jim's too wise a guy to bench the scarey little fellow and take chances on having him make a show of himself."

At the thought of Jimmy Billy's frank youthful face clouded. Jim Vernon had been his chum as long as he could remember, until early in the season when the Harleys came into their lives. From the start she had shown a decided predilection for handsome Billy, favoring him so greatly that Jim told him he was getting too blamed toplofty.

Then came the day Margaret's canoe tipped over in front of Vernon's and an effort to get into a corner and supposed safety.

"ROB, OLD BOY, ARE YOU GAME?"

He did not notice in the conflicting emotions surging through him that the judging of the cockers had commenced. He gave a great start when some one yelled: "Oh, Billy, Rob Roy's class. Get busy!"

From force of habit he leaned over to unhook the chain. Jerked back, his young shoulders squaring decisively, his eyes fixed defiantly on the ring, where there were seven cockers—one a shivering, slinking specimen, led by a boy with the stained color flushing his cheek, his eyes turning eagerly toward the gate.

"Watch, hand on!" Billy thought. "You won't have Rob to send him to the blue."

He heard the judge ask "All in?" as he stood there, his young lips stubbornly set in a straight line. He saw the orderly move to close the gate. Then something happened. It was just the sight of a little red dog sitting on its haunches, staring about with beautiful pathetic eyes, human in their terror, their appeal, with a boy's figure humiliatingly bent over him, coaxing, imploring, that made another boy's heart leap in sympathy.

In a flash Billy turned to his dog. "Rob, old boy," he whispered, as he unhooked him, "are we game?" As the little, silky body wiggled its joy he added: "You bet we are!" When the gate was shut Billy was on the inside.

Just once his eyes met Jim's, boyishly grateful, and he smiled bravely, leading Rob up to his son. Then, leading e tao IVF vbgñ CMtaoInaoin the judge saw go around the ring, shoulder to shoulder with his father, a dog with head up, eyes bright, "a sport," every inch of him.

And Billy's head was up bravely, too. An Billy's head was up bravely, too. He saw the warm glances of admiration levelled at Rob's son; he heard the exclamations, he saw the judge take the blue, the red, the yellow, and he saw the blue go to Jim. But he was game, and, though his first great heartache had come to him, he did what many of his elderg could not—he met defeat dauntlessly and took the red with a smile. The judge was only a boy, so just for a moment he could not look at Rob Roy, his idol, his pal.

For a time it seemed to him that what followed must be a dream, because it was Rob Rob the judge was talking about, a stranger, and Billy's father also was there, interested as Billy had never seen him in dogs. Suddenly the judge said: "Billy, this gentleman is one of the biggest cocker spaniel men in the country and he's wild over Rob Roy. He's persuading your father to let him make the shows on the eastern circuit and send Rob to his champonship. This son of his is good, but without the older dog ——" The judge's hands were thrown out expressively.

There came another incident on that never to be forgotten day. Billy heard a girlish voice whispering at his side. "Billy, you're great! I saw how you struggled with yourself over there by the bench and you won out splendidly! I'm just so proud of you, and so ashamed of myself! Billy, I was I made Jim enter Rob's son without telling you. We had more scraps over it!"

"Billy"—Jim had to come up—"you're the whitest kid—"

"Say"—Billy wheeled around on him, his face strangely pale, his eyes strangely humid—"cheese it, Jim! How much of this bunk do you suppose a fellow can stand, anyway?"

JIM HAPPENED TO BE THE ONE TO GO TO THE RESCUE.

Jim happened to be the one to go to the rescue. Girlish Margaret was sweetly, breathlessly grateful when he brought her ashore, little the worse for her impromptu bath, and disdainfully silent when Billy approached. Of course, it was Jim upon whom her sweetest smiles were lavished at the dance that evening, and he became quite a hero under her glowing description of the rescue. While Billy—Well, later Billy said when he was alone with Rob Roy: "Isn't it the punkest luck, and aren't girls fools, Rob? Does she suppose I'm such an ass that I'd jump in, after Jim got there before me, only because he happened to see her first? Anyway," Billy's voice lowered mysteriously, "it would have been dead easy, Rob, for Margaret to walk ashore, because it's shallow all along there."

Rob's answer was a riotous wagging of a stubby little tail, as though he would tell his young master that he knew what no one else knew—that Billy had kept loyally silent on the question of depth of the water where Margaret had been immersed when she had gushed over Jim's bravery, for Jim was his chum, and, though but a boy, Billy was true blue.

Quickly following the canoe episode came the horse show and Billy's second humiliation under Margaret's eyes. Jim took the blues from him in three classes! He watched Margaret pin them on her stunning lingerie dress; he saw her beaming on Jim, girlishly proud and he gritted his teeth and thought of Rob Roy. The dog show was a bigger event, because everybody at the bay owned a blue blood and in cockers Billy owned the king of them all save for the king's son, and he, poor little chap, would never win blues like his father because of an abnormal timidity. In the presence of strangers, if Rob Roy was not by his side, he was a pitiful, quivering thing. Running along with his father he was the most stylish piece of dog flesh imaginable. Take Rob away and he became an object, to quote Jim.

Billy once said to Jim: "Say, Jim, some day when Bob has had all that's coming to him we'll enter them in some show in the same class. He'll go around the ring beside Bob—a sport. And I tell you," Billy hesitated. Then he concluded because he was square, every inch of him, "he'll hand his dad one! He's a humdinger."

He was thinking of that conversation after lunch when he entered the pavilion to prepare for the judging. Down the line of cockers he glimpsed a familiar golden head. She was with Jim. They were standing before empty 27. But was it empty? An unbelievable thing flashed into his mind. His step quickened. Then he was in front of 27, staring at a little red form—a little quivering thing—crouched back in the corner. As he looked Margaret's long braids were tossed supercilliously. Jim took a step forward eagerly. Margaret called him imperatively and Billy, with his head in the air, walked on, his words to Jim making his boyish heart race wildly:

"He'll go around the ring with Rob—

LITTLE STORIES FOR BEDTIME

THORNTON W. BURGESS.

(Copyright 1913, by J. G. Lloyd.)

Maters went from bad to worse with Peter Rabbit and Little Miss Fuzzytail. They could have made up his mind to go back to his old home in the dear old briar-patch on the Green Meadows, but he felt that he just couldn't leave little Miss Fuzzytail, and little Miss Fuzzytail couldn't make up her mind to go with Peter because she felt that she just couldn't leave the Old Pasture, which had always been her home. So Peter spent his days and nights always ready to jump and run from old Jed Thumper, the gray old rabbit who thought he owned the Old Pasture and who had declared that he would drive Peter out.

Now Peter had an old friend in the Old Pasture, Tommy Tit, the Chickadee. One day Tommy took it into his head to fly down to the Green Meadows. There he found everybody wondering what had become of Peter Rabbit, for you know Peter had stolen away from the dear old briar-patch in the night and had told no one where he was going. Now one of the first to ask Tommy Tit if he had seen Peter Rabbit was Old Man Coyote. Tommy told him where Peter was and of the dreadful time Peter was having. Old Man Coyote asked a lot of questions about the Old Pasture and thanked Tommy very politely as Tommy flew over to the Smiling Pool to call on Grandfather Frog and Jerry Muskrat.

That night after jolly, round, red Mr. Sun had gone to bed behind the Purple Hills, and the black shadows had crept over the Green Meadows, Old Man Coyote started for the Old Pasture. Now, he had never been there before, but he had asked so many questions of Tommy Tit, and he is so smart anyway, that it didn't take him long to find his way all through the Old Pasture and to find the bramble castle of old Jed Thumper, the gray old rabbit, who was making life so miserable for Peter Rabbit. He wasn't at home, but Old Man Coyote's wonderful nose soon found his tracks, and he followed them swiftly, without making a sound. Pretty soon he came to a bramble bush, and under it he could see old Jed Thumper.

For just a minute he chuckled, a noiseless chuckle, to himself. Then he opened his mouth and out came that terrible sound which had so frightened all the little people on the Green Meadows when Old Man Coyote had first come there to live.

"Ha, ha, ha! Ho, ho, ho! Hee, hee, hee! Ha, ho, hee, ho!"

Old Jed Thumper never had heard anything like that before. It frightened him so that before he thought what he was doing he had jumped out from under the bramble bush. Of course this was just what Old Man Coyote wanted. In a flash he was after him, and then began such a race as the Old Pasture never had seen before. Round and round, this way and that way, along the cow paths raced Old Jed Thumper with Old Man Coyote at his heels until at last, out of breath, so tired that it seemed to him he couldn't run another step, frightened almost out of his senses, Old Jed Thumper reached his bullbriar castle and was safe.

Then Old Man Coyote laughed his terible laugh once more and trotted over to the tumbled down stone wall in which his keen nose told him Peter Rabbit was hiding.

"One good turn deserves another, and I always pay my debts, Peter Rabbit," said he. "You did me a good turn some time ago down on the Green Meadows and now we are even. I don't think that old gray Rabbit will dare to poke so much as his nose out of his bullbriar castle for a week. Now I am going back to the Green Meadows. Good night, Peter Rabbit, and don't forget that I always pay my debts."

"Good night, and thank you, Mr. Coyote," said Peter, and then when Old Man Coyote had gone he added to himself in a shamefaced way: "I didn't believe him when he said that he guessed we would be friends."

Found a Woman Under His Bed

Meyer Kirsch, of 150 Norfolk street, uttered loud shouts of "Burglar!" and "Raubmeit!" from the window of his home soon after dawn a few days ago. Detectives Spero and Kean, who heard the cries, hurried to his rooms and found him transfixed with terror pointing to the shoe of a woman filled with a plump foot sticking out from under a pile of bedclothing which had been pulled to the floor.

The detectives lifted the bedclothing and found beneath a young woman, who said she was Annie Weinstein, of 154 Orchard street. Observing that all the bureau drawers in the place had been dumped on the floor, the detectives took the girl to police headquarters. There her finger print marks were found to coincide strangely with those of Hattie Levine, a youthful thief of record. Because of the finger prints the detectives decided to ignore the young woman's plea that she borrowed under the bedclothes because of embarrassment at being found by mistake in a man's room and took her to Essex Market court.

A girl calling herself Hattie Levine was arrested in July a year ago for a burglary at 8 Rutgers street, where former District Attorney Jerome once lived.

Baby's summer skin troubles

How to prevent them

During the hot summer months your baby's skin needs especial care. The high temperature and free perspiration cause the slightest thing to irritate it.

To prevent it becoming raw or chafed and breaking out in rashes and red spots bathe your baby daily with Woodbury's Facial Soap, the following way: Use lukewarm water and with a very soft washcloth or silk sponge, apply a generous lather of Woodbury's over the entire body. Then rinse with slightly cooler water and pat with a soft towel until the little body is thoroughly dry.

Woodbury's Facial Soap is the work of an authority on the skin and its needs.

Get a cake today and try the treatment described above. See how delightfully sweet, smooth and soft it leaves your baby's skin.

Woodbury's Facial Soap costs 25c a cake. No mother hesitates at the price after her first cake.

Little Journeys

This is the time of year when nearly everyone is planning some kind of trip. Usually the longer the trip the pleasanter the anticipation of it.

But there are certain kinds of journeys that are not classed as "pleasure trips" when the weather is hot. These journeys are the necessary shopping excursions.

Two women were overheard talking in the shopping district early one morning of this past week. One of them said, "I wish I could have stayed at home today. I have a list of ten things I must buy, and I know it is going to take me until closing time to get them all."

"I have a list of fourteen articles," the other replied, "but I expect to be home by noon."

"How can you manage it?" said the first.

"Easily enough. I looked over THE JOURNAL, and by going through the advertisements carefully I was able to plan a regular route for my trip. I know just what stores I am going to, and what I shall buy in each one."

This wise woman by her intelligent forethought made her shopping trip a pleasant "little journey." No one can afford not to follow her example in reading thoroughly the advertisements in THE JOURNAL when so much time and nerve-fag can be saved by doing so.

Crackers Back Home After Hard Trip Through Southern End

But Four Wins In Games With Rival Outfits

Crackers Took Two in Pelicanville, One in Memphis, None in Montgomery, and but One in Mobile

The road record of the Atlanta club, which was completed when Welchonce hit for the circuit and won the final Mobile game, is nothing to boast over, the team having dropped nine games and won but four, while it is not and won but four. While it is not expected that a club should win all the games on the road the Crackers should have secured something nearer an even break than nine losses and four wins.

Many of the games dropped on the road were of the hard luck variety, being taken by one run. The team became shot to pieces through the illness of Captain Whitey Alperman and the injury to Bill Bailey and this to a large extent served to take the ginger from the other players and cause them to play ragged ball. The hitting too has been a bit off and this has proven a large handicap.

The fielding and pitching on the trip was good, while the hitting was poor. In the past the club has fielded poorly and hit well, but just the opposite has been true in the last 13 games. But the hitting ability of the club is well established and when the boys regain their batting eyes they are bound to go at a good clip.

On the road trip the club turned in a batting average of .221 against .285 for the opposition, while the fielding average of the Crackers was .968 against .951 for the opposition. This shows up the hitting to be very weak, while the fielding is good. All that is now necessary is for the batters to regain their eyes and continue to field as during the past week and there will be a climb.

The averages in detail are as follows:

Star Players Reach Finals

CHICAGO, July 31.—The field in the western tennis singles championship tournament at Onwentsia Wednesday was narrowed down to nine men, most of them players of such class that the fifth round, and the semi-finals scheduled for Friday should be prolific of some of the best tennis ever seen in the central states.

Thursday John Strachan, of California, whose playing has been a feature of the tournament, will take on L. Harry Whitner, a veteran expert. Joseph Armstrong, the Minneapolis star, meets Walter Hayes; Clarence Griffin, Strachan's partner, plays Heath Byford, of Chicago, and John Adams, of Minneapolis, takes on the winner of the match between J. H. Winston, Chicago, and William Blair, Lake Geneva.

In the feature match of the tournament Heath Byford defeated "Chick" Benton, of Cleveland, by 6-2, 3-6, 6-0. Griffin won a listless match from Robert Shelton, of Dallas, Tex., one of the southern doubles champions. The scores were 6-2, 6-3, but despite the count the Californian was never in danger. Shelton played below his usual form.

Miss Mary Browne, of Los Angeles, runner-up in the championship last year, and Miss R. N. Williams, of Philadelphia, who was to have been her partner in the doubles, left for the east, it was learned, early to-day in misunderstanding about club accommodations offered her. Their matches, both in singles and doubles, accordingly were defaulted.

Batting Figures

Wednesday's double-header was profitable to Harry Welchonce and Tommy Long. The latter started with the stick in the first game and the former in the second. Both gave their averages a good boost.

Atlanta Club Is Back Home To Play Vols

New Players Will Most Likely Be in the Opening Game Against Vol Crew at Ponce de Leon on Thursday

TODAY'S LINE-UP.

Holland, 2b	Perry, 2b.
Chapman, c	Lindsay, ss.
Dent, p	More, p.

To play five games in three days with the Nashville club the Atlanta Crackers arrived home Thursday morning, after a rather harmful jaunt around the southern end of the circuit. The one game bill will be played Thursday, double-headers being left for Friday and Saturday, incidentally the present trip of the Vols being the last to be made here this season.

The Thursday afternoon game will start as usual at 3:45 o'clock and will see either Dent or Price hurling for the Crackers with Forest More doubtless occupying the hill for the visiting delegation. In the line-up of the Cracker club will probably be two new players—Holland and Holtz, with Clarke, a new hurler, occupying the bench.

Owing to the late arrival of the club from Mobile Manager Smith could not be seen to secure his line-up and for this reason it is not known whether Holland will play in the Thursday game. Holland states that he is ready and willing to jump right into the game and should Manager Smith consider such a move wise one he will be used at either second or third, with Holtz in right field and Long in left.

The team has been away from Ponce de Leon for a couple of weeks and while the road trip was disastrous, the fans should not desert, but stick to the guns and be on hand for the fracas Thursday. The club will doubtless get together when Holland and Holtz get in the game and will win many games. The Vol outfit is not going so nicely and some four wins in the five games will go a long way toward aiding in placing the Crackers right up among the leading first division teams.

Hundred Thousand Dollar Infield About to Cut Third Champ Melon

The word of Connie Mack, leader of the Athletics, has been given that the wonderful infield of his pennant-winning team, which is valued at $100,000 by baseball men, did not cost him a nickel.

Such financial genius should awaken for Mack the profound admiration of John D. Rockefeller and Andy Carnegie, our best known investors.

In Frank Baker, at third base; Jack Barry at shortstop; Eddie Collins, at second base, and "Stuffy" McInnis, at first base, the Athletics have the greatest infield combination now in baseball and probably the best that ever played the game.

Although valued at $100,000, this outfit would not buy them. They are worth more than that to the owners of the Athletics, for they win pennants and world's championships and produce dividends, the size of which only the men of the American league know.

Unless something breaks before the last days of September, these boys will be disputing with some National league club for the title of world's champions, for the third time in four years. Twice they have won the honor. Last year, infuriated by success in 1910 and '11, the team dissipated and loafed until Boston won the honor, but this summer, after a winter spent in Cuba, they have performed like the Athletics of old and appear to be unbeatable.

Give Holland Fair Chance

Harry Holland, the young collegian signed by the Atlanta club for a trial on the infield, will doubtless make his debut in the Thursday game with Bill Schwartz's Nashville club. He will be used at either second or third, with the chances that he will be sent to second base with Wallace Smith returning to his old post at third.

As to Holland's ability to make good there is not the least doubt. All needed is for one of him a fair chance and he is sure to deliver the goods. Too many competent scouts of major league clubs have pronounced the boy a finished ball player for him to fall down in a minor league, and if he just gets the chance he is bound to make good. And further than that he is more likely to look to go higher with the end of the season.

It is only natural that a young player in jumping into the game in his home town will be a bit worried, and this may cause him to make a few errors owing to nervousness. However, Holland is just as cool as anybody who ever broke into the game, and his nervousness will be at the lowest possible point. However, he will be slightly affected, but it will not mighty little.

The baseball fans have as much to do with the making or killing of a young ball player as any other one thing. If the fans support and encourage him he is bound to show his appreciation, but if on the other hand they start out to get after him it may serve to get him all up in the air. So it is up to fandom to get right back of Holland and begin the boosting game. He is a grand ball player who is going to learn the game from A to Z and later prove a star. So there is no use in going out after a lad who is helping his home club in times of distress when it is evident that he has the ability.

Third base is Holland's natural position, but it is most likely that he will be used at the second bag by Billy Smith. Wallace Smith is accustomed to the third corner and as Holland can play second just as well as third, the youngster will most likely step into Whitey Alperman's shoes at the keystone with Smith returning to the third stand.

In college the hitting game was always one of Holland's strong points, and at this end of the game he is more than apt to star with the Crackers. He has a good eye and can sting the ball. He may, however, find he will be found smashing 'em hard and always giving the club his best services.

Journal Club Now in Lead

The Journal forged ahead in the Grocer's league race by defeating Jones, the league leaders, in a good game at Ponce park Wednesday afternoon. The final score was 7 to 5.

Johnson's pitching again featured for the Journal. Four scratch hits were all that were gotten off his delivery. He had the Jones batters guessing all the time and but for errors behind him the runs would have been fewer. He gave way to Simmons in the seventh, who held the Grocers to two runs.

Laird and Hull starred with the stick and ran wild on the paths. Both hit safe twice, Laird stole three bases and Hull was close behind with two. Simmons' three-bagger was the long hit of the game. Carroll at short for the Journal was the fielding feature, the little fellow accepting seven hard chances with only one error which did not do any damage.

Bell and Cheeks, the Jones battery, did the best work for the losers, and Bailey, Stallings, Black, Carroll, Johnson, Jones, Baldwin, Brooks, Boozer 2, Bell; two-base hit, Laird; three-base hit, Simmons; bases on balls, off Bell 1, of Simmons 1; struck out, by Bell 2, Johnson 6; passed balls, Parlesky; hit by pitcher (Simons); stolen bases, Laird 3, Hull 2, Smith, Simmons, Cheeks, Black; sacrifice hits, Simmons, Carroll. WELCHONCE'S CIRCUIT HIT WON ONE FOR THE CRACKERS

First of Double Bill With Mobile Was Close and Was Lost by One Run—Conzelman Worked Well in Second

MOBILE, Ala., July 31.—Mobile took the first game of the double bill on Wednesday, but in the second the Atlanta team, and especially Messrs. Conzleman and Welchonce, smarted so under their burden of six straight losses that there was no stopping them at all. They copped it 5 to 2. The first game score was 5 to 4.

Long in the first game hit safely three times, getting five in both games, but Welchonce with his little crowd trip hit in the ninth inning of the second game was the candy.

The umpires did not show up on time, so Carl Thompson and Heinie Berger were sent in to do the officiating, and there was practically no kick coming.

The new Cotton States recruit, Holtz, broke into the club rather auspiciously, getting one bingle and stealing two bases. He accepted three chances in good style.

FIRST GAME.

Atlanta opened the first by scoring in the first inning when Tammany Long singled, was sacrificed to third and scored by Wallop Smith's single.

Mobile tied things up in the third on two singles and an error. After this Mobile scored intermittently until the count stood four all in the seventh. Then the Crackers got busy and it looked as if Pitcher Campbell were steering straight for a calamity, but the calamity never came.

In this round Bisland doubled and was sacrificed by Holtz. Manush singled and they both scored on Chapman's triple. Chapman, himself, was scored by Long's single, his third hit of the evening.

These three runs, however, only tied the score and Stock and Starr singled and O'Dell contributed an infield sacrifice, untying things in the eighth.

The second game was long drawn out and rather uneventful except for the two home runs which dropped outside the park.

Atlanta scored her runs in the first and third, and then the game stayed tied up until the ninth, when Welchonce's homer untied things.

Atlanta's first run came on a double by Bisland and an error by Paulet. Schmidt's homer in the second canceled this tally.

The Crackers, however, scored again in the next round by means of Long and Welchonce's singles.

In the ninth, with Long resting upon the bag he had just pilfered after picking one to right, Welchonce drove one high over the face for the circuit. He was received with cheers by the local fans, as this was his fourth hit of the game.

CHANGES FOR JUST A DAY

Montgomery did not play, and although Atlanta broke her habit of losing and split a double-header with Mobile, both Mobile and Birmingham preserve their lead. Birmingham took one from the Lookouts, thus keeping almost two games ahead of Atlanta.

The Giants dropped a shutout game to the Cubs, when Tesreau went amuck. The latter, however, lost one also.

The Athletics, under the guidance of Bush, tucked another win into their percentage column against the coming of a rainy day. They now have a lead of over ninety points.

GIVE PLAYERS PROTECTION FROM CURSING OF ROWDIES

NEW YORK, July 31.—The unsuccessful attempt of Ty Cobb to have a spectator removed from the stands at Philadelphia on Tuesday during the Detroit-Athletics game is to be made the subject of an investigation by the Baseball Players' fraternity. According to Cobb, the spectator addressed objectionable language to him. Mindful of the trouble he caused in this city a year ago when he attempted to rebuke physically a like offender, Cobb called upon the umpire to elect the objectionable person. This method was suggested by the national commission, according to President Fultz, of the fraternity. Evidently it did not work satisfactorily in the Philadelphia test, for Fultz stated in discussing the affair:

"According to reports from Philadelphia, Cobb attempted to follow out the plan laid down by the national commission, appealed to the umpire to eject a spectator who had insulted him, and was jeered out of the game by the crowd.

"The fact that the spectator was allowed to remain in the stand proves that the method adopted by organized ball for handling this evil is grossly inadequate.

"A player should not be made to stultify himself in this manner. The majority of baseball fans will second my efforts to put an end to this long-standing evil.

"The players' fraternity has repeatedly made suggestions which, if adopted, would prove of much benefit, but the national commission has so far disregarded them."

Graves Speed Main Feature 'Drome Events

Thirty-Minute Team Race Kept Crowd Puzzled as to Which Would Win—One Team Is Disqualified

Wednesday night's card at the big 'drome was a good one. The program itself read mighty well, but the racing looked even better. A narrow escape from a nasty spill, Morty Graves riding at an eighty-eight-mile clip and the half-hour novelty race certainly furnishing a good round of pleasant relief from the day's toils. The big crowd was wild and gave the riders a rousing cheer in every race.

The feature race, with the five teams fairly burning the old boards in the track up, made a hit from the start. Harry Lewis did some nice riding in this race, making a good getaway and keeping a killing pace for thirteen minutes. Schwartz and Lochner covered the greatest distance in the half-hour of grinding, but were disqualified by the judges, as both were on the track at the same time. The distance they did was thirty-eight miles and some laps. Tex Richards, with Shields as his partner, was announced as the winner, their distance was not given. Graves and Schwartz were second and Lewis and Luther third. Glenn and Reneel also ran.

Harry Glenn put one over Luther in their match race in straight heats, but couldn't do much in the race against time.

Morty Graves took the big prize, the 'drome sweepstakes, beating Tex Richards in the heat and leading McNeil and Richards in the finals. Graves liked to have torn the saucer up. Not since the races started has such riding been seen. Eighty-eight miles an hour. There were mention of it is enough to those who have been watching things around the track. The gong clanged for the last lap and had hardly finished when in came Graves, a mark was seen at the finish and Graves was announced winner.

The races are beginning to show real class. If Graves can keep up the pace of Wednesday night, with Richards and McNeil going good, the old boards will groan under the weight when these three race mix. Jack Prince has framed up a great card for Friday night and there will be a battle royal on for the big honors.

The following are the results of the night's spin:

MOTOR-DROME SWEEPSTAKES.

Heats, 1 mile, final 2 miles.

First Heat—Graves, Richards and Reneel. Time, 42 2-5.

Second Heat—McNeil and Schwartz. Time, 1:43.

Final—Graves, Richards and McNeil. Time, 1:22.

GLENN-LUTHER MATCH RACE.

Two miles.

First Heat—Glenn. Time, 1:33.

Second Heat—Luther. Time, 1:31 2-5.

Final—Glenn. Time, 1:28 2-5.

SOUTHERNERS WHO STARRED

Jake Daubert: Brooklyn's elongated first baseman, got back in the game after a week's absence. Jake celebrated his return by checking two hits out of four times up.

Zack Wheat: Repeated his teammate's performance, one of his hits being for three sacks.

Red Smith: Was successful only once in four trials.

Bobby Byrne: Was right there with the stick, batting .500 in four times up, and accepting five chances perfectly.

Dode Paskert: Suffered an off day when he got no hits in three times up.

Derrill Pratt: Was at bat four times and got two hits.

Johnston, of St. Louis: Did not connect with a single bender in four trials.

BUNTS AND BINGLES

BY JULIAN MURPHEY

More than one pennant has been dropped towards the close of a season because of injuries to star players and it looks as if the Atlanta club is in store for a decided slump owing to injuries to Whitey Alperman and Billy Bailey. Of course it is no sure bet that the Crackers would have copped the bunting with Alperman and Bailey in the line-up, yet it is a dead certainty that the team would make a better race than it will.

STARR'S INJURY HURT.

One of the best illustrations of how a team will slump when a couple of stars get out of the game is shown in the work of the present Mobile club. At the start of this year Mike Finn had a strong lineup and started out to run away with the flag. He gained quite a big lead during the first couple of months and then illness struck down Baby Doll Jacobson, and an injury put Charlie Starr hors de combat with the result that the team immediately began to slump.

Starr and Jacobson are undoubtedly two of the best ball players Mike Finn had and with them out of the game the club could not be expected to put its best game. Hence the big slump came as no surprise. The team dropped from a lead of some eight games according to second place and right now is having trouble in holding a berth just under Montgomery.

ATLANTA STARS GOOD.

The ill luck which put both Starr and Jacobson out of the game is not a bit worse for the Mobile club than the injuries to Alperman and Bailey. The two Atlanta stars are just as essential to the workings of the Atlanta club as Starr and Jacobson are to Mobile. In fact Alperman and Bailey, when in prime form are decidedly better, Alperman outhitting either Starr or Jacobson, while Bailey in 1912 form is a better hitter than either of the Gull stars.

There is yet a month to run before the pennant has finally been tacked down by any one club and any number of injuries are apt to happen to just any club. It may be Montgomery, Birmingham or Chattanooga that has the hard luck and then the race will chase around a fill in all the gaps. When a good player gets hurt the manager has only to stick in a well trained substitute and go merrily on his way. This of course slightly handicaps the team but not to such an extent that it is put down and out.

Continued injuries to Southern league stars is sure to eventually cause the league to raise the player and salary limit so that a good substitute or two can be carried. Right now no team has more than one substitute and a second string catcher and when two men get injured there is nothing to do but play a catcher in the outfield or infield and work one of your catchers to death. And this won't win many pennants.

DOESN'T AFFECT MAJORS.

In the major leagues it does not hurt so much when one or two good players are put down and out for a short time. The player limits are so large that a sufficient number of substitutes can be carried to fill in all the gaps. When a good player gets hurt the manager has only to stick in a well trained substitute and go merrily on his way. This of course slightly handicaps the team but not to such an extent that it is put down and out.

EVERY RACE IS FAST; NEW RECORD IS MADE

Spectators at Circuit Race Meeting Given the Biggest Thrills of Their Lives – All Races Good

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich., July 31.—The largest audience ever assembled at a race course in this city, in a program of grand circuit racing, lasting until dark, saw the world's record for average speed of an afternoon on any track shattered, in a series of performances marked by the reduction of a variety of records.

Of the fifteen heats paced or trotted the slowest was the one just at dusk, 2:09 1-2 by Strathstorm. The speediest was Stebrino Lad's 2:04 1-4 in the third heat of the 2:07 pace. The average time for fifteen heats was 2:06 9-15.

Every race was featured by split heats and torrid finishes. Warner Hall, favorite in the 2:07 pace, never landed better than second, Iowa Todd showing the way in the first and Rodney's Stebrino Lad winning the three subsequent heats.

The Furniture manufacturers' $10,000 stake for 2:12 trotters, feature event of the meet, started with Tommy Horn a strong favorite. The Indiana horse, however, won only the first heat. In the second heat a rush by Tenara landed the Madden entry a winner and brought the time down to 2:05 3-4, which constituted a race record for a trotter at Comstock track. This record endured only until the next heat in the 2:08 trot, when the Texas mare, Cheney, clipped half a second from the mark, putting it at 2:04 2-4. This last figure also is the fastest mile trotted by a mare on any track this season.

Tenara, despite her evident lameness outstepped the field in the third and fourth heats, gaining the long end of the heavy purse.

Cheney, the favorite in the 2:08 trot, fulfilled expectations after dropping the first heat to Marigold.

The 2:15 pace offered the unusual spectacle of horses in the slow division stepping the course as speedily as those in the division ten seconds faster. Mack Direct, in the first heat, won handily in 2:05 3-4. He repeated in the second in a full second faster time. In the third heat Strathsstorm nosed out Mack Direct. Then just at dusk the performance was repeated and the race was declared over until Thursday.

Abel's Retirement Hurt Boxing Game

CHATTANOOG, Tenn., July 31.—The announced retirement of Jake Abel from the ring has proved practically the death knell of boxing in this burg. The Morris fiasco pulled off here last fall put the manly art on the toboggan and Abel's retirement after a final defeat on foreign soil shows how complete a death the game has suffered.

An attempt was made several weeks ago to stage a mill between Joe Jeanette and Dewey, but not even the name of the New Yorker could attract the fans. When the two fought here two years ago they drew a house of $,000, but so little interest was shown at the proposed meeting several weeks ago that the promoters gave up in despair.

Pittsburg without Wagner will never look the same to the thousands of "fans" who always journey to Pirate games to see the "Flying Dutchman" perform.

Won't Pay Benton While He's Hurt

(By Associated Press.)

CINCINNATI, July 31.—President Herrmann, of the Cincinnati baseball team, said today that Rube Benton, who was seriously injured when his motorcycle collided with a street car, would not be allowed one penny of his salary, and that the club would not stand any expense while he is at the hospital. Mr. Herrmann said that he had repeatedly requested Benton not to ride his cycle.

"The whole affair is an injustice to the club," said Mr. Herrmann. "The injury of Benton means that we will have to get a pitcher or two, and just now good pitchers are hard to get."

Two Shutouts On Same Day

LYNCHBURG, July 31.—In headlines ranging from one to seven columns the sporting sheets of the Virginia papers in Sunday heralded the fact under a Roanoke date line that Pitcher Gardin, of the Roanoke Tigers, established a record for the Virginia league Saturday, when he defeated the Newport News team in a double bill without allowing them a run in the two games.

Walter Moser, who was two seasons with Lynchburg, established that record here July 20, 1909, and the Richmond team, then playing under the management of Perry Lipe, now with Savannah, was the victim. Dutch Revelle and Charley Shuman were the pitchers for the Colts, and Moser won his first game by the score of 2 to 0, allowing the Colts six hits. In the second game the score was 9 to 0, Richmond getting eight scattered hits.

Gardin's record in the matter of hits was slightly better than Moser's for he held Newport News to thirteen hits, for fifteen bases, while Moser held Richmond to fourteen hits ,or eighteen bases, but Gardin had errorless support through the eighteen innings, while one error was made behind Moser in the double affair.

School Boy Winner Of Tennis Tourney

(By Associated Press.)

BOSTON, July 31.—G. F. Touchard and W. M. Washburn, of New York, the latter a Harvard student, won the eastern championship tennis doubles from N. W. Niles and A. S. Dabney, of Boston, former eastern champions, 0-2, 7-5, 6-4, 14-12.

In the final of the Longwood singles William Johnston, champion of the Pacific coast, playing in whirlwind style defeated G. P. Gardner, Jr., of Boston, 6-2, 6-4, 6-4.

Touchard was the star of the doubles. He sustained the brunt of his opponents' attack and his play at the net was a revelation.

Johnston, the San Francisco school boy, played the same game against Gardner as he played against W. J. Clothier, earlier in th etournament.

Little Journeys to the Diamond

THE HOME PLATE

The Home Plate is a swift moving and strangely evanescent rubber object, supposed to be stationary. It probably is the most sought after person of the diamond, possibly on the theory that there's no place like home.

At the same time the Home Plate probably is the most abused Segment of the playing infield. The athletes take keen delight in spiking the catcher. And occasionally, when a player takes Umbrage at His Umpship and desires to bawl out that Worthy, Party and at the same time prevent the pitcher from stealing Signaling over a strike, he stands on the plate, sinking his spikes deep into its rubber anatomy.

Often when the Umpire calls a wild pitch a strike the batter pounds the plate in Frenzied Fury. Which recalls the lines of Immortal Casey:

The sneer is gone from Casey's lips, his teeth are clenched in hate, he pounds with cruel violence his bat upon the plate.

The Umpire is the Official Housekeeper for the home plate. The Umps carries a dainty whiskbroom, and one of the ceremonies preliminary to the Main Event is when the Umpire stoops and whisks the dust from the face of the pan.

The home plate is said to have a heart which every player wooes at times. Frequently in vain, and sometimes getting only a Corner.

The Home Plate always is left on the ball field at night, although many a good base runner has tried to steal it and frequently has hooked it. However, no ball player has been known to take the plate to the club house.

The Home Dish is the starting and the finishing point in baseball's 360-yard dash. The athletics get away from the plate with all possible speed, yet strangely enough, they show the same degree of haste if possible in returning.

The home plate is an object much aimed at, but seldom hit. And paradoxical as it may seem, the pitcher always misses his aim when he hits it.

Larry Chapple, Said to Have Cost White Sox $12,000 and Two Players

LARRY CHAPPLE.

Larry Chappell, outfielder, is just now the hope of the Chicago fans who favor the White Sox. President Comiskey is reported to have paid the Milwaukee club of the American association $12,000 and two players for him, and some enthusiastic fans have stated the total cost of the new fielder at $18,000. Comiskey has said nothing more than that Chappell was a high-priced player. He batted over 300 in the American association, and several managers were after him. He is said to be a fast and accurate fielder, and probably the best man in the American association.

Chappell at least looks like a ball player. He has the sharp and nervous eye of the born athlete and the springy, quick action which characterizes most champions.

HARD TO HIT IN SOUTHERN --PETE KNISELEY

Minus the scare of appendicitis, Pete Kniseley has rejoined his mates at New Orleans. Although the outfielder had expected to rest until the Barons arrived home, an urgent wire from Manager Molesworth resulted in Kniseley joining the club for the siege of double-headers at Pellcanville. The Dutchman avers that he will wreck the fence at New Orleans, for he feels finely.

The Southern league is the hardest place in the country to bat up in the 300 list, says Kniseley. "No wonder a player hits higher in the major league than in the Southern," declared the outfielder. "In the majors, the pitchers do not exert themselves until real danger faces them. When the game is progressing without heavy hitting, the pitchers serve the ball over and give you a chance to swat it, hoping that he will go into one of the fielders' hands. But not here.

"From the beginning of the game until the finish, the Southern league pitchers work at top speed. As the result, the batter has a poorer opportunity to make a high mark. But I attribute the many ascensions in the Southern to this fact. Unless a man is of wonderful physique, he is unable to twirl nine innings, putting his greatest effort on every toss. There are a few who are able to stand the pace. Elmer Brown is a twirler of this class, while Bill Prough is another.

"But the average pitcher is able to stand the gaff for six or seven innings. Then when he weakens the batters feast on the offerings and frequently drive him from the mound. But, of course, there are clever pitchers in the Southern. Hardgrove and Foxen do not pitch hard until there is danger and are very successful.

"I believe that a .300 batsman in the Southern can duplicate the feat in the majors."—Birmingham Exchange.

STARS ALWAYS IN GAME; BIG HELP TO MACK TEAM

If luck continues to break for Connie Mack and the Athletics, then the 1913 American league pennant race should not be close, says Sid Keener. The meaning of luck is injuries to athletes, the stars of his flock. And so far the lean Cornellius has been mighty fortunate in ways of accidents.

Mack is directing a bona fide championship ball club all right. Still many teams which figured on dope and even on the ball field to win have lost out because this and that star was disabled and put out of harness for a lengthy period.

The lucky part for Mack and the Athletics is that he has the banner infield in the major league circles today and that his quartet has been on duty every day since the first game of the season, April 10.

Without a doubt the combination of McInnes-Collins - Barry - Baker forms the infield de luxe, and Stuffy, Eddie, Jack and Frank have been in there every day. Collins is the only player who has missed once, and recently during a double header Mack laid off the Columbia university lad to give youngster Bill Orr a chance.

The Athletics have played eighty-nine games. McInnes, Barry and Baker have played eighty-nine, while Collins is listed with eighty-eight.

Of course, Mack has been without Jack Coombs since April 1, when typhoid fever put "Colby Jack" out of commission. But Plank and Bender are having an unusually good year and then Connie has been fortunate in getting excellent pitching from youngsters Brown, Bush, Hounck and Wyckoff.

Drives Auto Through Fence

GALVESTON, Texas, July 31.—Joseph Nikrent, of Los Angeles, Cal., a contestant in the Galveston Beach automobile races, was seriously injured late Wednesday when his car plunged through a wire fence and was wrecked. At the hospital, to which Nikrent was hurried after he had been extricated from the wreckage of the machine, no statement has been given out as to his condition, other than that he was badly hurt. His injuries consist principally of deep cuts, inflicted when he came in contact with the wire fence and parts of his demolished car. Nikrent raced without a mechanician.

Louis A. Disbrow, driving a Simplex, won the feature event of the races, a three hundred mile sweepstake, run in three heats of 100 miles a day and finished Wednesday. His time for the 300 miles was 4:17.22:40. Jack Lecain, in a Stutz, was second and Endicott, driving a Case, was third. Mosely, in a Studebaker, was the only other of the fifteen entrants to finish.

Tennis Stars Play For New York Title

NEW YORK, July 31.—A number of players from other states are in quest of the New York state championship at lawn tennis singles in the annual tournament beginning today on the courts of the Crescent Athletic club at Bay Ridge. William M. Johnson, eighteen years old, player from California; Ray Thompson, of Tacoma, Wash.; G. W. Waring, of Columbia, S. C.; Phillip Roberts and J. M. Holcombe, of Connecticut, and E. B. McClave, of Scranton, Pa., are among the entries, numbering in all ninety-seven. Theodore Roosevelt Pell, Dean Mackey, the old Princeton champion, and Alrick H. Mann, Jr., of Yale, are picked as some of the strongest contenders.

Gadsden Gets Away With LaGrange Club

LAGRANGE, Ga., July 31.—Gadscen defeated LaGrange, Wednesday by a score of 7 to 5. The game was played under protest by Manager Brannon, of LaGrange, on account of a decision rendered by the umpire in the eighth inning. Three balls were put over the fence by the visitors for home runs. Guiterez made his debut with the locals and proved himself a player of quality, making a star catch in the first inning.

Score by innings:	R.	H.	E.
Gadsden.....300 013 000—	7	10	3
LaGrange.....000 000 050—	5	7	3

Southpaw Wonder Of Griffith's Club

JOE BOEHLING.

Joe Boehling, the new southpaw wonder of the Senators of Washington, had won eleven straight games up to Thursday, July 24, thereby breaking a pitching record of the two big leagues for this season, and incidentally showing that Clark Griffith, the manager of the team, came near making one of the mistakes of his career. Griffith announced some weeks ago that there were no more good southpaws, and all the time he had one of the best in his possession.

He got Boehling two years ago and then let him go—with strings on—to the New England league. Hoping the young man might develop, he got him back this season, but kept him on the bench. Finally Griffith was induced to give the boy a chance, and he made good. He even equalled the season's record of the wonderful Walter Johnson, who is doubtless the best pitcher in baseball. Had Griffith started to pitch the young man some weeks ahead of the time he did start, the club might now be higher in the percentage table, and might be considered a contender for the pennant in the league.

Football Will Go Unchanged

Only Technical Changes; Kicker Can Stand at Any Point He Wishes

NEW YORK, July 31.—The intercollegiate football rules as promulgated by the football rules committee show a few changes in the gridiron code for the season of 1913. The majority of the alterations are technical and will have little effect upon the game. The most important change is the rule which permits the kicker to stand at any distance from the line of scrimmage when kicking, instead of at least five yards behind the scrimmage line. Under the new regulations it is expected that quick kicking from directly behind the forwards will be a playing feature.

Walter Camp in outlining the work of the rules committee states:

"One alteration was brought about by the fact that a player could not be returned to the game after he had once been taken out, except at the beginning of a period. It often happened that an unexpected substitution was necessary in the fourth period, and there seemed to be no reason why an exception should not be made in this case to read:

"'Player may be returned once at the beginning of any period, or at any time during the fourth or last period.'

"The rule relating to a forward pass or a kick made from behind the goal line, together with the rule relating to dropping back linemen has also been rendered clearer by changes in the wording.

"In the rules regarding the conduct of players after a forward pass or after a kick, insertion of the words, 'after the pass has been made' now makes it clear that players may interfere with one another until the pass actually is made."

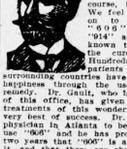
Blood Poison "606"
BY DR. J. T. GAULT.



The man who has contracted a specific blood poison should not lose any time in seeking relief—a cure. The remedy that promises prompt action is the one desired. Of course, is the most desired. We feel no longer called upon to proclaim Salvarsan "606" and Neo-Salvarsan "914" as the best remedies known to the profession for the cure of this disease. Hundreds and hundreds of patients in Atlanta and the surrounding countries have regained health and happiness through the use of this wonderful remedy. Dr. Gault, who is physician in charge of this office, has given over seven hundred treatments of this wonderful remedy with the very best of success. Dr. Gault was the first physician in Atlanta to begin to advertise and use "606" and he has proven during the past two years that "606" is all that he claims for it, and that there are absolutely no danger or bad after effects from the use of the remedy. If you need treatment don't hesitate to come in and see us. We guarantee our results to be satisfactory.

JOURNAL WANT AD Horoscope

AUGUST 1.

All persons born on any date between July 22 and August 22 are born under the sign of Leo.

This is the middle sign of the Fire Trilplicity and is symbolized by the lion.

A man born on this date is very kind-hearted, generous, sympathetic and would make a successful physician or surgeon.

A Leo person has an emotional nature, is very intuitive and their judgment is based on a sort of a sixth sense which rarely fails them in its accuracy.

Women of this birthdate are good companions, with a fund of good nature and their company is much sought by the opposite sex. A woman of this birthdate is inclined to quick temper and impatience without much cause. She should marry a man of this birthdate falls between March 21 and April 19.

This date favors the seeking through a Journal Want Ad of new positions in offices; stores will do well to advertise for managers through a Journal Want Ad, and the general planetary conditions favor all real estate transactions.

Some Want Ads are inserted free in The Journal—see first Want Page. For charge ads, ask that they be sent C. O. D., or telephone them to Main 2000 or Atlanta 423.

POULTRY, PIGEONS AND LIVE STOCK

The Cattle Industry of Georgia

THE true Macon has a fair every year, but it does not touch the more thickly settled and better sections of the state for this work that Atlanta did. Therefore, the entire section of north Georgia has to a certain extent lost interest in the live-stock industry. Ten years ago there were hundreds of poultry, hogs, cattle, horses and sheep all over north Georgia that were raised off of practically speaking the surplus or waste of the farm, and converted much of this waste into dollars and helped the owners. But now this state of affairs does not exist except in very small numbers anywhere in north Georgia. Eight or ten years ago it was possible to buy good milch cows in unlimited numbers at $30 to $35 each. Now the same grade of cattle are scarce and it is almost impossible to get them at $50 to $75. They seemed to have banished from the earth and there are not enough good milch cows in this state to produce one-fourth of the butter that is consumed by the citizens of the state of Georgia. The Georgia farmers will regret some day not paying more attention to their cattle, and if there ever was a time when an opportunity was right to get a big per cent of profit out of cattle that state of affairs now exists and will forever continue to be offered to the man who will take up this line of work.

Just so long as beef or ordinary quality will bring five cents to six cents per pound on foot and good milch cows sell for $50 to $100 each no line of farm industry on earth offers the opportunity for a big per cent of profit as does the cattle industry. Tennessee is shipping a great many cattle into Georgia every day, and the supply of hogs that are used in the packing houses in Georgia are supplied almost exclusively by the Tennessee breeders. The same thing can be said of poultry and eggs. In other words we are putting thousands of dollars into our neighbor state's pockets for these products when we should produce them in this state.

I suppose one of the things that has kept this state from producing more of these things heretofore is on account of the scarcity of feed, but with a big crop of every kind practically assured this year in this state we should not hesitate a moment longer to take up the breeding of live stock with more enthusiasm than ever and continue to produce every year more food products than we are even doing this year. As I have said before ensilage can be grown so cheaply in this state and hay of every kind, and when these feeds are combined into a balanced meal and hulls which we have right at our door we have a fortune right here for us that we are not taking advantage of. The great demand for milk and butter in every one of our cities and even in the small country towns is attracting much attention and eventually will be the cause of braking many eastern and western breeders here. There is hardly a dairyman in Georgia today but what is making money, even on bought feed, and the opportunities that present themselves here for a profit in all lines of livestock industry are such as do not exist possibly in any other part of the world.

One of the main things a person has to be careful about in entering this work is to use judgment in selecting good thoroughbred animals and get for his foundation the kind that will always sell at the top of the market, and take care of them after he has secured taem. With the wonderful Bermuda grass and white clover thousands of acres of now bare land in this state could be so easily converted into profitable pastures. During rainy days when no other kind of work can be accomplished on the farm hundreds of acres could be sowed to Bermuda grass and white clover that would make an abundance of feed that would so easily bring thousands of dollars to this state if we could once get our minds turned in this direction and see the possibilities that are offered here for the profitable growing of feed stuffs, the kinds growing scarcer and scarcer every year and greater demand coming every year for something to feed the people on we should not neglect these opportunities a day longer but take advantage of them and put ourselves in a position where our cattle and hogs will do the work that will convert the products of our farms into more cash than anything we can possibly pay attention to. It is gradually being forced on us and why we neglect it longer and put it off from day to day has always been a mystery to me and unless a big change is made we will continue to lose millions of dollars that we should be getting.

Yours very truly,

IN THE REAL ESTATE FIELD

Druid Hills Lot Brings $20,000, or $100 a Front Foot, West Peachtree Frontage Brings $10,000—North Boulevard Parcel Sold—Investment Property Sale—Transfers Show Gain for Week—Glover Honored—Mansion Plans

Several interesting real estate announcements were made on Thursday, including several sales.

One interesting phase of the situation is that statistics for the past week, compared with the corresponding period last year, show a decided increase in the value of recorded transfers, a sharp contraction of loans and a large increase of cancellations of loans.

DRUID DHILLS SALE.

H. W. Dews, at 1217 Fourth National bank building, has sold for Mrs. Kate Green Hess to a consumer a large vacant lot on Ponce de Leon avenue, in Druid Hills, for $20,000 or at the rate of $100 a front foot.

This is known as lot 2 of block 2 of Druid Hills. It is on the south side of Ponce de Leon avenue, about 500 feet east of Moreland avenue. The lot has a frontage of 200 feet and is 237 feet deep.

WEST PEACHTREE SALE.

M. L. Hirsch has sold to William D. Owens a large frontage on West Peachtree street, near the junction of Peachtree, for $10,000.

This property is on the west side of the street 400 feet south of Eighteenth street. The lot is 150 feet front and 375 feet deep.

BOULEVARD SALE.

M. C. Kiser's agency has sold for A. F. Kuhns to Mrs. H. W. Elrod No. 227 North Boulevard, a ten-room house on a lot 54x170, for $8,000, taking as part payment No. 320 Grant street, valued at $5,500.

INVESTMENT SALE.

Forcest & George Adair have sold for N. Rosenthal to Coldman and Investment parcel at Railroad and New streets in Edgewood for $7,000.

Thi property consists of thirteen negro houses on lot 50x607, the houses bringing an aggregate rental of $107 a month.

STATISTICS COMPARED.

In its regular comparison of real estate statistics, the Fulton County Daily Report makes a favorable showing for the past week as compared with the corresponding period last year.

The value of warranty deeds and bonds for title was over $100,000 greater the past week than the same week in 1912, being $412,586.54 against $301,649.78.

Loans continue to show a contraction, and the amount of loans paid was almost double last year's. The value of loans the past week was $168,540.20, against $223,277.60 for the same week last year. The value of loans paid was $119,233.63 last week, against $64,863.45.

GOVERNOR'S MANSION PLANS.

The governor's mansion property plan is taking shape again. The present legislature has not as yet taken time to consider a proposition, but Senator Watts has introduced a resolution calling for the appointment of a commission to act on the matter.

This commission will be composed of the governor, the speaker, the president of the senate and seven citizens to be appointment by the governor provides substantially as follows:

First. For a suitable lot in Atlanta, or on property that may be annexed thereto prior to the exchange, with a residence erected thereupon to cost not less than $50,000.

Second. In addition to said mansion for a suitable lot near the state capitol with a suitable office building erected thereon for certain departments of the state which are now in the capitol, which building is to be known as the capitol annex.

This proposed commission is to sit at 24 per diem in addition to actual expenses at a time which the governor provides for, and when the exchange is made Georgia shall give the party who may have entered into the contract a deed to the present property of the state in return for the other sites.

This commission is to supervise and approve the buildings which are provided for in the resolution and shall see that they are erected according to plans and specifications agreed upon.

GLOVER IS HONORED.

Charles P. Glover, former president of the Atlanta Real Estate board, has been honored by the National Association of Real Estate Exchanges. Mr. Glover was elected vice president of the association at its convention in Winnipeg, Canada.

The Atlanta delegation headed by Marvin G. White, who is president of the Atlanta Real Estate board, will leave for home Friday. They will make their way through the wheat fields of Canada.

At the convention Pittsburg was chosen for the place of the 1914 meeting. Atlanta was presented by Mr. White for 1916 and the national association was extended a hearty welcome to the Georgia city. C. L. Harrison, of Kansas City, was elected president of the national association for the coming year. The Atlanta delegation report a fine time on the trip and during their stay at the Winnipeg convention.

Congress Is in an Eddy
(Collier's Weekly.)

In spite of its intrinsic and ultimate usefulness, the lobby investigation is a serious handicap. There are before congress two measures of the highest importance, the tariff bill and the banking bill. It is probably not an exaggeration to say that four-fifths of the business and banking of the country, to a greater or less extent, is kept marking time until the disposition of these two measures. And yet, for several weeks past and for more weeks to come, debate and action upon them must take second place behind the lobby investigation.

By their sensational and partisan revelations keep the center of the stage. Moreover, very public men, not content to occupy the position, hesitates to suggest that these revelations be postponed, lest his motive be misinterpreted. On the other hand, if they continue, if all the cases be followed out, there is no telling how much time they may require. There is much that as yet has hardly been mentioned.

The Hyper lobby and the activities of the American Protective Tariff league would furnish entertaining material. Hearing witnesses one at a time is slow business, and the investigation threatens to live over the whole legislative history of several years. Control of it to be possible to commit this work to a committee which would sit between sessions, and let the two houses as a whole go about the business of legislation.

Flies Are Few in Paris

The house fly is a pest not only in this country but in all countries from the cold northern regions to the warm tropical climates. It is most abundant in those countries and regions where the least attention is paid to sanitation. In some parts of Paris it is almost completely stamped out, due to the laws and regulations forbidding the keeping of horses and requiring a proper disposition of all materials which the fly might breed in or feed upon.

These same conditions can be had in any city or in any community in this country if we only take the same steps in properly disposing of barnyard manure, decaying vegetables and garbage barrels and such materials and places where the fly breeds. These conditions probably cannot be expected for many years throughout the country generally, but in our country becomes more and more thickly populated we will be obliged to take more stringent cultural steps along these lines in order to protect human life from this pest.

In the Shop
(Carpenter and Builder.)

"Life is a hard grind," said the emery wheel.

"It's a perfect bore," said the auger.

"It means nothing but hard knocks for me," sighed the ball.

"You haven't so much to go through as I have," put in the saw.

"I can barely scrape along," complained the plane.

"And I am constantly being sat upon," added the bench.

"Let's strike," said the hammer.

But it only irked the chisel, "here comes the boss."

And all was silence.

No Meat for This Town
(New York Times.)

NEW BRITAIN, Conn.—The only person selling meat in the town of Newington has quit. He did not sell enough meat in the last week to buy shoes for his horse. Newington has decided to boycott meat until there is a fall in the price. Vegetables will be the standby.

Newington has a population of about 1,500 and is considered a wealthy town. The Maple Hill section is the home of many of New Britain's professional men.

«Move Forward!" in Japanese
(New York Independent.)

It has often been questioned if the Japanese would not lose their traditional politeness under the stress of modern business rush. But apparently they are doing their best to adapt themselves to the new condition. The city electric bureau of Tokio took the unprecedented course of asking the people how they preferred to be addressed when it was necessary to urge them to move into the middle of the street car. From the 2,719 suggestions sent in the following formulas were selected as most suitable, and the conductors will be taught to use them.

O-orini-haraun-Okatawa, Nakabo-doni, Nogaimasen (Those not getting off, to the middle, please!)

Nakabodo ga, Orakudo Gozaimasu. (The middle is more comfortable!)

Oaimo-dokosama, Iitokawaretan, okuneage'masu. (I'm sorry, but all move on by one step!)

Other suggestions, although possibly more effective, were not approved by the municipal authorities:

Nakabodo ni ya hoppin ga orimasu. (There's a pretty girl about in the middle of the car!)

Nakabodo no kata wa Kippu ga rimasen. (No ticket collected from the middle of the car!)

Tadaima surigs-nori-mashita. (A pickpocket has just come on board.)

The Real Reason
(Answers, 'London.)

The storm was brewing in Bill Jones' back yard.

"It's too much of a good thing, Liz," he yelled. "I've sold ye before I won't have the kids bringin' the coals from the shed in my best hat!' Wot 'nd you say, I'd like ter know?"

With arms akimbo, his better half sauntered into the cabbage patch.

"Look 'ere, Bill," she said coldly, "stop chiming a minit. You've spoilt the shape of that 'at a-ready with yer fanny 'eatin', and, as yer work cost all day long at the wharf, what does that little extra bit of dost in yer 'at matter? Yer wants somethin' ter talk shart!"

"Eh, Twin'y dollars the dust I object to. But I wears that 'at of bevenin's," responded the infuriated one, "and, if I takes it off me 'ead when I'm out, it leaves a black band round me for'ead. An', a co urse , I gets accused o' was blog me fa ce wi' m e 'at on!"

Grass fiber rugs, with borders of stenciled animals, done in soft red, yellow, brown and green, which show attractively against the light gray-green of the fiber, are sold for nursery mats or for rugs for children's rooms. They are so light, so easily cleaned and so durable that they are ideal for use in a room where children live.

EVERY once in a while a real estate agent lists a piece of property which he instinctively feels is a good buy, later it is proved so by his having sold it right off.

WE LISTED a buy on Colquitt avenue just off Euclid yesterday that we think needs just one description, in order to sell it. Now listen! Right at the Inman Park, Inman Park-Clifton and the Inman Park-Druid Hills car lines, three schedules, get me?

ON THE prettiest, greenest, nicest lot on the street, stands the bungalow that we really think is the best buy we have listed in residence property for a year.

SIX ROOMY rooms, delightful porch. In fact you can look all over the place and after you come back to the sidewalk, you will begin to wonder where the objectionable things are to the house, and you will end up wondering how on earth the owner can sell the house so cheaply. If YOU want a home that will suit Molly and the kiddies let us show you this. We want to whisper the price.

THREE MORE WEATHER BUREAU MEN REMOVED

Pollock, Heiskell and Carroll Follow Moore's Dismissal

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 31.—R. E. Pollock, section director of the weather bureau at Trenton, N. J.; Prof. H. J. Heiskell, of the office of meterology, and Daniel G. Carroll, chief clerk of the weather bureau, implicated in the alleged political activity of former Chief Willis L. Moore, which resulted in his dismissal, were removed from office today.

NEW OFFICERS CHOSEN FOR BRINSON RAILWAY

John Heard Hunter Made President at Reorganization Meeting at Savannah

SAVANNAH, Ga., July 31.—The list of the officers and directors of the Brinson railway elected at a reorganization meeting yesterday is as follows:

President, John Heard Hunter, of Savannah.

Vice president, John E. Foy, of Savannah.

Directors: Mills B. Lane, J. H. Hunter, E. T. Comer, R. M. Hitch, H. D. Stevens, John F. Wallis and Mr. Goodbody.

Mr. Goodbody is of New York, as is Mr. John F. Wallis the latter being president of the Westinghouse-Church-Kerr Electrical company.

James Imbrie is chairman of the board of directors. It was learned yesterday afternoon that Mr. Brinson owned about 5,000 shares of the common stock of the road and it is authoritatively stated that he received between $40 and $50 a share for his holdings.

GEORGIA HUSSAR WILL BE TRIED IN SAVANNAH

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

SAVANNAH, Ga., July 31.—A very interesting hearing will be held before the Georgia Hussars on Sunday to, determine what shall be done in the case of a member of the troop who is alleged to have committed an act that was "against the good name of the organization."

While the Hussars were in camp at St. Simons they played baseball with an infantry team. The man who is now under charges is alleged to have had a bet up against the Hussars and to have umpired the game. It is claimed that for this he should be disciplined. The captain of the Hussars will not attend the hearing, which will be largely an affair of the men.

FREIGHT RATES REDUCED FROM COLORADO TO EAST

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, July 31.—Class and commodity rates on eastbound freight from Colorado common points to Chicago, Missouri and Mississippi river destinations were materially reduced today by the interstate commerce commission. The proposed reduction to Mississippi river points average 19 to 48 cents a hundred pounds.

Lightning Slays Man

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

STONE MOUNTAIN, Ga., July 31.—Albert Flowers, son of Jesse Flowers, was killed by lightning today, two miles east of Stone Mountain on J. W. Butts' farm.

Flowers was driving to his home from Stone Mountain, when he stopped at Butts for shelter during the storm.

MAN LEADING A DOUBLE LIFE BETRAYED BY HIS SUIT CASE

Albert Driscoll Cammayer, When Caught With $900 Worth of Stamps, Charged With Blowing Postoffice Safe at Green Cone, Fla.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

MONTGOMERY, Ala., July 31.—Until Albert Driscoll Cammayer was arrested at Chattanooga last week on a charge of blowing open the safe of the Green Cove, Fla., postoffice, he was leading a double life—that of safe blower and religious worker—according to postoffice inspectors who came to Montgomery yesterday to get information about Cammayer's career in Alabama.

Cammayer—known in Alabama as Driscoll—had been recognized for several months as one of the best citizens of Green Cove. He had gone in the best society. He had formed the acquaintance of a Green Cove girl. They became engaged and preparations were made for the wedding.

One night the postoffice safe was broken open, and stamps and some money stolen. Cammayer—then going under that name—was not suspected. No trace of the safe blower could be found. Then Cammayer went to Chattanooga as a representative of the Jefferson Powder company, of Birmingham.

BETRAYED BY SUITCASE.

Luck went against him. He lost his duplicate check and the railroad refused to give him his suitcase. Cammayer declared that he could identify articles in the case and he mentioned a suit of clothes, a comb and brush and other articles. But he said nothing about $900 worth of stamps which were hidden in the bottom of the suitcase.

Then Cammayer decided he ought to make a more thorough search for the check. He went to this hotel and found the lost slip. But, in the meantime, railroad officials made a thorough search of the suitcase and found the stamps. Cammayer produced the check and demanded the suitcase. Detectives were called and Cammayer was arrested.

Postoffice inspectors could not find a postoffice in the Chattanooga district that had been robbed recently and other divisions were notified. Green Cove's office had been robbed a few weeks before and investigations showed that the numbers of the stamps in Cammayer's possession corresponded with those stolen from the Florida postoffice. Cammayer denied that he had robbed the postoffice.

FIANCEE LOYAL.

News of Cammayer's arrest went to Grene Cove, where he was regarded as an upright citizen. People there refused to believe he was interested in the robbery, and his fiancee declared she believed him a gentleman and she is still standing by him. Cammayer's fiancee is a daughter of a superintendent of a large plant in Florida, but postoffice inspectors have refused to make public her name.

Cammayer was convicted of robbing the safe of Hirscher Brothers, in Montgomery, in 1904. He was sentenced to twenty years in the penitentiary, but was paroled by Governor O'Neal in 1911, when wardens reported that Cammayer had been converted and had become a minister and religious worker. Soon after being released Cammayer was employed by the Jefferson Powder company, of Birmingham as traveling representative and it is alleged that he used his position to get explosives to use in his criminal operations.

Fifth Relative Comes To Aid of Invalid by An Offer of Blood

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, July 31.—Malcolm Middleton, a mining expert of Utah, is the fifth member of the wealthy Middleton family to come to the aid of Leighborn Middleton, his brother, with an offering of blood, but despite all the sacrifices physicians say his case is hopeless. He is suffering with anaplastic anaemia, a disease that has baffled the physicians.

His young wife, who has already given up 15 per cent of her blood supply in the hope of saving her husband, pleaded yesterday to be allowed to submit to a second transfusion, but the doctors declared that she could not survive a further sacrifice. Middleton's brother offered himself as a substitute, although he was told by the physicians that the operation will be the only means of slightly prolonging the sick man's life.

CARROLL COUNTY MASONS MEET IN CARROLLTON, GA.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

CARROLLTON, Ga., July 31.—The county Masonic convention met here yesterday with Carroll lodge No. 69, F. & A. M. The attendance was the best in the history of the convention, Masons from every lodge in the county being present. This was the seventh annual meeting of the convention. The first and third degrees were exemplified by the members of Carroll lodge.

The officers elected for the ensuing year were as follows: M. L. Moore, W. M.; T. F. Sikes, S. W.; B. F. Hoop, J. W.; E. A. Merrell, secretary and treasurer. This convention meets annually with Carroll lodge on the last Wednesday in July, and has done a great deal to build up the Masonic order in this county.
